Record amounts of bratwurst and beer should be consumed at this year's 'Fest'

by LYNN ASINOF

Wheeling-area residents are expected to consume a record amount of bratwurst at this year's annual Brat 'n Beer Fest Sunday sponsored by the Wheeling Historical Society.

Last year, fest-goers ate 3,000 bratwursts and drank 40 half-barrels of beer before the supply of bratwurst ran out at about 6 p.m. This year the supply of bratwurst has been increased to 5,000 with 55 half-barrels of beer to provide an ample supply.

The bratwurst is prepared German-style. It is first soaked in beer, then grilled over hickory logs, and served on potato rolls smothered with sauerkraut. Hot sweet corn with butter and German potato salad round out the menu planned by Shirley Mueller and Walter Diens.

Mrs. Mueller said all of the potato salad served during the fest is homemade by Wheeling residents. She said the potato rolls are also specially prepared for the fest by a local bakery.

THE BRAT 'N BEER Fest originated in 1969 with the celebration of Wheeling's Diamond Jubilee. The idea of the old-time community picnic was so popular that the Historical Society initiated it as an annual event which now attracts several thousand people from all over the Chicago area.

As part of the festival, the Community Arts League of Wheeling-Buffalo Grove will sponsor an art fair featuring over 65 area artists and craftsmen. Ribbons and cash prizes will be awarded in various categories by the art league.

Three purchase awards are being offered by the Village of Wheeling, the Bank of Buffalo Grove and the Wheeling Trust and Savings Bank. Other local businesses have also donated prizes for the art fair.

German music and entertainment will be provided by the five-piece Jim Campbell group. Music is scheduled to continue into the evening.

THE BRAT 'N BEER Fest will begin at 2 p.m. in the parking lot of the Wheeling Trust and Savings Bank at the corner of Milwaukee Avenue and Dundee Road.

Bob Berger, chairman of this year's fest, said the day's activities should be a family-type affair. "We want this to be a thing for the whole family to have a good time," he said.

The annual fest is the only fund-raising activity sponsored by the historical society. Proceeds will be used to finance the society's activities during the coming year.

OLD-WORLD STYLE bratwurst, soaked in beer and grilled over hickory logs, will be the feature attraction Sunday at the Wheeling Historical Society's annual Brat 'N Beer Fest. The brats will be served on fresh potato rolls smothered with sauerkraut. Beer, fresh corn and German potato salad will round out the menu while a German-style band provides atmosphere music. The fest will begin at 2 p.m. at the parking lot of the Wheeling Trust and Savings Bank.

Village near purchase of sewage plant

by LYNN ASINOF

The Village of Wheeling is in the final stages of negotiating to buy the defunct Wheeling sewage treatment plant on Nancy Lane from the Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD).

Village Mgr. George Passolt said the MSD has had the 2.3-acre site appraised and given the village a price for the land. He said the village is now considering the offer, and will decide soon whether to buy the property.

Passolt said he expected the village's decision on the matter to be made public at an upcoming meeting of the MSD board. "They're going to have it on their agenda Aug. 16 if I respond," he said.

WHEELING OFFICIALS have been negotiating with the MSD since February, when they learned the district planned to offer the property for sale.

If the village purchases the property, Passolt said part of the site will be used for a municipal garage to store equipment. He said the remaining portion of land will be given to the park district for their use.

"We anticipate giving part of the site to the park to expand their park facilities in that area," Passolt said. He noted that the site adjoins a park district lot which serves the Meadowbrook area.

Passolt said the village was interested in the property in part because of its location. "I don't know that the property as it is would be much use to anyone else because it is kind of landlocked whereas we would have access to it," he said. "Also we could have envisioned a lot of problems if some private person purchased it."

The manager said the site also will be advantageous to village flood-control programs because it is located on the Wheeling Drainage Ditch.

ORIGINALLY, THE MSD offered to lease the site to the Wheeling Park District if the park district would clear the site and remove the concrete treatment tanks. The park district turned down the lease because it would cost about $10,000 to remove the concrete tanks and restore the property to a usable state.

If the village buys the treatment plant, it will assume responsibility for removing the concrete tanks. It will also be responsible for the security of an MSD control device located on the property.

Wheeling sold the plant to the MSD in 1957 for $252,041. The cost of the sale back to the village is expected to be less because the treatment plant is no longer operational.

During negotiations, the village also explored the possibility of leasing the property from the district. "The problem with leasing was that any lease that the MSD gives out has a one-year cancellation clause even though it is a 20-year lease," Passolt said. "And we would thus be reluctant to build on it."

No board meeting

The Wheeling Village Board will not meet tonight since it is the fifth Monday of the month. The board will meet again next week at 8 p.m. at the village hall, 255 W. Dundee Road.

Art workshop Kaleidoscope asks children to create

Elementary school children in Wheeling have an opportunity to participate in a very special kind of art workshop Aug. 1 in Arlington Heights.

The workshop, a creative, touring art program, is conducted as a public service by Hallmark Card's Inc. Called Kaleidoscope, the program was brought to Arlington Heights in cooperation with the Arlington Heights Park District, Junior Women's Club and Our Lady of the Wayside School.

Wheeling youngsters in grades one through six may sign up with the Wheeling Park District to participate in the workshop next Wednesday at Our Lady of the Wayside School. There is room for 40 local children to attend.

Wheeling Park Supt. Dave Phillips said local children will be taken by bus to the workshop, leaving Heritage Park at 10:20 a.m. They will be returned to the park about an hour later.

PHILLIPS SAID the workshop consists of an idea room and a work room. Children will be taken into the idea room to look at materials in different colors and textures to give them inspirations for their projects.

Materials including melted crayons, felt, yarn, and plastic will be provided, he said, for the children to use in making their creations.

The traveling workshop has been touring the country for several years, Phillips said. Recently the workshop was in Glenview. Arlington Heights will be its last stop in the Northwest suburbs this year.

There is no cost for the workshop. Phillips said parents may register their children to participate by calling the park district at 537-2222 or stopping in the office at 222 S. Wolf Rd.

Allows development

Village passes 'recreation ordinance'

by LYNN ASINOF

Wheeling officials have taken another step toward bringing recreational facilities into the village by passing an ordinance that allows such projects to be built under the I-3 industrial zoning classification.

Although the zoning change was not requested by any developer, Building Director Bill Bieher suggested the ordinance to make the village more attractive for recreational development.

There are now several groups in the village looking for developers who would be willing to build recreational facilities in Wheeling. One group is headed by Trustee Bill Hein, who is in the process of organizing a community group to act as a liaison between him and village residents. Efforts are also being made by Trustee John Koepfen to organize the village civic organizations into a group which would promote bringing recreational facilities into Wheeling.

THE ORDINANCE passed by the village board allows private recreation facilities such as tennis clubs or ice skating clubs to be built under I-3 zoning, but requires a special use permit.

Hein voted against the ordinance, despite his promotion of recreational facilities, because of the special use permit restriction. He said that such restriction would discourage developers from coming into the village. "I would like to make it as easy as possible," he said. "Why hamper a development everyone would like?"

Other trustees, however, said they did not think the special use permit would restrict such development. They further noted that the zoning board recommended the special use permit as a way to meet the special need of recreational facilities.

VILLAGE ATTY. Paul Hamer explained that the zoning board recommended the special use permit as a way of controlling recreational developments. "The zoning board felt they would want to take each project as it was presented to the village," he said.

"They may want to put special requirements on it."

Hamer said such requirements might include increased parking or special lighting, depending on the type of operation. "If it's not needed, then of course they would not use the restrictions," he said.

In requesting the ordinance, Bieher said the I-3 zoning was best suited for recreational facilities. He said most of the vacant land in the village is currently zoned for industrial use. He further noted that by locating in an industrial area, developers of recreational facilities would not have to worry about noise or traffic complaints from neighbors.

Shortage

Panicky consumers respond to crisis in meat supply by making a run on freezers

Northwest suburban consumers are pushing the panic button now that the cost of pork and other meat items is rising and have practically bought up all the home freezers from local department stores.

Salesmen working in major appliance departments of several of the stores report a surge in business this month as the crisis in consumer costs continues.

Some stores also report a wait of a month and more for freezers now being ordered. They said most persons are upset with the delay but that they are determined to make a purchase in an effort to stock up on beef before the price ceiling is lifted Sept. 12.

AS OF FRIDAY, some stores were so low on freezers they said they would probably sell the rest of them over the weekend. Persons wanting to purchase certain models, mostly the larger 15- to 20-cubic-foot uprights, have had to settle for other models or wait more than a month.

"People have just been going haywire, it's uncanny," said a saleswoman at the Polk Brothers Department Store in Arlington Heights. She said sales of freezers have more than quadrupled.

"In a normal span of time when freezers sell best (usually during the summer months) we sell from 50 to 100 freezers a month. But since this meat thing we're selling from 100 to 200 a week.

"It's fantastic. Like there's five people at the freezer section to only one at the air conditioners. People are cramming the aisles. At night you can't even get over into the department it's so crowded."

AT POLK BROTHERS and several other stores, people are clamoring for freezers and even buying refrigerators with double doors when freezers are unavailable or too expensive.

According to the saleswoman, now is the time to buy freezers because their prices are expected to go up. Small companies are already planning to hike their prices because of the growing demand for their product while the stock of major companies is depleted.

But a salesman at the Sears Department Store at Woodfield Shopping Center in Schaumburg disagreed, saying his store sells freezers and other products at standard prices and will not change.

One thing the salesmen do agree upon, though, is the recent run on freezers. "Right now, freezers are a mess," said the Sears salesman. "Some of these people are truly panicking. They're buying freezers and expecting to buy 300 pounds of meat. One woman said she didn't want a freezer if she couldn't have it before the ceiling prices were lifted."

...and across the nation the reaction is the same

by United Press International

A full-scale, nation-wide run on home freezers is under way that is clearly linked to the current increases in the cost of food, a United Press International survey shows.

"If you want a freezer," said Bob Williams of Swanlan's Discount Store in Cincinnati, Ohio, "I might be able to sell you one in about four weeks. It really started to break this week. We've easily sold 75 freezers in the last four days."

MEANWHILE, the administration said it would stand by its decision to keep the price freeze on beef until Sept. 12.

"The plea for the President to remove the ceiling on beef is one which will be granted at this time," said John Dunlop, director of the Cost of Living Council.

"Our customers say whenever they can find a sale on meat they stock up," said a clerk for the Younker Brothers home appliance store in Cincinnati.

"People are really scared."

OTHER CITIES where extraordinary sales of freezers were reported included: Concord, N.H.; Cleveland, Ohio; Minneapolis and St. Paul, Minn.; Omaha, Neb.; Birmingham, Ala.; San Francisco; Los Angeles; Philadelphia; Pittsburgh; Tampa, Fla.; St. Louis; Marion, Ill.; Chicago; New York, and Boston.

Salesmen said buyers wanted the biggest freezers available, regardless of condition, and some wanted two small ones if one big one could not be had. Stores said they had trouble getting the freezers from manufacturers, some of whom are more than a month behind on orders.

In other developments: • Swift Fresh Meats Co. said it plans to close packing plants in Grand Island and Des Moines, Iowa, next Monday. A Swift spokesman said the plants will remain closed until the price ceiling on beef is lifted.

• A spokesman for the New York City purchasing department said a request for bids on beef got only one reply and that one was not confirmed. He said the bidder promised to supply beef between Aug. 6 and Aug. 17 only if it was available, which the bidder said wasn't likely.

• In Los Angeles, no bids had been made to supply beef for the city for the month of August when the bidding period closed Thursday.

• The cost of raw milk delivered to milk companies by the dairy farmers of the Central Ohio Co-operative Milk Producers Association will increase by about one cent per quart, effective Monday.

• A spokesman for a new shoe store in Dallas said the firm will give away beef as part of an opening day promotion Aug. 23. He said the first 100 persons who buy $5 worth of shoes will receive a filet mignon.

Chicago-area mechanic strike looms

Motorists waiting for auto repairs may soon run into trouble.

New car dealers in the Chicago area will be faced with a strike this week if they jump the gun on a new method of compensating their auto mechanics, according to a spokesman for Local 701 of the International Machinists and Aerospace Workers.

The Local 701 membership recently rejected a new contract offer by the Employers Association of Greater Chicago representing nearly 300 dealers. They approved an Aug. 6 strike date if no settlement is reached. Local 701 Pres. Don Gustafson said a strike action could be set off by individual dealers trying to dilute the provisions of their contract proposal.

"Local 701 has had 11 lengthy meetings, all in an attempt to negotiate a new labor agreement covering its 4,000 members who work in 275 various new car dealerships in Chicago and vicinity," said Gustafson on Friday. Union members seek an agreement calling for a 25 cent-an-hour increase in wages for each of two years. The employers as a group are willing to accept the wage increase.

ONE OF THE MAJOR stumbling blocks in the dispute is the dealer's proposal to change the method of compensation for auto mechanics. They now receive $5.75 an hour. For overtime work, they receive an added amount, estimated by Local 701 at half the approximate $14 an hour charged to customers. The use of flat rate manuals by most auto dealerships determined the charges for auto repairs. It is based on the average amount of time the work required to do the work. The dealers want to eliminate the incentive pay, but the mechanics don't want to give it up.

Another bone of contention, say mechanics, is the dealer proposal to allow a four-day work week at 10 hours a day. Right now, the mechanics receive time and a half pay for more than 8 hours work in a day, and for Saturday work.

"The 10 hours per day proposal of the dealers is based on straight time work only, even if the man works on Saturday," said Gustafson. "Our membership is strongly opposed to this concept."

C. David Burnes, president of the employers group, said earlier that the new compensation proposals are offered as a means of being more competitive with the "mass merchandisers." Those are the auto repair shops operated by discount stores and major retailers, sometimes at bargain prices.

SCLC holds its annual convention

The suburban division of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC) held its annual convention Sunday highlighted by the installation of several new members of the board of directors.

Held at the Church of the Incarnation, 308 W. Golf Rd., Arlington Heights, SCLC members heard remarks by Noah Robinson, executive director of the Chicago chapter of SCLC and brother of the Rev. Jesse Jackson.

At the conference, suburban division chairman Clyde Brooks of Elk Grove Village said SCLC will step up its campaign to assure that suburban municipalities recruit and hire minorities according to the provisions of various civil rights laws.

Chemical technology applicants wanted

Students may apply now for admission to the chemical technology program being offered this fall at Oakton Community College.

The program, which includes twelve new courses ranging from chemistry to industrial safety, offers students either a one-year certificate or a two-year associate of applied sciences degree.

Chemistry Prof. Philip M. Jaffe, coordinator of the program, has designed special instructional equipment for the program. The program has been developed to train students in laboratory techniques, and procedures required of a technician in industry.

Full term classes begin at Oakton Aug. 27. Information is available at the Oakton admissions office, 7900 N. Nagle, Morton Grove.

Oil distribution measures expected

Administration officials believe the White House will announce strong measures this week to control distribution of crude oil and other petroleum products in rapidly dwindling supply. It was reported an oil allocation program requiring oil companies to distribute petroleum products equitably to all customers would be proposed.

Ask North Vietnam for MIA report

The United States has appealed again to North Vietnam for swift action in determining the fate of more than 1,300 Americans still listed as missing in Southeast Asia. Accounting for the missing and repatriation of remains are purely humanitarian obligations the White House said.

Gen. Wheeler to be questioned

The Senate Armed Services Committee is slated to take testimony today from Gen. Earle Wheeler, former Joint Chiefs of Staff chairman. He is certain to be asked about a report that U.S. bombing missions over Laos were falsified in the same manner as those for the 14-month secret bombing campaign in Cambodia.

Rock fans have 'Summer Jam'

Thousands of rock fans, leaving behind a huge dance hall of mud and garbage, snaked along narrow country roads in cars, campers and on foot, causing a massive jam of humanity in Watkins Glen, N.Y. The rock fans started arriving for the "Summer Jam" last Wednesday, and one deputy sheriff said "it will be Wednesday before they're gone."

Robber killed, policeman wounded

A suspected robber was shot and killed and a Chicago policeman wounded on Chicago's Northwest side yesterday, the third time in four days a city policeman was a victim of gunfire. The dead man, Orlando Quintana, was shot by patrolman Garford Eveland outside the Tower Lounge on North Avenue during an apparent robbery attempt. Another suspect was arrested trying to start Eveland's car. Eveland is reported in good condition.

Sewage hearings are slated

Residents of northeastern Illinois concerned about a controversial plan to get rid of Chicago Area sewage, will get their last chance this week to state their opinions. Army Corps of Engineers will hold meetings today starting at 7 p.m. in Woodstock, and Tuesday in Kankakee. Among the five plans under consideration is one calling for spreading sewage over 128,000 acres of farmland in Newton and Jasper counties of Indiana.

Greyhound bus in freak crash

The driver of a Greyhound bus and five passengers were hospitalized yesterday with injuries sustained in a freak accident on Interstate 57 about 13 miles south of Effingham. Authorities said a semi-tractor trailer went out of control, and hit a guardrail, throwing a set of wheels onto the highway. The Greyhound hit the wheels, went out of control, plowed through the guardrail and came to a stop on the median strip.

Watergate week: big names slated

(From the Herald news services)

In what was supposed to be the end of its 10-week run, the Senate Watergate committee goes into one of its biggest weeks today with the committee leaders proposing a new compromise on the White House tapes.

John D. Ehrlichman, formerly one of President Nixon's top two aides, will return for his fifth day of testimony, with the other of the big two — H. R. Halde- man — to follow him.

Chances are slim that the committee will make its scheduled Friday cutoff because also still to appear are Charles W. Colson, former special counsel and political strategist for the White House; former attorney general Richard Kleindienst; former acting FBI director L. Patrick Gray II; Lt. Gen. Vernon A. Walters, deputy director of the CIA; and Egil "Bud" Krogh, former head of the White House "plumbers."

The committee also had significant action scheduled away from the hearing room today, with expectations that it would file its suit in U.S. District Court to try to force Mr. Nixon to release the White House tapes and documents related to the Watergate bugging case.

The committee chairman and co-chairman — Sens. Sam Ervin and Howard Baker — proposed a compromise way around that impending constitutional confrontation yesterday, suggesting they and Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox be allowed to make a private inspection of the tapes and documents.

That could permit an out-of-court settlement that would sidetrack a faceoff that seems destined for resolution in the U.S. Supreme Court.

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania also urged that there be some outside access to the tapes, although he said it ought to be done through Cox and the grand jury, not the Senate committee. Cox also has subpoenaed the White House tapes and a federal judge has set a show cause hearing for Aug. 7.

"By settling it out of court is meant that some means might be found by which the President's replies, the President's information, can be made available to the American people. We're uncomfortable, of course, until it is," Scott said.

Baker and Scott also signaled the White House to indicate which additional witnesses should testify in the Senate hearings before Nixon makes his promised statement on Watergate.

"If the President's testimony on making a substantial or important statement inter-dependent with our finishing a given number of witnesses or a particular witness, I would finish those witnesses if we had to stay here all of August," Baker said.

"I expect him to respond as soon as the major witnesses have been heard by the Ervin committee," Scott said.

Both Baker and Ervin hammered away at the committee's insistence at getting the tapes, whose secret existence was revealed two weeks ago by a surprise witness, Federal Aviation Administrator Alexander P. Butterfield, a former White House aide.

"Some people say John Dean is a liar, but the fact is that sometimes liars tell the truth," Ervin said.

"If these tapes establish that Dean is a liar, the committee ought to have them. If they establish the converse, that he was not a liar, we ought to have them so we can make a speedy determination on this point."

Dean has presented the most damaging testimony so far against Nixon — claiming that he and the President discussed a cover-up of the Watergate scandal as early as September 1972, months before Nixon acknowledged that he learned the truth about the case.

Stomach trouble in Skylab

'Queasy does it'

(From the Herald news services)

Another day off may be ahead today for the Skylab 2 astronauts, fighting stomach problems that beset them shortly after beginning their mission Saturday.

The rocky start to man's longest mission in space forced the astronauts to knock off all experimental work yesterday afternoon and may delay the first spacewalk planned for the 59-day mission.

The queasiness afflicting mission commander Alan L. Bean, Owen K. Garriott and Jack R. Lousma apparently has been caused by difficulty in getting used to weightlessness.

Bean said if the astronauts do not adapt to the new environment soon, they would have a difficult time performing a spacewalk tomorrow when they are to raise a new sun shade over the space station.

Space officials, cautioning they didn't want to "get excited" about the problem, will decide this morning if the astronauts can stay on schedule. There were signs of improvement as their first full day in space wore on.

"It's becoming obvious to us, just as it is probably to you, that we're just not as spry up here as we'd like to be," Bean told mission control. "None of us has been able to eat all our breakfast and it's dinner time now and we're really not too keen on eating much of that either."

Flight Director Neil Hutchinson decided to let the crewmen interrupt their housekeeping and system turn-on procedures and rest for four or five hours in sleeping hammocks to settle their stomachs. He wanted to avoid a recurrence of nausea that hit Lousma twice Saturday. The spacemen also were told to each take an antinausea pill.

Dr. Paul Buchanan, flight surgeon in mission control, said such symptoms of motion sickness were not unusual in the first few days of a spaceflight. He said numerous Gemini and Apollo astronauts reported the same problem.

Skylab, however, is much larger than previous American spacecraft and it allows astronauts to move freely and quickly. It is such rapid movements of the body, and especially the head, that can contribute to stomach queasiness.

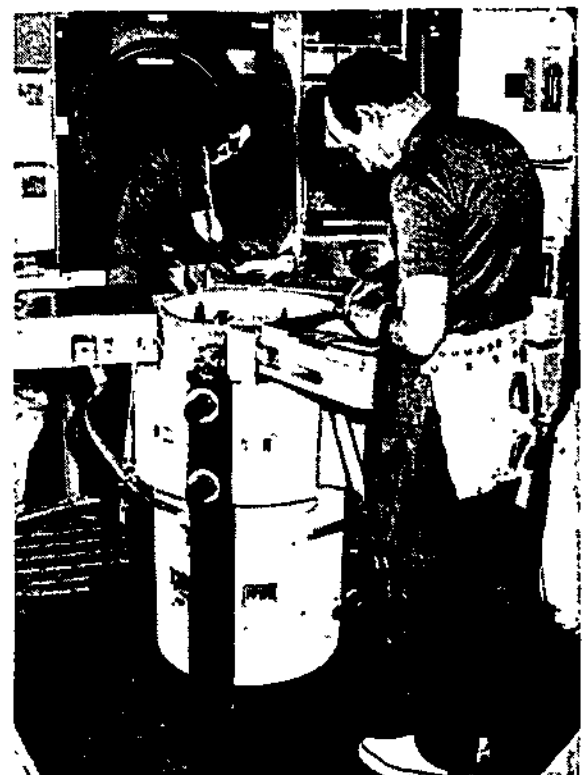

Skylab's first crew also reported some feelings of "stomach awareness" when they first reached orbit but they did not have any problems in Skylab itself, Buchanan said.

The difference between the Skylab 1 and 2 crews is attributed by doctors to a typical difference in individuals.

Lousma took one antinausea pill after reaching orbit Saturday and Buchanan said the astronaut had two slight cases of nausea. Bean and Garriott reported some queasiness but no nausea. Bean has been in space before but this is the first flight for Garriott and Lousma.

Despite their problems, the astronauts activated Skylab's powerful array of sun-watching telescopes and turned on the ship's complicated plumbing system. But they skipped some housekeeping chores planned for their second day in the 100-ton house in space.

The astronauts have 60 experiments to perform before returning to earth Sept. 25. Their primary objective is to determine how well men can live in weightless space for long periods, and how much they can do in orbit to help scientists and man on earth.

THE SKYLAB astronauts presumably aren't spending much time in the orbiting workshop's dining area. They suffered prolonged motion sickness after linking up and — not surprisingly — report they're not very hungry.

Ask backup 'weather eye'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Weather Service, stung by the launch failures of two of its last three satellites, has asked the space agency to prepare a rocket as quickly as possible to launch a replacement storm watcher.

The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) now has one satellite, NOAA 2, in full operation 900 miles high but wants a second in orbit as insurance against a breakdown.

NOAA 2, orbited last October, is working so well that weathermen don't want to be without its observation services. It was designed to work a minimum of six months, but engineers expect it to operate normally for at least a year.

Another spacecraft was launched as a backup July 17, but it fell into the Pacific when the second stage of its usually reliable Delta rocket went out of control. The failure cost NOAA $15 million.

Busy week for Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Congress faces a long, hard week but waiting at the other end is a month-long, uninterrupted vacation — maybe.

The Senate plans to put the finishing touches Monday on a comprehensive package of campaign reforms including the first ceilings on contributions by individuals and committees and the first limits on the amount of money a candidate can spend. The bill also would create an Independent Federal Elections Commission to oversee the reforms.

Among other measures listed for Senate action before Friday's adjournment are a two-year extension of a program to provide public service jobs; creation of a commission to study election reforms as proposed by Nixon; appropriations for the Interior Department; a series of minor bills, and possibly some legislation passed in separate versions by both houses and now tied up in conference committees.

The House scheduled a pre-recess work load that includes the controversial Alaskan pipeline bill, the military procurement authorization measure and a Senate-passed bill to permit action this year, rather than next, on pay raises for members of Congress and other federal officials.

The Senate and House are scheduled to return to work Sept. 5, but Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said congressional leaders have set up stand-by plans to call members back early if necessary to deal with critical developments that might affect the energy shortage, the economy and several other issues.

Manufacturer: 'outrageous'

Alka-Seltzer ban demanded

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Ralph Nader-backed Health Research Group, charging the makers of Alka-Seltzer withheld data from a federal panel that declared the antacid safe and probably effective, asked the government to ban sales of the product and to censure the manufacturer publicly.

The manufacturer, Miles Laboratories, immediately called the allegations "outrageous."

The Nader group has criticized Alka-Seltzer on grounds that it contains aspirin which may cause internal bleeding in persons who have ulcers or other stomach problems. The product often is touted for relief of symptoms which resemble upset stomach but really may be caused by conditions for which aspirin is bad, the group said.

Last April 4, the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) published the recommendations of a scientific panel which reviewed all over-the-counter antacid products. The panel concluded that Alka-Seltzer, among others, was safe and probably effective.

BUT DR. SIDNEY Wolfe, director of the Nader research group, said Sunday that Miles Laboratories submitted additional information to the FDA on June 4, including an unpublished study which Wolfe said had been in the company's hands for five years.

"Had this study been made available to the panel before it concluded working on the monograph, the debate might have resulted in Alka-Seltzer being removed from the market, for it shows that Alka-Seltzer causes significant bleeding in normal individuals — contrary to the oft-repeated claims by Miles Laboratories," Wolfe said in a letter to the FDA's new commissioner Dr. Alexander Schmidt.

The letter urged Schmidt to remove Alka-Seltzer from the market "until it has been reformulated without aspirin and to publicly censure Miles Laboratories . . . for deliberately withholding important data . . ."

IN RESPONSE, Miles Laboratories issued a statement saying: "We resent the outrageous and unjustified conduct of the health research group in the allegation that we withheld adverse information about Alka-Seltzer from the FDA and the Antacid Advisory Panel. The research referred to was conducted by an independent expert gastroenterologist in Australia, and applying scientific methods, he concluded that Alka-Seltzer produced no significant increase in gastrointestinal blood loss."

The FDA noted that Miles Laboratories submitted the additional test data to it as part of the period of public comment which followed the April proposal that the panel's findings be made permanent. A spokesman said the agency "will fully consider Dr. Wolfe's and all other comments before taking final action on antacid products."

Panel to study status of state-employed women

A study will be undertaken by a committee of the Illinois House of Representatives to determine the status of women in the employ of the state, the largest single employer in Illinois.

The committee was created by a resolution offered in the last legislative session by Rep. Eugenia S. Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, who reported that 22 of 39 legislative measures offered in the last session dealing with sex equality were passed by both houses and are now awaiting Gov. Daniel Walker's approval.

According to Mrs. Chapman, the committee will "survey all branches of state government to determine the number of women and minority group employees and their distribution as to age, sex, rank, compensation, length of employment, and promotion patterns; and make recommendations to eliminate abuses."

Said Mrs. Chapman, "If equal opportunity in employment is offered to all citizens by Illinois government, a great advance will be made in fair treatment for all."

Among the measures dealing with equality that passed the legislature were nine of 10 bills sponsored by all eight women legislators in the House to revise existing statutes to eliminate discriminatory measures against women.

Eugenia S. Chapman

Rep. Virginia Macdonald

"In addition," said Mrs. Chapman, "legislation was passed which prohibits sex discrimination in the issuance of credit cards, removes provisions excluding pregnancy from disability benefits in certain governmental pension systems, and eliminates discrimination in the Workmen's Compensation Act."

A freshman legislator, Rep. Virginia Macdonald, R-Arlington Heights, achieved what she considered a major victory through an unsuccessful attempt to pass a piece of legislation in her first session.

The bill was one which would have created juvenile courts in branches of the Cook County Circuit Court throughout the suburbs, removing the necessity for parents and children involved in juvenile cases to travel to the Criminal Courts Building in Chicago.

Although the bill failed to pass, efforts in its behalf prompted Chief Circuit Judge John S. Boyle to order an experimental project in the Niles or Skokie branch courts. According to Judge Boyle, if the pilot project is successful, juvenile sessions will be held in other suburban courts, the intent of Mrs. Macdonald's bill.

REP. AARON JAFFE, D-Skokie, will attempt in the fall session of the legislature to reinstate a law requiring motorcyclists to wear protective headgear.

Such a law was in effect for about a year-and-a-half in Illinois until the Supreme Court ruled in 1971 that cyclists could not be required to wear equipment for their own safety.

Jaffe will rely on the argument that non-helmeted or barefooted cyclists pose a threat to others, however. His proposal also would require operators of cycles to wear shoes.

"I am confident that the non-helmeted or improperly shod motorcyclist is a very real threat to pedestrians and drivers on our streets and highways," Jaffe said. "There is considerable proof that blows to the head from ricocheting objects in the street and delayed or misplaced reaction by bare feet or stubbed toes do cause needless accidents."

Jaffe said there were 93 motorcycle deaths in Illinois during the 17 months that the helmet law was in effect. In the 19 months since its repeal, there have been 206 such deaths.

The Doctor Says...by Dr. Lawrence Lamb

Butter: 10 times more saturated fat than margarine

Dear Dr. Lamb — The reader who thinks margarine is an unsaturated fat is quite mistaken. All solid fats are saturated. Some more, some less, and the difference between natural butter and margarine is really insignificant. Butter is a natural fat with vitamins and an incomparable flavor. Margarine is a hydrogenated fat with artificial color and flavor. Readers who have been advised against the use of saturated fats should stay with corn or safflower oil only.

Dear Reader — I'm sorry but it sounds to me like you've gotten some misinformation. Your statement might have been correct for margarine made 30 years ago. Fifty-six per cent of the fat in butter is saturated fat, 33 per cent is monounsaturated fat, and only 2.5 per cent is polyunsaturated fat.

One of the typical leading commercial margarines is only 16 per cent saturated fat, and it has 26 per cent polyunsaturated fat. This is more than 10 times as much polyunsaturated fat as butter and less than a third as much saturated fat. These are the facts of the situation, regardless of how you might feel about it. Many of the other commercial margarines are of the same relative values. These figures are from the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

In general, the margarines that are packaged in tubs, and tend to be soft, contain more polyunsaturated fat and less saturated fat than those that are in stick form or more solid. While solid fats tend to be saturated fats, this is not entirely true. Coconut oil is liquid, and it's 86 per cent saturated fat, a much higher percentage than you would find in butter, lard or beef tallow.

Another difference between most commercial margarines manufactured today, and butter, is the cholesterol content. Margarines made of vegetable fats contain no cholesterol, since vegetables don't contain cholesterol. Butter, however, does — about 250 milligrams in 100 grams (3 and one-half ounces). One stick or quarter pound of butter then contains about the same amount of cholesterol that you'll find in one egg yolk. Because of the tendency to fortify milk, butter and margarine contain approximately the same amounts of vitamins.

HAVING STRAIGHTENED out the facts, let me say that I would agree with the idea that, where possible, individuals would be better off using corn oil or safflower oil if they want to decrease the saturated fat intake in their diet. For cooking purposes you can use these, and if you want a buttery flavor you can add artificial butter flavoring or butter salt where they can be used.

In the interest of improving the ratio of polyunsaturated fat to saturated fat in commercial margarine, you can use a trick I've found satisfactory. Use two tubs of margarine with one tub of safflower oil. Whip them well in a mixer, and of course you'll have a softer mix when you're through.

Store it in the refrigerator. If you like it harder, store it in the freezer compartment. It is still spreadable, but a great deal softer, which some people may like. Dilution of the margarine with one-third safflower oil greatly improves the ratio, since safflower oil is only eight per cent saturated fat and 72 per cent polyunsaturated fat.

Oswald: "One of the great advantages of the Jacoby transfer bid is that it makes it hard for the defenders when they have to play against a strong concealed hand with the trump length in dummy."

Jim: "This last is in addition to the fact that the opening lead is likely to help declarer."

Oswald: "North's two-diamond response was a Jacoby transfer and South dutifully bid two hearts. North was delighted to pass and East saw no reason to reopen."

Jim: "West certainly didn't have any sort of attractive lead. What did he open?"

Oswald: "He opened the seven of trumps. Dummy played low as did East and South was on lead with the jack. He led a club toward dummy. East's ace captured the queen and East led the seven of diamonds. South played the nine. West took the trick with the 10; cashed the ace and then decided to keep on with his original plan of trump leads. This was just what declarer wanted. He pulled the last trump; discarded dummy's last diamond and one spade on good clubs and conceded a spade to make one overtrick."

Jim: "A third diamond lead by West

Contributions can be cleared

Tax-exempt status awarded to the Omni-House center

by JEANNETTE De WYZE
Omni House: Youth Services Bureau has received tax exempt status from the Internal Revenue Service, according to Richard Wynn, president of the Omni House board.

The status officially recognizes the bureau as a not-for-profit organization which operates in the public interest, thus qualifying it for the tax exemption.

Wynn said the bureau received state recognition of its not-for-profit status months ago, but said the IRS recognition had been delayed seven months.

HE SAID one immediate result of the long-awaited recognition will be to allow for the clearance of two contribution checks from the Wheeling/Buffalo Grove United Fund and the Weboldt Foundation totaling more than $15,000.

Foundations and the United Fund can donate money only to tax exempt organizations.

In addition to allowing for the final clearance of money already pledged, Wynn said the status change will make two other dramatic differences to the bureau.

First, the bureau will be able to seek money from other foundations. Wynn said that campaigns to raise foundation money in the past have been frustrated by the lack of a tax-exempt status.

Secondly, the changed status now should allow for more individual contributions than ever, Wynn said.

"THERE ARE A number of people who are interested in supporting this kind of an organization, and understandably so, because the organization is working in a beneficial way with the youth of America. This change should now enable them to make donations," he said.

Omni House director Peter Digre said the tax-exempt status is retroactive to June 29, 1972, the date of the organization's incorporation. Thus, everyone who has already donated to Omni House may claim the contributions as deductions if the contributions meet with the IRS criteria.

He said even though he is "remarkably pleased with our financial development so far," he expects more financial support forthcoming as a result of the new status.

OMNI HOUSE already has collected around $140,000 for the upcoming year. Churches, PTA's, social services, local governments and businesses already have contributed. About 40 individuals also have made donations, he said.

Digre said the organization is hoping to raise around $7,000 to $8,000 more by the beginning of October.

"We should then have plenty of money for the year and we may even be able to increase our services consistent with the population growth," he said.

Park district booze law—does it need to be changed?

by JILL BETTNER

The summer season of community-wide beer and brat fests, carnivals and old-fashioned picnics brings with it a recurring problem for local park districts unable to allow beer drinking on park property.

Park districts are not permitted by Illinois law to allow the sale of alcoholic beverages on park land. However, the state law leaves it up to the local park districts to determine if liquor can be consumed on park land.

Buffalo Grove and Wheeling, like most area park districts, adopted local ordinances to prohibit alcoholic beverages on park property.

Buffalo Grove park commissioners, however, recently agreed to consider revising the ordinance to allow them to make some exceptions to the rule.

THE BOARD last week agreed to consider changing the ordinance at the request of Dick Guttman, president of the Buffalo Grove Jaycees.

Guttman asked the board for permission to serve beer at a Jaycee picnic and meeting Aug. 8 at Emmerich Park.

When Park Board Pres. Gene Muryn denied the request because of the ordinance, Guttman asked the commissioners to think about changing it.

"My thought was that perhaps times have changed a bit — we're a long ways from Prohibition and you might think about revising the ordinance," he said.

MURYN SAID park district attorney John Sullivan had earlier advised him that in order to change the measure, the current law would have to be repealed and another ordinance adopted.

"I'm just afraid we could be opening a Pandora's box," he said. "Any new ordinance would have to be very guardedly written."

Groups staging community activities on park land sometimes go to great lengths to get around the liquor ban, selling beer in the street in front of the park where the event is going on or on nearby public or private land.

Buffalo Grove residents who attended the recent Beer and Brat Fest at Emmerich Park had to go across the street to purchase and drink beer. The beer concession during Buffalo Grove Days Aug. 31 through Sept. 3 will be in the same area.

WHEELING PARK Supt. Dave Phillips said he gets requests from persons wanting to drink beer in parks all the time.

"We usually refer them to the Forest Preserve District or tell them they're welcome to use some other public land," he said.

Many Wheeling residents have commented that both Heritage Park and Chamber of Commerce Park would make ideal locations for community activities. They have said, however, that because beer is not allowed in the parks, community organizations have been forced to seek other sites.

The Wheeling Brat 'N Beer Fest will be Sunday on the grounds of the Wheeling Trust and Savings Bank. The picnic has been there for several years.

The annual Jaycees Carnival, where beer was sold for the first time this year, was conducted in the parking lot of Wickes Furniture Co.

Coordinator hired to aid kids in first-grade move

by JEANNETTE De WYZE

The Dist. 21 school board Thursday night approved the hiring of a primary coordinator to help kindergarten youngsters make a smooth transition to the first grade.

Frances Voris will fill the new coordinator's position. Miss Voris comes to Dist. 21 after working as an elementary reading teacher and reading consultant in Iowa schools.

Her function will be to coordinate kindergarten readiness material with first grade subject matter to allow children to progress at their own rate, particularly in reading and math.

Another major responsibility of the new coordinator will be to work with the district's motor facilitation program which is designed to help children develop coordination.

In the past, only kindergarten children have participated in the program, but school officials plan to expand the program to include first and second grade children who have coordination problems.

THE MOTOR program coordinator's position has been combined with the job of physical education coordinator in the past. Now Pat Ropp will fill the role of district physical education coordinator.

According to Marjorie Ben, curriculum director, three parent and kindergarten teacher workshops will be conducted during the school year to discuss the motor facilitation program.

The board also authorized the hiring of Thomas F. O'Brien, as district media coordinator.

The board discussed a request from Commonwealth Edison for an easement for underground lines along the south border of Tarkington School, but decided to take no action.

Although the electric company has agreed to restore the swale in the area to its original condition and grade, the board decided to seek further assurance that the company would also assume the cost for excavating the lines if their removal is necessary in the future.

IN OTHER action, the board authorized the issuing of tax anticipation warrants on 75 per cent of the 1973 education and building fund tax levy. The warrants are essentially a bank loan to be repaid when the 1973 tax levy is collected in 1974. Similar warrants have been issued for several years.

John Barger, assistant superintendent are necessary in rapid growth areas, because of the constant expansion of the school populations.

"If you didn't issue the warrants then you'd essentially be using last year's money to pay for next year's expenditures," he said.

It also was announced at the meeting that the district has filed its claim for state aid for the upcoming year. The district will claim $3.08 million in state aid, based on a daily attendance figure which has increased by 150 students per day over last year.

The claim is more than the figure the district had originally budgeted for state aid, according to Jim Gochis, the district secretary.

'It's lonely without the kids'

Custodians spiff up schools for fall

by JEANNETTE De WYZE

When Dist. 21 school children pour out of the schools for their summer vacations, the buildings they leave behind bear the marks of a long year of hard use.

Scuffed floors show the signs of the thousands of feet which have passed over them in the months past; paper airplanes remain wedged in obscure places, and the collected graffiti from a year can be found on desks, lockers, everywhere that a literary child could place a pencil.

But when the children flock back in the fall, the buildings will gleam and sparkle, almost as clean as new.

Drug overdose in girl's death?

Although the exact cause of death has not been determined, Buffalo Grove police believe Dawn Saloga, 14, of 843 Hawthorne Rd., may have died from a drug overdose.

Miss Saloga was discovered Thursday morning on the bathroom floor by her sister, Joeli, 13. Buffalo Grove firemen responded but were unable to revive her. Police said the girl had been dead for several hours.

Police said several containers of pills was found in the girl's bedroom. Two tablets also were found in a kitchen cabinet. The tablets had been prescribed by a physician for the girl's father, Ernest, police said.

Although police said they did not know if Miss Saloga had taken any of the pills, they were told by the girl's parents that she had been depressed for several days prior to her death. The parents told police she had been upset over problems she was having with her boy friend.

Miss Saloga was pronounced dead on arrival at Northwest Community Hospital and taken to the Cook County Morgue. A spokesman for the coroner's office said tests were being run to determine what caused the girl's death.

Police said Miss Saloga was a recent graduate of Cooper Junior High School and was scheduled to start high school in the fall.

THE DIRT'S GOT TO GO, and the Dist. 21 custodial staff is working hard to banish it during the summer months. Here custodians Martin Charo and Gus Klein tackle the walls of one classroom in the Cooper Junior High School. The staffs will cover almost every inch of the schools before the children return for fall classes.

THE MAGICIANS responsible for the yearly transformation are the district's custodial staff, who spend the last weeks of each summer going over the buildings from top to bottom.

Each summer the staff cleans every light, wall, piece of furniture, in fact, virtually every inch of the district school buildings. In addition, summer is the time for the maintenance department to do any necessary repairs, which can range from plumbing to electrical work to tearing down walls.

Summer is the only time the staffs have a chance to thoroughly clean the buildings. During the regular school year and when summer school classes are in session, the men are kept busy just cleaning up after the thousands of people who use the buildings day and night. Janitors dust and sweep every room each day, but there is no opportunity for major cleaning.

In mid-July, however, the custodial staff goes into heavy action. To do the job, there are 35 full-time men on the staff and extra summer workers are also hired. Given the job they have to do, they need every man on the staff.

ACCORDING TO Jess Mata, supervisor of the district custodial staff, there is an average of 30 rooms in each of the district's 15 schools. Each room contains 35 or more pieces of furniture and the rule of the staff is that everything must shine.

The custodians move through the buildings room by room, first tackling the lights, walls, blackboards, desks and tables. Then they thoroughly wash the inside windows and floors, finishing off the linoleum floors with three coats of wax.

All carpeting in the building also is scrubbed and washed. The finishing touches come a week or two before school reopens when all the outside windows are washed until they sparkle.

The men take an obvious pride in their work. Gus Klein, chief custodian at Cooper Junior High School in Buffalo Grove, compared the children's school desks before and after the men had worked on them. The tone of accomplishment in this voice was apparent.

"Just look at these desks," he said, pointing out the dirt, the penciled doodlings, and the everpresent gum stuck into cracks underneath the desktops.

"IF THE KIDS would just stick their gum on the flat parts of the desks it'd be easy to get off. But no, they've got to stick it in the cracks," he said with a wistful chuckle.

"Still, we get it all off," he said proudly, waving his hand over a row of scrubbed desks. The men tackle the persistent grime with a special extra-powerful cleaner.

Although the men only can do a thorough cleaning job when the children have left for vacations and sun, there is one disadvantage to working in the empty schools — loneliness.

"To tell you the truth, I'd rather have the kids around. This place really is lonely without them, which is why I try to keep the radio going. But it's really like a morgue," Klein said.

MATA ALSO indicated that the children are an important part of the janitors' regular jobs.

"I think if you had men who didn't love kids, they wouldn't stick around for long," he said.

Still, although the men may be lonely during the summer, they know they have a big job to do in time for the children's return and they seem proud to get it done.

"We'll have this place all nice and shiny when the kiddies come back in September," said Klein, with a contented grin.

Knife-wielding robber of 5 stores still sought

Mount Prospect and Des Plaines police are coordinating efforts to catch a knife-wielding grocery store bandit they believe robbed five stores last week.

The bandit struck twice Friday, grabbing $140 from the Convenient Food Mart 1700 W. Algonquin Rd., Mount Prospect, and an undisclosed amount from the Open Pantry Store, Touhy Avenue and Cedar Street, Des Plaines. The three earlier robberies were in Des Plaines.

"There's no doubt about it," Mount

Prospect Police Sgt. Ralph Doney said Friday, when asked if the Mount Prospect store had been robbed by the same man who robbed the Des Plaines stores.

At 9:45 a.m. Friday, the bandit, armed with a four-inch knife, entered the Convenient Food Mart and ordered the clerk to empty the cash register and open the safe. He brandished the knife as he said, "Give me your money," according to police.

FRIDAY'S SECOND robbery was at

2:15 p.m. Des Plaines police would not release many details about the armed robbery, but did say the description was the same as in the past four robberies and the man spent only a short time in the store.

According to a police radio dispatch, the robber was seen leaving the Open Pantry store in a late model, metallic green Mustang.

Police described the robber as 18 to 20 years old, 5 feet, 10 inches, 150 to 160 pounds, with dark blond shoulder-length hair.

MOUNT PROSPECT police said the man wore sunglasses, a light blue faded sweatshirt and grey washpants. He ran out of the store and between some nearby buildings, where he was last seen by witnesses.

If, as police believe, the robber is the same in all five cases, Friday's Mount Prospect haul was his known largest. Last Wednesday he entered the Convenient Food Mart, 1703 Oakton St., Des Plaines, threatened the manager with a knife and left with more than $100 in cash. That was shortly before 9 p.m.

A 7-Eleven food store, 810 S. Elmhurst Rd., Des Plaines, was robbed of $50 Tuesday and another 7-Eleven, at 811 W. Golf Rd., Des Plaines, was robbed of $100 Monday.

Reportedly, Des Plaines police are following several leads, none of which have been disclosed.

Christianity and football—the theology of perspiring

"Christianity and pro football are very compatible." — Tom Landry, Head Coach, Dallas Cowboys

This remarkable statement was made last fall, about a sport which opened its annual (and almost endless) season last week, with the College All-Star Game.

Coach Landry made this statement shortly after Fleming Revell released a paperback book entitled "Supergoal — Great Football Pros On The Game Of Life, With Billy Zeoli."

Zeoli holds pre-game evangelistic services for various pro football teams. A photograph on the back of this book shows him with coach Landry, star quarterback Roger Staubach and a blackboard. Caption:

"BILLY ZEOLI explains God's Game Plan..."

(That's precisely what is says on that blackboard: "GOD'S GAME PLAN," complete with diagrams.)

Not to be for one moment outdone, the frenetic mentor of the Washington Redskins, coach George Allen, has secured a to a m chaplain: Harlem-Gan-Leader-Turned-Evangelist Tom Skinner.

According to the Washington Star News religion writer Bill Willoughby:

"Skinner shows them the Locker Room Jesus, the man with hair on his chest and sweat on his brow and dirt under his fingernails. The man who needs a deodorant."

This theology of perspiration, as endorsed by such eminent jocks, was accentuated by a nationally televised Red-skin Prayer Meeting in Thanksgiving to God after the tromping of Landry's Cowboys. (There was no such telecast, however, when the Skins were subsequently swallowed by the Dolphins of Miami in the Super Bowl.)

YET THIS muscular faith very nearly came apart in December. For a flanker back of one of these devout coaches (Lance Alworth of the Cowboys) virtually put out of the game a linebacker (Red-skin Jack Pardee) belonging to the other — in what Brother Allen angrily charged was an illegal crack-back block designed and repeatedly ordered by Brother Landry.

The holy gridiron boated further as linebacker Pardee growled:

"That's what comes from the all-righteous Tom Landry who is holier than thou and all good!"

In response, coach Landry announced, "We didn't do anything illegal."

But meanwhile there was an additional detractor of the carefully nurtured aura of sanctified stadium turf. For the Dean of St. Louis University's Divinity School, Jesuit Father William J. Sullivan, writing in the national Jesuit magazine America, described: "The pro football mania... the fall war games conducted by the mercenaries of the National Football League."

What an increasing number of critics describe as "America's new religion," is, writes Father Sullivan, "A human demolition derby... a business that masquerades as a sport."

FATHER SULLIVAN quotes Joe Namath's description of pro football's image ("Brutality") as well as Los Angeles Ram Merlin Olsen's statement: "By the end of the game, you're an animal."

Despite this, pro football will probably play religion for all it is worth this fall — probably because this kind of far-fetched holiness is bought by many — including those simple enough to rationalize that watching a team with a Locker Room Jesus is a sufficient surrogate for worship at one's church or synagogue.

Fortunately, college football appears to be outgrowing this shoulderpad religion, as indicated by the statement of Notre Dame's Ara Parseghian: "A football team is certainly not a religion."

The Lighter Side

by Dick West

WASHINGTON — Memory courses used to be a popular form of self-improvement and I still see them advertised occasionally.

But since the Watergate hearings began it has become apparent that total recall is not necessarily as desirable a skill as it is cracked up to be.

There may be times in your life — during a Senate investigation, for example — when you will be better off if certain names, faces, dates, events, places and conversations have faded from memory.

I was talking about this the other day with Bernal Slipmind, founder and proprietor of the Slipmind School of Selective Amnesia.

SLIPMIND, who offers correspondence courses in forgetfulness, told me his business had almost doubled during the Ervin committee inquiry.

"Most of our new enrollees are prospective witnesses taking crash courses to help eradicate the crabgrass in their garden of memories," he said.

I said, "Why is the ability to forget something advantageous?"

"Testimony about certain matters may be potentially embarrassing," Slipmind explained. "If you refuse to talk about them, you can get convicted of contempt of Congress."

"But if you can't remember anything about it, you're home free."

I said, "Why bother to take your course? Why not just feign forgetfulness?"

A dark scowl gathered upon Slipmind's countenance. "That would be perjury," he growled. "Surely you aren't suggesting that any of the witnesses would profess disrememberance of something they actually could recollect?"

I APOLOGIZED for mentioning that possibility and asked Slipmind how he got started in the selective amnesia field.

"In the early days," he said, "practically all of my business came from the lovelorn. At the end of a big romance, people would be trying to forget the sweethearts who had jilted them and would turn to me for help."

"Before I opened my school, the only way to get over a love affair was to join the French Foreign Legion or sit on a barstool singing 'give me one more for my baby and one more for the road.'"

I asked Slipmind what method he used to teach forgetfulness.

"I can't give you the details without betraying trade secrets, but basically my system operates through mental blocks. A key word signals the brain and the memory sinks into the subconscious."

"How long does it remain beyond recall?"

"We guarantee it will stay forgotten for 90 days or until the hearing is over, whichever comes first."

(United Press International)

Restore memory by inoculation?

HOUSTON (UPI) — A European-born scientist, dismissing Orwellian fears of mass brainwashing, believes that within 50 years chemical injection may give an elderly person or accident victim the knowledge his weakened brain has lost.

Dr. George Ungar's success in isolating and reproducing the chemical elements of the memory code in mice and fish may help the old and retarded, but the potential misuse of his discovery is dangerous.

"There has not been a single discovery yet that did not have potential misuses," Ungar said. "The potential for benefit here is much greater than the possibility of misuse, as long as we keep it in the open."

Unger, a professor of pharmacology at Baylor College of Medicine, discovered in 1968 that he could condition mice to fear the dark, their natural habitat. He then injected a chemical extract of their brains into untrained mice.

THE RESULT disputed the idea that what a person knows can come only by instruction — the test mice immediately feared the dark.

In similar tests mice heard a bell every five seconds one hour a day for 10 days. Ungar again injected an extract of their brains into unconditioned mice who then had no fear of the bell.

Ungar also used electrical shock on goldfish to induce a fear of blue water. Unconditioned fish who received the chemical injection immediately were fearful of the water and avoided it.

Unger then succeeded in isolating part of the memory code for darkness in a chain of 20 amino acids or peptides. One was reproduced chemically to condition mice to fear the dark and Ungar named it "scotaphobin," from the Greek roots of fear and dark.

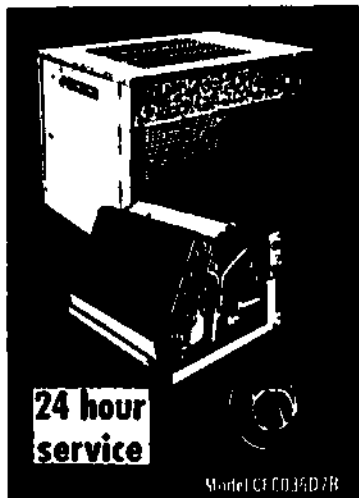

But the cigar-smoking scientist, born of French parents in Budapest 87 years ago, quickly admits that the "transfer of knowledge" is only transitory.

Arlington Park in the background, but the real race is on the highway.

Rte. 14: a bazaar of yesteryear and today

Old signs announcing forgotten tradesmen.

Beautiful, she ain't.

She is in fact an old and tired ruby-painted woman of a road, a road with the dust and muscle of commerce as her identity.

Northwest Highway is the name we call her. She runs hard and fast through the old railroad towns of the suburbs, from the Des Plaines River to the countryside west of Palatine.

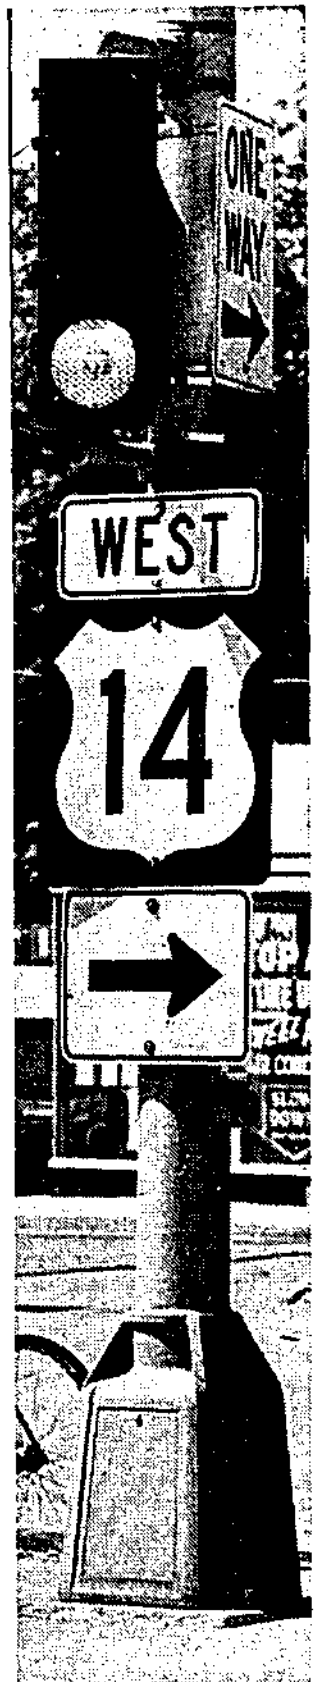

Rte. 14 is the number they gave her, but her personality is distinct, her character unique.

The view from the highway is many-textured and varied. Old signs, sometimes announcing long-forgotten tradesmen, still can be found clinging to the sides of buildings. New, gleaming block houses of offices also are here, their tinted windows reflecting back the image of the highway and those upon her.

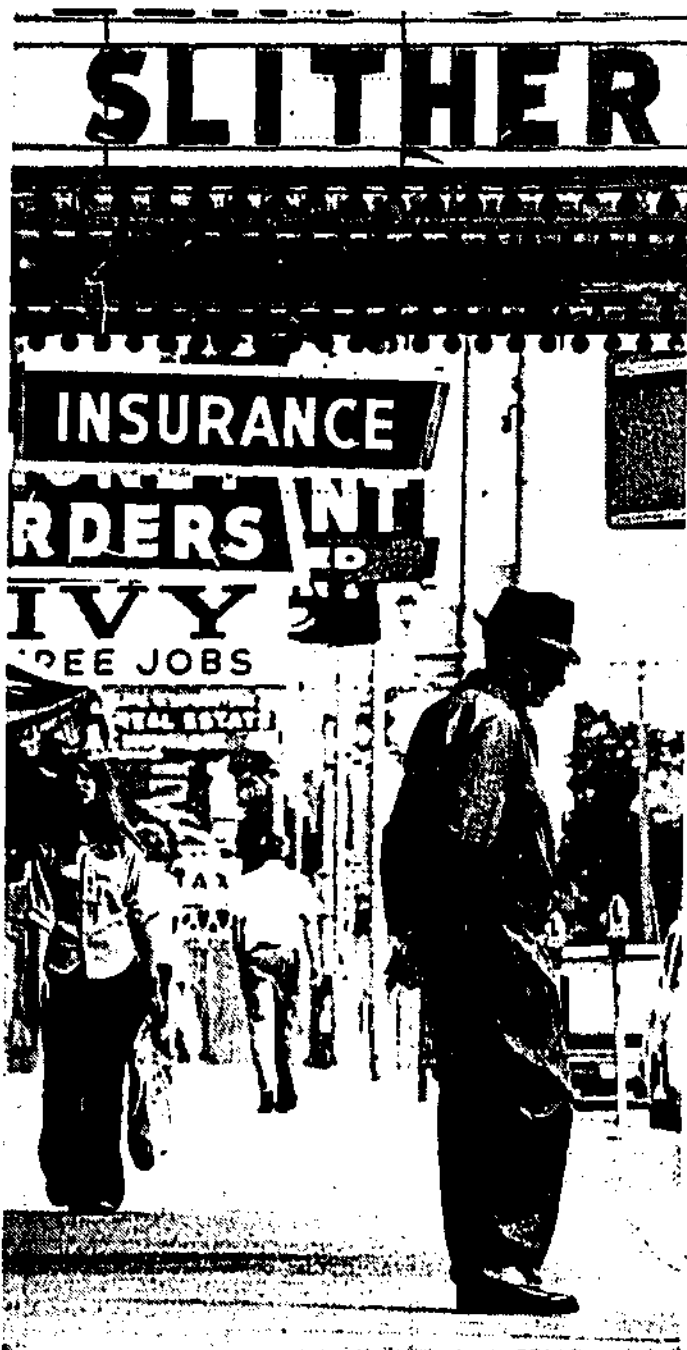

There are patches of greenery and houses occasionally, and there are places the highway becomes a downtown street.

But mostly the highway is a marketplace. Real estate, insurance, cars, doughnuts and gasoline for sale. The highway is part of the big hustle; buy what you need and be on your way.

Go somewhere else for cool lanes and quiet neighborhood streets. There is a feeling of motion on this old road. She is our thoroughfare, our main street. Our river.

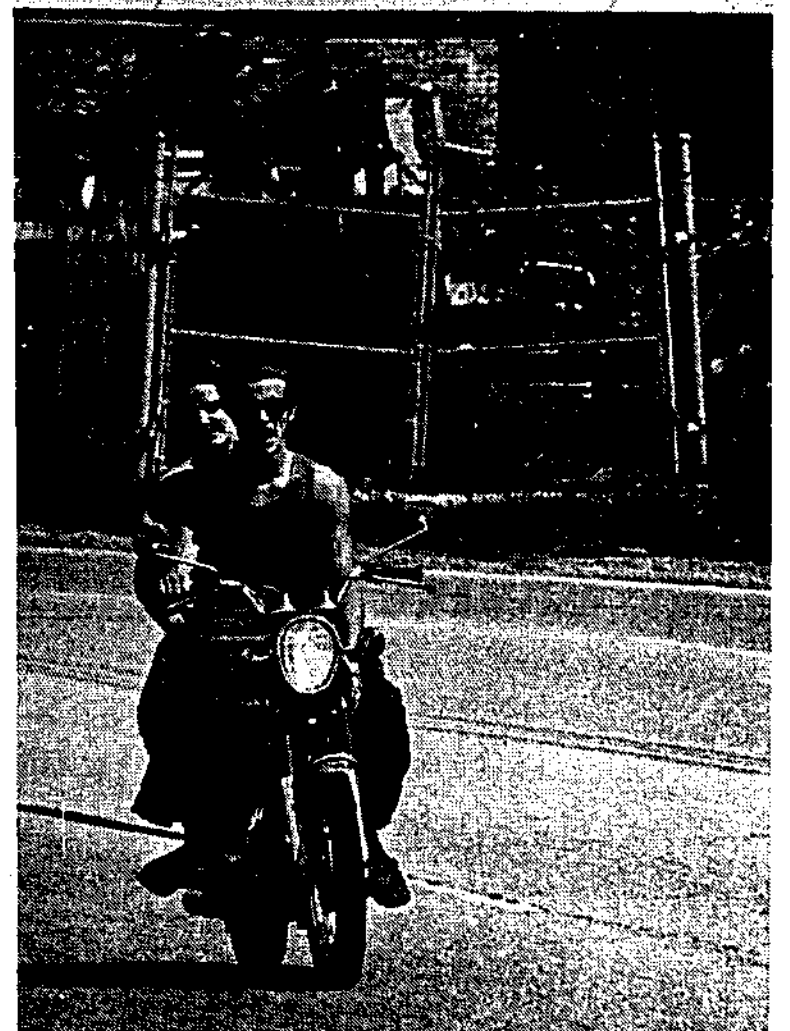

Photos by Bob Strawn

The highway is a downtown street in Des Plaines.

Everywhere, times are changing.

Vroom! Life on the pavement of Northwest Highway.

Trucks justified

This letter is in answer to part of your editorial of July 20, entitled "Local Junk Spends Our Cash." I do not intend to get into a discussion with you on the reason for your article, because I am not concerned about that.

I do take exception to your remarks concerning the Mercedes-Benz garbage trucks. The intonation being that these trucks somehow reflect the wealth of the City of Rolling Meadows. I would like you to know that your remark put in this light has removed you from the truth about as far as you can get.

As superintendent of public works for the City of Rolling Meadows at that time, it was my decision and my recommendation to the city council to purchase the units they presently have. This decision was not arrived at without serious consideration, as was all facets of the re-vamping of the garbage system for the city.

I might also point out that it was 1968 and early 1969 when these evaluations were being made. At that time the city was not receiving the monies it is today.

So, the whole change taking place in the garbage system was being done within the framework of limiting budget factors. The only motivating factor the mayor and city council had was to provide the finest service available at the lowest dollar cost to the residents.

What we wanted was the Gorman-built packer body with its constant load feature, ability to take a high degree of trash rapidly and other features that pointed the way to low upkeep and rapid loading on the routes. When working within a limited income, continuing economics are highly desirable.

The purchase of the Mercedes was just good sense derived from years of purchasing all types of equipment. This particular packer body had at that time been mounted on only one American chassis with less than acceptable results, where Mercedes had been mounting that packer body for 40 years. It could be safely assumed that all engineering problems had long since been designed out.

To my knowledge, we have never regretted our choice.

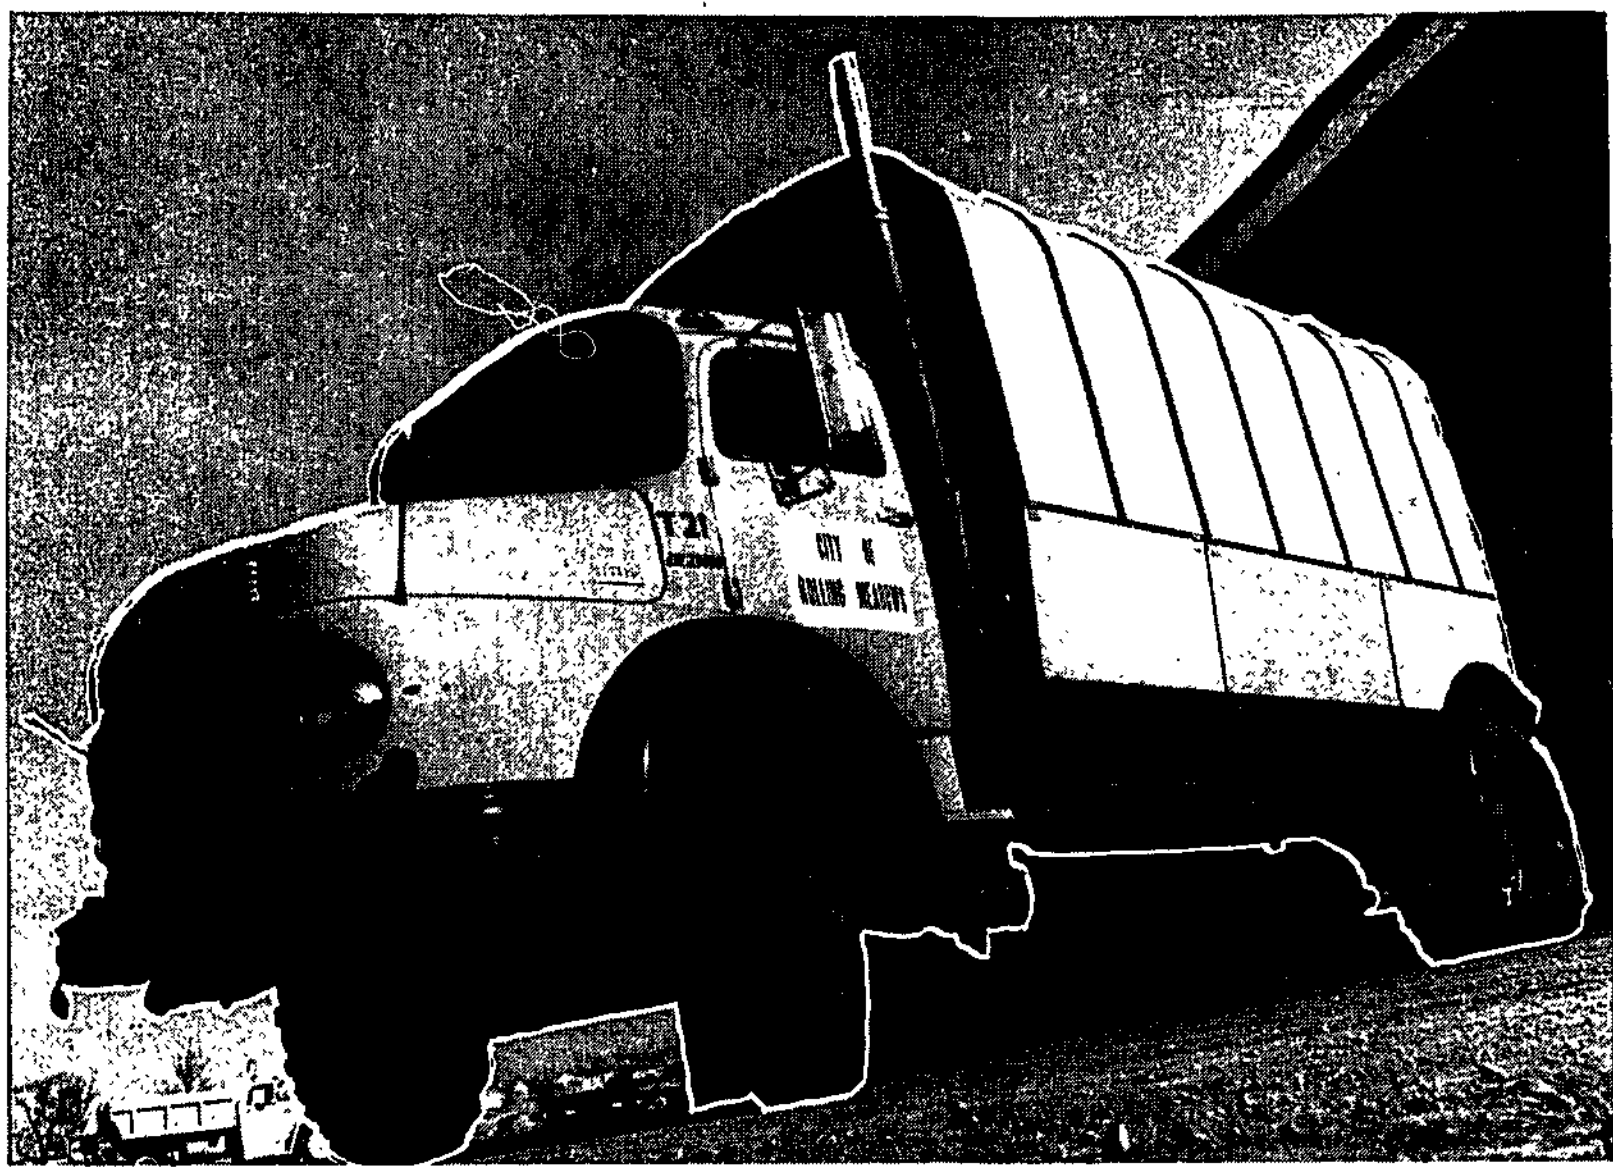

You may feel I am a little too sensitive to your remark; however, I am very proud of the City of Rolling Meadows and what it has accomplished in its brief history, and I get a little steamed when I hear remarks like this made from a position of ignorance of the facts.

All one has to do is visit 100 cities, as I have, and hear of their dissatisfaction with garbage service to realize the scope of what happened here.

Being in the limelight as they always are, the mayor and council are not always right. However, in this case I feel they demonstrated qualities of leadership far above what is normally found. In making this dramatic change, causing their garbage system to be a point of public pride, is an example of what I think good government is all about.

When is the last time you recorded a complaint from a resident of Rolling Meadows about the garbage system in the Fence Post?

Jim McFeggan

Partisan judicial politics

The Illinois legislature has provided the voters of the state an opportunity in the November, 1974, election to take a giant step — backward — in the method by which they select their judges.

Passed by both the House and the Senate in the recent session was a resolution calling for a referendum to amend the state constitution and revert to the partisan reelection of judges which was abolished more than 10 years ago.

In 1962, the voters approved a constitutional amendment which provided that judges, once elected in partisan contests, thereafter run for reelection without opposition, standing only on the question of whether they should be retained on the bench (which requires 60 per cent approval by the voters).

During the long campaign which led to the adoption of "judicial retention," the rallying cry of its supporters was "Take the judges out of politics!"

Hardly anyone would contend that judicial retention has completely removed judges from politics. Most of them still must gain the favor of the party in power in order to first be given the opportunity to be elected.

However, once on the bench, the fact that they are subsequently re-elected "on their record," relieves them of the necessity of returning to the party bosses at the end of each term to implore their renewed blessings. A return to a system of partisan reelection would again make it necessary for each judge to curry the favor of the ruling party every four years.

State Treasurer Alan J. Dixon, who was the chief architect of the present judicial election system during his days in the legislature in the late 1950s and early 1960s, is campaigning actively among legislators to have the question removed from the ballot.

We urge the legislature to heed his plan.

Only a simple majority vote in each house is needed, under the proposed constitutional amendment.

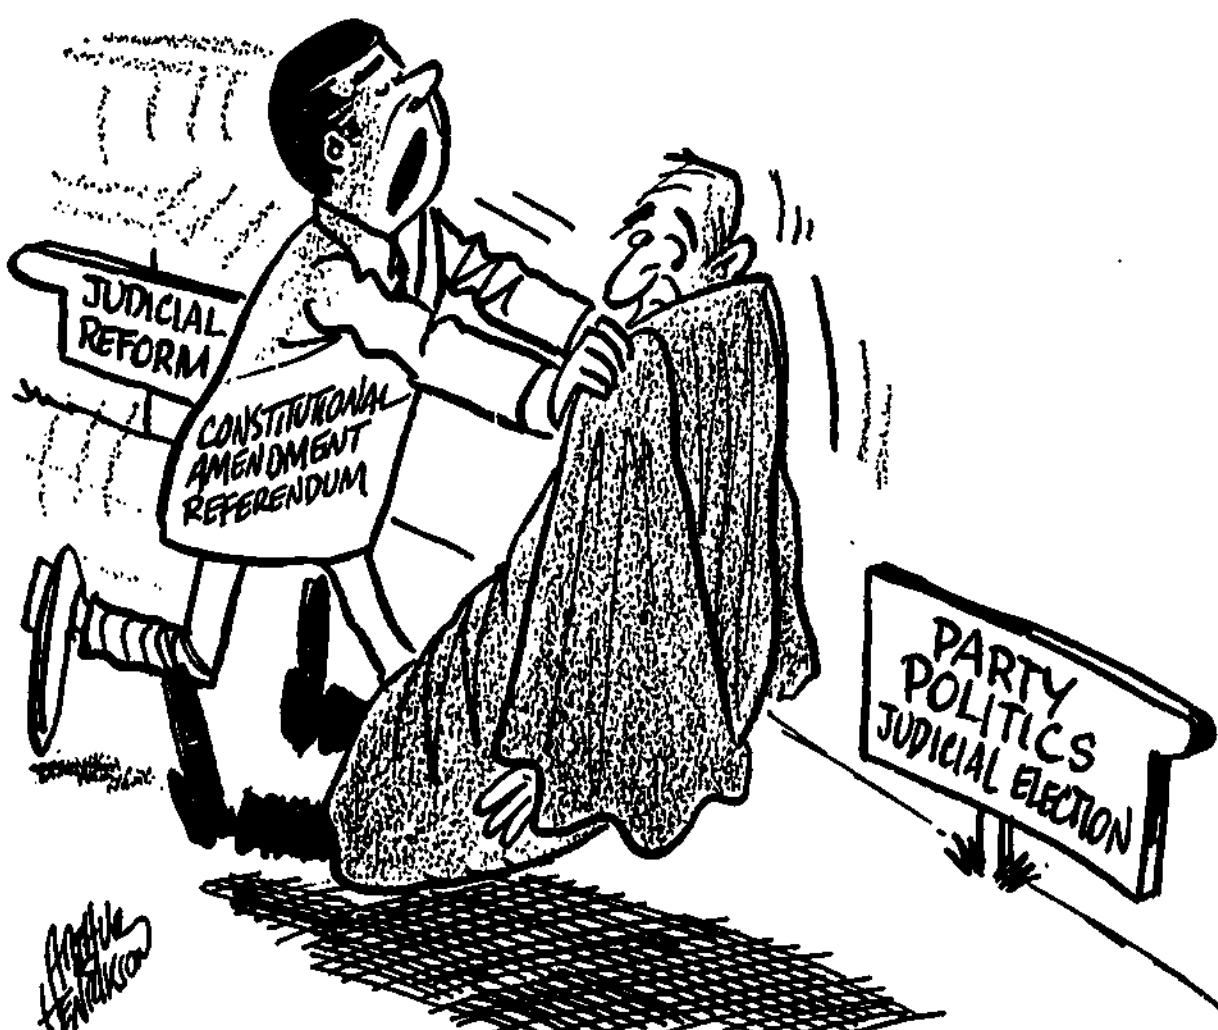

Dixon is the first to concede that judicial retention is not a perfect plan, and he also willingly admits the difficulty of removing a judge from the bench because of the relative anonymity of their office and the difficulty of the voters in spotting incompetents.

But Dixon correctly points out that the legislature could take steps to correct those problems, and he suggests the possibility of raising the approval percentage required to reelect a judge, and strengthening investigative and disciplinary powers of administrative agencies.

We hope the legislature will lay to rest this ghost of strictly partisan judicial politics.

Then it could resurrect yet another proposed constitutional amendment lying dormant in a Senate committee, one which would provide for non-electoral "merit selection" of all judges — and perhaps take one more step toward "taking the judges out of politics."

Lay council tells stand on abortion

On Sunday, April 8, the priests of St. James Catholic Church, in Arlington Heights, expressed to their parishioners their strong views against abortion. The members of the Parish Advisory Council felt that, when dealing with an issue of such importance, the laity should also examine and express their views on the subject.

The following statement was read and endorsed by the clergy at all Masses August 4 and 5:

IN JANUARY of this year, the Supreme Court overruled all state laws prohibiting abortion during the first three months of pregnancy and allowed only minor regulations and restrictions the second three months. There is now danger that the removal of legal prohibition will suggest there are no moral obstacles to abortion.

We, the members of St. James Parish Advisory Council, wish to reaffirm to this parish and to the community, our belief that human life begins at conception and that this life, with its potential, must be treated with dignity and sanctity. We do not believe that abortion is morally acceptable, and we denounce the casual taking of this human life in the name of over-population, correction of a mistake or as a matter of convenience.

We recognize problems involved in unwanted pregnancies but we believe that in an atmosphere of mutual trust and concern, accepting, listening to and understanding people, their feelings, behavior and needs — alternatives other than

Complainers unrealistic

We tend to agree with Mr. and Mrs. Martello's letter stating, "It's about time some satisfied customers speak up for Levitt & Sons."

We have lived in Sheffield Park East for 11 months now and have been very content. Every reasonable request that we called to Levitt's attention is rectified within a realistic time period. We feel the definition of "reasonable request" is the problem. Most people do not know what the builder is actually responsible for. However, if the chronic complainers wanted a custom built house they should have bought one (for double the price).

I PERSONALLY have occasion to inspect and appraise many homes in the Northwest Suburban area and find poor quality and shoddy workmanship. This is usually the fault of the sub-contractors, not the general contractors. Despite this fact, the general contractor is naturally responsible but not necessarily the cause.

We, too, sympathize with anyone who purchases a product and is unhappy — especially one as large as a house. But I ask you, is the industry you are affiliated with any better in truly satisfying every customer 100 per cent of the time?

Mr. and Mrs. Utzig
Schaumburg

Commendation for 'amateurs'

I am incensed with the remark attributed to Mayor Behrel in the Des Plaines Herald pertaining to Superblock, which was, "What happened last night shows the difference between the professionals and the amateurs on the city council."

This is a typical attitude of the so-called professionals who could care less what the people they are supposed to be representing feel on the subject.

In case the Mayor doesn't know it, he is at city council to break a tie vote and in case the so-called professionals on the city council do not realize it, they are there to represent the wishes of the people.

THANK GOD there are some members of the city council who are representing the wishes of their respective wards and not just "yes" men to the Mayor.

I am thankful the 6th Ward has a representative of the people, namely Carmen Sarlo. It is a shame the 6th Ward does not have two council members respecting the people's wishes.

I commend Ald. Chase, Ald. Meyer and Ald. Sarlo for having the courage to get out and do what is right. That is to represent the people. I am so glad they are so-called "amateurs" because the so-called "professionals" we do not need.

I know of what I speak because I attend council meetings.

Mary Lou Kraves

Business Today

by LEROY POPE

NEW YORK — The consumer-oriented paperback book has become a favorite marketing tool of big companies.

Popular Library of New York, a subsidiary of Columbia Broadcasting System, dominates the business of producing such books. That's largely because of the efforts of Irving Settel, professor of marketing at Pace University in New York and project manager for Popular Library.

"These books are part of integrated marketing programs worked out for the companies that buy them and distribute them," Settel explained.

Sponsors include such firms as Westinghouse Electric, Hilton Hotels, Boeing, the National Apple Institute, Weyenhauser, Merck, Vita Foods, Maytag and the Savings and Loan Foundation.

The books all bear the sponsor's name, have some degree of direct selling in them as well as general information and most of them are sold on newsstands at standard prices. They also are given away free or sold at reduced prices with the sponsor's merchandise. They are written by recognized authorities, not by company promotion departments.

AMONG THE more elaborate consumer-oriented paperbacks is the 224-page "Maytag Encyclopedia of Home Laundry," which sells on newsstands for $1.25 but costs home economics students only 60 cents. Buyers of Maytag washing machines get a free copy.

Westinghouse's entry is "The Betty Furness Westinghouse Cookbook." Blue Bonnet Margarine offers an elaborate cookbook.

The Savings and Loan Foundation's book is entitled "Managing Your Money for Retirement" and it already had two press runs of one million copies each.

The trend began in 1962, Professor Settel says. "There always have been promotional books prepared internally by companies, and some companies have offered previously published books as marketing premiums," he said. "Benjamin Co. of New York does a substantial business in the book premium field."

WHAT POPULAR Library did was to tailor the consumer-oriented book to the sponsor's marketing needs but have it done outside the company by professional author. The book must be good enough to sell on its merits as well as being used as a marketing tool.

The minimum order accepted is 100,000 copies. The plan of distribution must be such that the publisher and sponsor recover their costs from the initial press run.

Popular Library and the author also must be assured of a profit from the first run.

"But most of the books bring in several succeeding press run orders and good long range profits for Popular Library, the author and for the sponsor," Settel said. "I believe at least 70 per cent of the titles have been reordered. Although the sponsors don't tell us how much the books have done for them in terms of merchandise sales, obviously they wouldn't reorder if they were not a good proposition."

He said only two sponsors have canceled contracts in the 12 years Popular Library has been publishing such books. (United Press International)

Noise controls criticized

Criticism met last week's announcement of new pace-setting noise pollution control regulations by the Illinois Pollution Control Board.

"Industrial noise isn't a major noise polluter," complained Lester Brann, president of the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce. He says the new standards for curbing noise are "unworkable, premature and inconsistent."

The regulations impose strict limits on the intensity of noise coming from three major sources: industrial, commercial and residential. Auto and motorcycle race tracks are exempt for two years. Other exemptions, for three years, are drop forges, coupling of railroad cars and a number of other operations.

THESE ARE stationary limits on stationary sources of noise. Acting chairman of the Illinois Pollution Control Board (IPCB) Samuel Lawton, says he hopes controls on aircraft noise and other mobile sources will be adopted.

Brann sides with a number of motor race course owners who say that the new noise controls are faulty. For one thing, says the state chamber executive, industrial noise is insignificant in comparison with complaints about motor traffic noise. Only 12 per cent of the IPCC complaints involve industrial noise.

At best, the board's recommendations for noise limits are "guesstimates," adds Brann. He'd like to see an impact study of the regulations completed before they are enforced.

OTHER OBJECTIONS listed by Brann include: a lack of technology to guarantee compliance with the standards; the stringent regulations would lessen Illinois' appeal to new industry as a location site; and the state laws may be premature, causing later conflict with upcoming federal regulations.

With at least 80 million Americans affected by noise loud enough to interrupt conversation in their homes, says the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, there is an obvious need to control this form of pollution. Under the provisions of the Sound Control Act, the EPA is working out new standards for evaluating noise pollution.

Save and try a pick-your-own fruit field

by MERLE E. DOWD

Price freeze — even rollbacks — threaten shortages of canned and frozen fruits, vegetables, and meats by the end of summer. But, right now you can do something about both shortages and higher costs.

Can or freeze summer surplus crops you either raise or pick yourself or buy directly from farmers. Rural families put up garden produce regularly to last through the winter. If you don't grow your own, you can at least pick and preserve your own. Strawberry patches and berry farms teemed with amateur pickers earlier this spring. Strawberry jam brings back the taste of summer all through the winter blizzards.

U-pick fields for vegetables, peaches, apples, and other crops offer a great opportunity to pack your cupboard or freezer at big savings. For clues listen to radio appeals for pickers. Or, watch daily newspaper classified sections for orchards or fields open to pickers. Picking opportunities vary by season and location throughout the country. But, stay alert for peak supplies of fruit and local vegetables from truck farms. Instead of paying 59 cents for a 10-ounce cup of blueberries, you can pick your own for 30-40 cents a pound.

PLAN A mini-vacation or a long weekend trip when fruits or berries are ripe and bring back 50-100 pounds for freezing or making into jam and pie fillings. Postpone the chore of making syrup from berries by squeezing out the juice now and freezing it in bulk. During the winter thaw the juice, add sugar, and make it into pancake syrup as you need it. Another use of berries — make them into pies on an assembly line; then freeze them whole.

Fruit and vegetable growers operate two kinds of U-pick fields. Part of an orchard may be available to family picking from the beginning. Other parts may be opened to do-it-yourselfers after professionals have picked the fruit most suitable for packing and shipping. The fruit left may be too green or overripe at the first pass. Fruit too ripe for shipping tastes best if picked and processed quickly. Such fruit retains its tree-ripened flavor. Fruit too green on the first pass may be picked later with little loss of flavor.

Peas, corn, beans, cauliflower, tomatoes, and many other vegetables may be picked for canning or freezing. Or, search out truck farms where boxes of vegetables can be bought at roadside stands at big savings.

TRAVELING EXPENSES to U-pick orchards can reduce savings. So, plan to pick when returning from vacation trips. Or, stop at the roadside stands and buy peaches, apricots, apples, and other fruit in box lots at orchardside prices. Trade trips with friends — you haul boxes for them on one trip (along with your own) and they haul for you another time. Spread out the home labor for preserving in-season foods for later use. A canning bulletin with full information and step-by-step directions including heating times for fruits and vegetables is available from your local Cooperative Extension Service or county agent. Ask for "Home Canning of Fruits and Vegetables," No. G-8.

Freezing offers an alternative to canning and may cost less if you do not already own jars and lids. Consider storing foods for long periods in a leased frozen food locker rather than buying a freezer. If you already own a freezer, pack it full to reduce operating costs. Some foods, such as jelly, jam, and sliced fruit, maintain their fresh flavor better when frozen than when canned. Also, preparation of foods for freezing requires less time than for canning. The United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) also published "Home Freezing of Fruits and Vegetables," No. G-10 — also available from your local Cooperative Extension Service.

NOW NORTHWEST Trust & Savings BANK BOOSTS SAVINGS INTEREST TO A NEW HIGH.

New federal regulations permit new maximums in rates.
Our savers have been earning them since July 1.

Look at these new interest rates at NORTHWEST BANK and pick the plan that's best for you:

SAVINGS PLAN	OLD INTEREST RATE	NEW INTEREST RATE	REQUIREMENTS
Four-Year Certificate of Deposit	—	*7 1/2%	4 year account $10,000 minimum deposit
Four-Year Certificate of Deposit	—	*7%	4 year account $1,000 minimum deposit.
One-Year Certificate of Deposit	—	6%	1 year minimum on all deposits. $1,000 minimum deposit.

Golden Statement Savings Account	5%	5 1/2%	90-day time deposit account. $1.00 minimum balance.
Personal Statement Savings Account	4 1/2%	5%	No time restrictions. $1.00 minimum deposit.

*This is a present rate and it is subject to change due to money market conditions. We, therefore, recommend that you talk to our Savings Counselors for current rates.

IMPORTANT BULLETIN! Because of dramatic changes in federal regulations, NORTHWEST BANK is paying the new maximum on all existing and newly opened savings plans listed above. Present customers are already earning the new rates because the increase is automatically retroactive to July 1.

There's never been a better time or reason to open a bank savings plan. And not just at any bank. But at NORTHWEST BANK. The one with an unbeatable reputation for the best in personal service. And remember, all NORTHWEST BANK savings plans are federally insured by F.D.I.C. If you are not a saver at NORTHWEST BANK, why not check with your savings institution and see if you are earning the new maximum interest rate.

Back to school

Community colleges bridge the gap

(First in a series featuring a cross-section of northwest suburban women who have continued their education after a lapse of years — the college-level educational resources available to them, the difficulties and rewards, and the joys they have experienced as "mature learners." Today: the Community Colleges, Harper and Oakton.)

by ELEANOR RIVES

Mary Lankford of Hoffman Estates has always had a "tooth fetish." Now, at 42, she is well on her way to becoming a dental hygienist.

Sandy Wilen of Des Plaines has patiently waited for 11 years to go back to school. Now, at 35, she is sponging up knowledge that will equip her for a career in data processing.

Connie Kraft of Buffalo Grove is going to college for the first time in her life. In her early thirties, she is exploring a whole new world of education before she crystallizes her goal.

Monica Strissel of Des Plaines, 32, with no previous college education behind her, finds that Journalism appeals to her strongly. Now enrolled in a liberal arts course, she is considering going on for a degree in English.

WHAT DO THESE four women have in common?

They are all students at the two community colleges in this area: Harper in Palatine, Oakton in Morton Grove. Both are two-year institutions and both offer help and encouragement to women who wish to continue an interrupted education or to become college students for the first time.

Why a community college?

"Cs" tell the story. They are close, convenient, cheap and challenging. Furthermore, they offer a choice of either a career or college continuation program. And they both accept credits earned through CLEP (College Level Examination Program) scores.

MRS. EDWARD KRAFT, mother of 10-year-old Christi, began Harper last fall, cautiously sampling college-level learning with a three credit-hour psychology class. In spring she increased it to six hours; she will take another six hours this fall.

"I go to school on my own time, not my family's," said Connie. "My family comes first; that's why I don't carry many hours."

Connie admits she was scared at first. She is particularly grateful to a woman counselor who introduced her to tests of interest, personality and aptitude, and who has constantly encouraged and advised her along the way. Connie's long range plans have expanded to include about eight years of study and a bachelor's degree.

When she finished high school, advanced learning was of little or no interest to her. Today it is fascinating.

SAID MRS. RONALD WILEN of Des Plaines when questioned about adult women returning to school, "Look, if you're trying to show how terribly difficult it is, forget it! That's a lot of garbage. I've been waiting since 1957 to go back to school. When my youngest started first grade last year, I slipped in easily." The Wilens have a 12-year-old

MRS. IVAN LANKFORD, product of a poor high school education in Arkansas, is tooth conscious. "I love teeth," she said. "They are the first thing I notice when a person smiles."

In 1971 she decided she wanted to be a dental hygienist. Harper beckoned her through the catalog of a neighbor who was a nursing student there.

She talked with a Harper counselor, found she could dispense with some of the 85 hours required for the dental hygiene program — "They eliminate physical education for little old ladies," she laughed — and promptly applied. Only 45 persons were chosen from the 300 to 400 who applied. She was one of them.

"If you are chosen, you better consider yourself lucky!" she exclaimed.

MARY WAS accepted in March 1972, officially entered the dental hygiene program in September, going to Harper dur-

That's where I really want to excel."

MONICA STRISSEL painfully recalls her husband's death in June 1970. Left with three young daughters, Mrs. Strissel faced a tortuous summer of adjustment. In the fall, she enrolled at Oakton Community College.

"My views of life had been narrow," she said. "I had stereotyped ideas of a woman's role. Yet, dimly, I always felt there must be more challenge in life than just home and family."

Monica had never gone to college. So she took it in small doses, starting with only one subject.

"My teeth were chattering and my palms were wet that first semester I drove to Oakton," she recalled. "I went in feeling out-of-place, but I soon found out it was all in my own mind."

The first dose turned out to be a taste of something she had always wanted, and whetted her appetite for more. As soon as her youngest girl started school, she enrolled as a full-time student.

"CARRYING A FULL load was a little rough," she admitted, "but the kids didn't suffer. They were so cooperative. We followed a flexible schedule at home."

Monica found encouragement and inspiration from outstanding instructors such as Gene Lockwood, who "made me feel that what I was doing was important . . . that he could understand me as a woman"; and Jay Wollin, geology teacher who encouraged her to become involved in extra-curricular activities.

She finds a strong appeal in journalism, a satisfaction in writing, and has decided to go on for a degree in English, probably at Northeastern University.

"But there will always be a warm spot in my heart for Oakton," she said.

Next: Not only home, family, location and cost, but special career interests influence choice of schools for the mature student.

"Come my friends, 'tis not too late to seek a newer world."

daughter, Karen, and a 7-year-old son, David.

Sandy, who had previously attended the University of Chicago for a year and a half, decided not to transfer her credits but to enter a career program at Oakton. Her first bite was a big one — nine credit-hours last fall, followed by 12 hours in the spring. "Twelve hours is a healthy load for anyone also playing wife and mother," she declared.

Enrolled in the data processing career program, she will earn her associate of applied science degree in about two more years. She may decide to go on for a bachelor's degree at another college. "But I don't have to think about that now," she said.

Degree or no, Sandy fully intends to continue college courses at least until her son is in junior high school. "For 11 years I've been confined to my home," she said. "Now it's time to enjoy the intellectual stimulation of school."

ling the hours that 10-year-old Keith was in school. She has also attended some night classes and the current summer session. She hopes to graduate in June 1974 with an associate degree in science.

The younger students love to tease her, affectionately call her "little old lady" — she's only 42 — and have accepted her beautifully.

Mary Lankford loves the clinical portion of the program. Learning to save teeth and gums through the plaque control program has been an exciting experience for her.

"To be perfectly honest," she said, "I'm not wild about every subject. But I can hardly wait to get in that clinic and get those instruments in my hands."

Especially for the Family

Harper, Oakton offer career, transfer programs

Learning for living as well as learning for earning is the policy at both community colleges in the northwest suburban area, Oakton, in Morton Grove, and Harper, in Palatine.

William Rainey Harper College serves Palatine, Schaumburg, Elk Grove and Wheeling Townships and Barrington High School District 224. Oakton Community College serves Niles and Maine Townships.

Both colleges have an extensive and stimulating continuing education program and numerous seminars to help adults get back into the educational swing of things.

THE CURRICULUM at these two colleges encompasses a one-year certificate program, or a two-year associate degree in a vocational field or in a pre-senior college program.

At both institutions, the mature woman who has never been to college or whose college education was interrupted or who wants to brush up on her skills is welcomed. Knowledge she has acquired through job experience, intensive reading, correspondence courses or radio or TV courses may be evaluated by testing to qualify for academic credit toward an undergraduate degree. Credits earned through CLEP (College Level Examination Program) are accepted at both institutions.

Counselors at both schools help students determine their fields of interest and course of study. Day care and sitting service are available to children of adult students on a limited basis.

HARPER HAS available a slide-tape presentation called "Choice for Tomorrow" which tells the story of the mature woman returning to college. Written and prepared by Shirley Garrison and Suzanne Havlic, two women who themselves went through Harper, the slide-tape may be scheduled for group showing by calling the Community Relations office, 397-3000, extension 261.

At Harper, fall classes begin Sept. 10. Women interested in fall classes are advised to get in touch with the Office of Admission, Harper College, Algonquin and Roselle Roads, Palatine, Ill. 60067 or telephone 397-3000 as soon as possible.

Oakton's fall classes begin Aug. 27. Open registration will be held Aug. 22 and 23. Persons planning to attend should immediately contact the Admissions Office, Oakton Community College, 7900 N. Nagle Ave., Morton Grove, Ill. 60053, or telephone 967-5120.

SHHH, MAMA'S DOING her homework! Mrs. Monica Strissel of Des Plaines finds that her belated college education is helping her to be a more informed and better mother to daughters (rear to front) Susan, 12; Kathy, 10; and Lisa, 8. Much broader is her view of woman's role since she began classes at Oakton Community College.

Mary Sherry

Everything is relative

Every year the world seems smaller to me. I am constantly meeting people from the small town where I grew up and from other cities in which I have lived. I continually discover that many friends I have known other friends of mine, and so many people I encounter know my relatives.

Recently I had one of those relative-meeting experiences, and for a moment felt that there was no place left to hide. I had the feeling that I'm related to everybody. Then I learned that I am.

Genealogists believe that everyone in the world is related. In fact it can be calculated mathematically that everyone is at least a 32nd cousin to everyone else.

That fact really intrigued me when I read it, and I was expressing this interest to my best friend (relative) and next-door neighbor, Alice Flaxton. Alice remained rather unmoved by the whole idea.

"IT MAY EXPLAIN why we seem to live on a shrinking planet," Alice grudgingly admitted, "but I don't see what other value knowing such a fact could have."

"But Alice," I protested, "if this were publicized, just think what it could do to promote brotherly — or cousinly — love throughout the world."

Alice snorted at my idea.

"Don't you think people would be more sensitive to the needs of other people if they knew they were relatives?" I asked.

"Not at all," Alice replied. "In fact, I think I could be more tolerant of a shiftless stranger than of a shiftless 29th cousin."

I had to admit that Alice had a point there. However, it wasn't enough to significantly lessen my new optimistic way of looking at humanity.

ALICE, SEEING she had gained ground with her argument, persisted. "Wouldn't you rather lend money to a friend than to a relative? And aren't you more critical of how your brothers and sisters raise their children than you are of the ways chosen by your acquaintances?"

With these examples, my protests grew weaker, but I was still holding my position until Alice came in with her clincher.

"You know, if you're related to everybody, and everybody knows it, can you imagine the increase in the drop-in rate when you are up at your summer cottage?"

I had no answer for that one. In fact, I am now considering refusing all my mail and taking out my phone. Alice thinks I'm overreacting and reminds me that everything is relative. That's just the problem.

TO HARPER'S younger students she's the "little old lady" of the dental clinic, but to instructors she's the determined housewife and mother whose interest in teeth led her to enter the 85-hour program to become a dental hygienist. Mary Lankford has been helped over many a hump by instructors such as Trudy Frank, above, who work hard to keep up the student's PMA — positive mental attitude.

Keepsakes add sentiment

When Heather Marian Doyle of Mount Prospect dressed for her wedding on July 7, she added several accessories that are traditional for brides.

She wore her maternal grandfather's stick pin made into a lavalier and carried her paternal great-grandmother's wedding handkerchief. In her shoe was a sixpence given to her by her maternal grandmother.

Heather became the bride of Bradley B. Baxter in the Community Presbyterian Church, Mount Prospect, at five o'clock. A dinner reception and dancing followed at Itasca Country Club.

Parents of the bridal couple are Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Doyle III of Mount Prospect and the Thomas Baxters of Littleton, Colo. The groom formerly lived in this area, attending Wheeling High School and Harper College.

He and his bride will be living in Mahomet, Ill., while he works nearby for the Champaign National Bank.

HEATHER IS A graduate of Prospect High School and Eastern Illinois University, earning degrees in elementary and special education.

She and Bradley exchanged vows and rings by candlelight in a pale blue and white setting. Candelighter was Tracy Baxter, the groom's sister.

The blue appeared in the ensembles worn by the bride's attendants. The four girls wore pale blue dotted swiss trimmed with tiny white daisies and had matching horsehair picture hats banded with white ribbons. They wore short white gloves and carried white baskets filled with cornflowers, white daisies, blue delphinium and baby's breath.

Heather's gown was in white cotton with an eyelet border pattern. It was designed with short sleeves, scoop neckline and a softly shirred skirt with chapel train. The bride's chapel-length veil was secured by a Venise lace cap embroidered in seed pearls.

AS ANOTHER sentimental touch, Heather carried her mother's white Bible to which she attached a cascade of white orchids, stephanotis and ivy.

Mrs. William Provenzano of Chicago was her matron of honor. Bridesmaids included Teresa Biagiotti, Elmwood Park, and Shirley Enke, Bunker Hill, Ill., college roommates of the bride, and Clara Besch of Mount Prospect.

John Mariotti of Elmhurst stood at the altar as best man, and ushers were the bride's brothers, Richard H. Doyle IV, Des Moines, and Bradford Doyle; William Provenzano, Chicago; and Michael Ryan, DeKalb.

Vocalists for the service were Becky Storck, Ferina, Ill., and Frank Auwater, Mount Prospect.

Fire causes a change in reception

A fire at the Town and Country Plaza in Franklin Park caused a last minute change in wedding reception plans for Loralyn Jeanne Ware, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. William Ware, 1021 Stockton, Des Plaines.

Finding a place for a reception with a band and 150 guests wasn't easy, but the wedding party danced all night at the Des Plaines Elk Club, despite the last minute rush.

Loralyn was married in a double ring ceremony July 7 at the First Presbyterian Church, Des Plaines, to Gerald Perrone, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Perrone of Chicago.

The bride appeared at the altar in a silk organza, A-line gown fashioned with a lace applique bodice and a stand-up collar. Sheer bishop sleeves with fitted lace cuffs and a hem and short train edged in Alencon lace complemented the dress.

LOREALYN'S FINGERTIP veil was attached to a lace fitted cap, and she carried a cascade of phalaenopsis, stephanotis and baby's breath intermingled with apricot Abbey roses.

Maid of honor for the ceremony was Jan Arnschuld, cousin of the bride from Des Plaines. Alice Zessis, Deerfield, and Wendy Wallace, Des Plaines, were bridesmaids. Also preceding the bride down the aisle was her 11-year-old sister, Julie, as junior bridesmaid.

The girls were attired in apricot voile sleeveless gowns with flowered bodices and matching flounces. Their flowers were white daisies, apricot Abbey roses and baby's breath. They wore matching flowers in their hair.

Attending the groom were John Gibis, Des Plaines, as best man and groomsmen Donald Pempek, his brother-in-law from McHenry, and Robert Bayster, Des Plaines.

Seating the guests were Jim and Steve Ware, brothers of the bride.

MUSIC PREVAILED at the ceremony. Soloist Christine Johnson sang "Theme from the Godfather," "The Wedding Song," and "Benediction," accompanied on the guitar by Jim Polanek. The bride's brother Steve played a trumpet solo and The New Society played music at the reception.

Following a two-week honeymoon, the newlyweds will be at home in Des Plaines. The bride is a graduate of Maine West High School and has a B.S. degree in education from Northern Illinois University. She teaches at South School in Des Plaines.

Gerald is a graduate of Wells High School, Chicago, and Howard County Junior College in Big Springs, Tex. He is employed by Central Telephone Co., Des Plaines.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hyneman

Husband comes 'with kids'

When Jackie Weigle of Palatine became the bride of Jack Hyneman July 14, she gained a ready-made family of eight children as well as a new husband.

The couple were married in a double ring ceremony in St. Colette Catholic Church of Rolling Meadows and the bridegroom's five sons as well as his three daughters were present, the boys having a part in the wedding service.

Mark Hyneman was his father's best man and Bobby the ring bearer. Greg, Paul and Tom seated the wedding guests, who included the bridegroom's three daughters, Deborah, Judy and Diane.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Van Nieuwenhove, 318 Cheryl Lane, Palatine, was groomed in a floor-length heavenly blue chiffon dress with wide-brimmed hat to match. She carried a Flemish bouquet.

HER ONLY attendant was a friend from Palatine, Rosemary Bagaerts, who wore a floor-length multi-color print dress. Her bouquet was of pink carnations.

There was a reception for the 150 guests at the Plum Grove Club in Palatine following the four o'clock marriage ceremony.

The couple honeymooned for a week at now are at home in Rolling Meadows.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Hyneman of St. Cloud, Minn., works for Washington National Insurance Co. in Evanston. He and Jackie, who is a professional singer, met when they both attended St. Francis Chapter of Naim, the Catholic organization for widowed.

Dear Dorothy: We no longer have a dog, but we still have fleas — in the couch, carpet and so forth. I've used some flea sprays, but no luck. A friend says you recommended activated charcoal for this. How do you apply it? — Ann St. Clair

You don't. Activated charcoal granules have many uses, but not for this. You're not alone in this problem. You should see the mail the year 'round about flea problems, usually from families where there are pets. A professional exterminator suggests a nonstaining product containing methoxychlor, malathion or pyrethrum.

But householders can't afford constant exterminator visits and there are all manner of home-invented remedies: sprinkling salt around baseboards, under furniture and out-of-the-way spots; putting moth crystals around (these, of course, are poisonous); and twigs from a walnut tree with green leaves still attached. Whatever you try, keep up the regular vacuum treatments, especially carpets and upholstered furniture, and burn the sweepings.

Our daughter-in-law decided to start a small garden this spring. All went handsomely for a while, but recently she noted the bottom leaves on the tomato plants turning yellow. Richard Weir offered reassurances, calling it the result of the long spell of wet weather. Given a stretch of warm weather and the soil drying out, he predicted the symptoms will disappear and a normal growth follow. Here's hoping.

Dear Dorothy: You were asked a while back by a mother what kind of sandwiches to put in her children's lunch boxes and not have to worry about spoilage. I meant to write then and tell you that I always freeze my husband's sandwiches the night before. By the time he's ready to eat, they've thawed and the celery and carrots he likes with them stay nice and crisp in the cool box. — Susie Bolden

CRYSTAL BALLS JUST DON'T SEEM TO GRAB US

We read a good deal about advertising research, and are frequently reminded of some mystical incantation—figures mysteriously projected, multiplied, divided, contorted to form a supposedly attractive story.

What ever happened to the good old how-many-copies-were-really-sold counts? That's the kind of stuff advertising rates are based on!

And it's just for that reason we have a no-nonsense, no-mystery ABC audit report of our circulation audience.

The couple plans an October wedding.

Jewish women seek members at barbecue

Rehearsals are in progress for a skit entitled "Council Capers" which will be presented at the Aug. 15 membership barbecue of Northwest Suburban Section, National Council of Jewish Women.

The skit will be enacted by women on the section board to show prospective members what council is all about.

In its brief existence, the northwest suburban group has more than doubled its membership, including women from Lake Zurich, Buffalo Grove, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Des Plaines, Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg.

Interested women in all of these towns are welcome to the barbecue. They may call vice president Faye Marcus, 259-8389, for reservations.

National Council, which has 300 affiliated sections across the country, is dedicated to working in programs of community service, social action and education.

AOPi alumnae schedule get-acquainted parties

Members of Northwest Suburban Alumnae Chapter of Alpha Omicron Pi are contacting AOPi newcomers in the area and making preparations for informal parties in their honor.

The "get-acquainted" parties are scheduled for Wednesday, Aug. 8, at 8 p.m., in the Palatine home of Mrs. Paul Jung; Thursday, Aug. 9, 8 p.m., in the Arlington Heights home of Mrs. Jack Clark Jr.; and Tuesday, Aug. 14, 8 p.m. in the Palatine home of Mrs. Daniel Pelletiere Jr.

Any AOPi alums interested in attending a party but who haven't yet been contacted are asked to call the membership chairman, Mrs. Jack Cutlip, at 394-2874.

AOPi's WILL ALSO be getting together Thursday at 1 p.m., in the home of Mrs. Laurence Frerk, 1523 N. Douglas, Arlington Heights, to work on centerpieces for their spring benefit luncheon and fashion show scheduled for April, 1974.

Northwest Suburban alumnae meets the second Wednesday evening of each month, September through May, and draws members from suburbs as far east as Park Ridge and as far west as Barrington.

The opener this fall is Sept. 12 at the home of Mrs. Charles Kallevang in Park Ridge.

A reminder to brides

If wedding bells will soon be ringing in your family, we want to hear them, too.

Therefore, the Herald reminds brides-to-be of the deadlines in effect for reporting wedding news. Full information is printed on forms available in all the Herald offices.

The Herald reminds brides-to-be of the deadlines in effect for reporting wedding news. Full information is printed on forms available in all the Herald offices.

For detailed wedding story (including gown descriptions) information is due within three weeks following wedding date. Information received in Herald office after three weeks and up to five weeks following wedding date will be used for a brief story or caption.

Accompanying picture should be a black and white glossy close-up photo (bouquet and up) of bridal pair or bride alone. At the discretion of the editors and the Herald photo department, color photos may or may not be used, depending on color tones, contrast and clarity. Small snapshots are not acceptable.

We suggest the bride or some member of the family select a photo for the newspaper immediately upon receiving photographer's proof. Better yet — have the photographer make a selection and send it immediately to the Herald office. Any delay may mean missing the deadline.

If your photographer cannot comply with deadlines, write-up will be published without a photo providing information is in the Herald office before the deadline.

The bride who wishes her photo returned may pick it up at the Herald office at 217 W. Campbell, Arlington Heights, or send along a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

There is no charge for publishing this news.

Pajamas have come out on the streets. Not for lounging only is the new label tagged on the best-selling fall lounge-wear and lingerie.

Versatility is the key, and whether you think the new looks are best suited to a quiet evening at home, or a night out, painting the town red, why not try a new escapade and turn about your lounging apparel?

From the bathrobe to the evening gown lounge-wear is made to fit into a woman's routine.

GONE ARE THE flannel long Johns and the silk baby dolls. In their place are metallics, Ban Lon nylons, matte jerseys, velour and point d'esprit laces. The silhouette lines feature the sweater wraps, the sexy, bodyhugging hostess frock, the long shirt and the printed culotte. The catman, slip dress and loose-fitting tent also fill two roles on the lounge-wear market.

"Pajamas aren't exactly what I would call a revival," says Lydia Deutsch of Miss Dior. "The new pajama is a completely different concept. It's glamorous, with a feeling the old pajamas didn't give."

The collage of styles runs the gamut from the traditional nightshirts updated with tailored collars and cuffs in bright colors, to the two-piece pajamas, flowing in soft lines with no hint of the boxy form of yesteryear.

Dressed up with your favorite jewelry, lounge-wear can go anywhere. The choice is yours from the style and fabric to the length.

DONALD BROOKS, from Maldenform, said in presenting his first collection, "I tried to find an approach that can swing from the sportive to the sensuous. By providing diversification, I can give women a look that's jaunty-casual or sexy-seductive."

So put on your pjs and go out to dinner or to a play tonight.

With the announcement of President Nixon's Phase IV economic game plan, clothing manufacturers have indicated that they prefer to go slow in making predictions of prices and their budget impact, although they agreed profits would be under a squeeze.

Some children's wear prices for the holiday will be increased, but makers of women's apparel think they will hold the line, at least for the time being.

Phase IV is scheduled to go into effect Aug. 12.

Buffalo Grove captures state softball title

by MIKE KLEIN

It was a long pregnancy, but the north-west suburbs finally gave birth to their first 16-inch softball state champion Sunday when Buffalo Grove's Bruins defeated Berwyn, 11-5, at Rand Park in Des Plaines.

Never before in the tournament's eight years at Des Plaines has a local entrant placed first. But in Sunday's finals, postponed one week by rain, Buffalo Grove needed only 46 minutes to win.

Thirteen singles, Dewey Hyrack's double and Gil Muratori's triple backed winning pitcher Don Welker. The game ended with Welker clutching the last of two liners he speared in the seventh.

Welker owned a three-hitter and led, 11-2, after six innings. Berwyn tagged him for three runs and four hits in the seventh before falling short.

The Bruins, sponsored by Kenny General Elevator of Arlington Heights, scored in every inning except the fourth. They knocked out starting and losing pitcher Dennis Stuth by building a 3-1 lead through three innings.

Hyrack and Muratori had three hits apiece. Both figured in Buffalo Grove's three-run first. Hyrack opened the game by singling. He moved to third on Ed Pitts' hit and scored the day's first run when Ken Izral grounded out to short.

Muratori followed with a single that sent Pitts home. Rich Urbanski's right field sacrifice fly scored Muratori.

Berwyn tallied an unearned run in the home first when Roger Siksa made a three-base error on Tony Nudera's fly ball to right. Mark Kreba's base hit scored Nudera for a 3-1 deficit.

But the Bruins began stretching their lead, getting two in the second and one in the third. Welker, meanwhile, set down six straight.

Hyrack (double) and Pitts (single) had runs-batted-in during the second. Bob Nay collected an RBI with his sacrifice fly in the third, scoring Bob Campbell.

Berwyn pulled Stuth after three and inserted Bob Stacey who had been catching. He allowed a hit but no runs in the fourth before falling victim to a barrage of one-baggers.

Buffalo Grove's last extra base hit was Muratori's fifth inning line drive triple to left center after Izral's single. Campbell grounded to short, scoring Muratori for an 8-2 lead.

Berwyn had scored its second run on fourth inning singles by Chris Koziel and Gene Pouillot. They were the last hits Welker allowed until three singles and a triple in the seventh.

Siksa singled and scored in the sixth for Buffalo Grove. Urbanski and Nay had runs-batted-in during a two-run seventh.

Berwyn showed nominal signs of hitting life in the fifth. Three hard line drives were snared on the dirt infield by Muratori, Izral and Pitts.

Berwyn hit Welker hard again in the seventh. Urbanski knocked down Nudera's hard bouncer to short but couldn't make a play. Pitts bobbled a grounder in short center before Pouillot's triple made the score 11-4.

Tom Rocco lined Berwyn's first out back at Welker before Rich Majewski singled home Pouillot. A one-bagger by Bob Moehling separated a fly ball out to Hyrack and Larry Rocco's game-ending liner to Welker.

The Bruins were favored over Berwyn after a semi-finals win Saturday over Evanston's Bobcats, defending national champions. Home runs by Urbanski and Pitts helped Buffalo Grove to a 13-7 win before the tourney's largest crowd, about 500 persons.

Defending state champion South Stickney never made it out of the third round, losing to Dundee, 10-9. Berwyn beat Dundee, 8-3, in a quarterfinals game.

Mount Prospect eliminated Wheeling, 8-7, in Saturday's third round. The Bobcats advanced past Mount Prospect, 12-6, in a fourth round game before losing to Buffalo Grove.

Softball regionals in Rolling Meadows and Grant Park, Aug. 20-23, are next for the Bruins. They'll probably be assigned to Grant Park.

Woodfield Stars earn 2nd in Babe Ruth Tournament

It took extra innings and a heavy hitting attack by Hinsdale to oust Woodfield's Babe Ruth All-Stars from the state tournament finals last week in Champaign.

Hinsdale beat Woodfield, 8-6, on Friday night to win the state title for 13-to-15 year olds. They'll represent Illinois beginning Thursday at the Midwest Babe Ruth Regional in Springfield, Ohio.

Other entrants will be state champions from Michigan, Minnesota, Ohio, Kentucky and Indiana. Regional winners will converge upon New Hampshire for nationals the second week of August.

Woodfield came out of the double elimination losers bracket to place second in Champaign. The All-Stars lost their tourney opener to Moline, then rebounded for wins over Harvey and Mattoon. That preceded a 13-1 clubbing of Moline, earning Woodfield a crack at Hinsdale for the state title.

Hinsdale advanced through the winners bracket, dropping no games in Champaign. Woodfield needed a doubleheader sweep Friday to capture state honors. Hinsdale needed just a lone victory, which it got, to eliminate the local All-Stars.

The clubs were tied, 5-5, after seven innings in Friday's playoff. Hinsdale scored three runs against losing pitcher Mark Losee in the eighth. Woodfield, the home team, got just one.

Winning pitcher Jeff Werner, who hurled three innings of relief, helped Hinsdale's final rally with the first of three singles. Others were by Mike Kripner and Rich Bouchard.

Woodfield scored the game's first run in the second on Mike Ledna's RBI single. Ledna had three hits and four runs batted home.

Hinsdale came back with a lone tally on three third inning singles, the last by Scott Hadley. But Russ Zonca's home run put Woodfield back on top, 2-1, after four innings.

The fifth inning was scoreless and the sixth explosive as seven runs were scored, four by Hinsdale. Both starting pitchers were pulled, Mike Christy exiting for Woodfield.

Hinsdale sprinted ahead, 5-2, with its four-run sixth. Jeff Raven, Kripner, and Hadley strung together singles. Bouchard doubled and there was a walk.

Christy came out after retiring just one batter, giving him five and one-third innings pitched. He was credited with four runs, seven hits, five strikeouts and one walk.

Woodfield turned two hits into three runs after Randy Ramano and Glen Stromberg walked with one out. Dean Manhoff singled to load the bags. Ledna doubled everybody home, tying the game, 5-5.

Still, there was just one out and Ledna moved to third on Mark Huldhyld's sacrifice fly. When Larry Lewey grounded to short, Hadley threw Ledna out at home, Kripner making the tag.

A scoreless seventh preceded the eighth when Hinsdale took charge. Losing pitcher Losee worked two and two-third innings. He gave four runs, four hits and three walks while fanning two.

Hinsdale committed two errors and Woodfield three. Ten of the winner's 11 hits were singles, the other being Bouchard's sixth inning double against Christy.

It was a much happier ending when Woodfield avenged the first game loss to Moline by winning, 13-1, on Thursday. Huldhyld pitched a complete game one-hitter with 11 strikeouts and one walk.

Woodfield scored in every inning except the second. Moline's only run — and hit — came in the seventh.

Zonca and Jeff Weaver each had three hits for the All-Stars. Steve Stompanato picked up two. But the day's biggest blow was Terry Carson's inside-the-park homer which produced two runs in the sixth.

Post 208 'walks' into district driver's seat

by MIKE KLEIN

Larry Monroe had the world on a string Saturday afternoon at Recreation Park. Then the string broke. His world fell out of orbit and, moments later, so did Larry.

For eight and two-third innings, Monroe threw Bob Feller fastballs and Warren Spahn curves past Arlington Heights. If he added a few Gaylord Perry splitters, nobody could tell the difference. Arlington couldn't tell him.

So at 4:33 p.m., under skies turned sunny from gray, Monroe needed one out to stroll away with 12 strikeouts and sew up a 2-0 win for Mount Prospect in Ninth District tournament play.

But the string snapped and Monroe crashed with a thud. That probably made Jim Hopkins rejoice for it seemed one bad pitch plus an infield error would send Hopkins — who fanned nine and walked one — riding rafts of defeat.

Monroe never triumphed because after two ninth-inning outs, he couldn't locate home plate. He walked Bruce Hanson and Marc Klemp, then fired wild, both runners advancing.

Monroe was in trouble and Arlington's onlookers knew it. So they told him all about it. He responded by passing Mark Leonhard. Bags now loaded.

Cleanup hitter Bob Harth, retired four times and his previous three at-bats on strikes, authored a hard line drive past Monroe that scored Hanson and Klemp for a 2-2 tie.

That was all Mount Prospect coach Merv Fink wanted to see of Monroe, who walked seven. He plucked Rick Haaning off first base to face George Vukovich, the latter chasing his fourth hit.

Vukovich would not succeed, skying a fly to left. But it mattered not at all. With everybody running, Ed Katzman one-handed the ball from air-to-glove-to-ground. Leonhard was across home before Katzman's game-ending error was official.

Final score: Arlington Heights 3, Mount Prospect 2.

It had been Katzman's rocket throw after John Dillon's eighth inning single that chopped down Vukovich by 45 feet at home. Dale Schoenbeck applied the tag.

And Haaning, when employed at first, had made a diving eighth inning stab of Tom Good's choppy grounder. Not only was Good retired, but Vukovich stopped at second.

Had the ball skipped into short right, Vukovich surely would have reached third base. Then, there would have been no great throw from Katzman to Schoenbeck.

And Monroe, who will win many games on other days, had hurled 26 outs of virtually perfect baseball. He was jammed up just one other inning, walking two and hitting one in the sixth before Dan Cunningham bounced out.

But if Monroe excelled, so did Hopkins who, it seemed, would pay dearly for his only miscue. That was a fifth inning pitch to Schoenbeck that touched clouds before dropping over the left field fence. It gave Mount Prospect a 2-0 lead.

The losers' opening run came in the fourth when Arlington second baseman Klemp let Haaning's grounder bounce away into short right field. Gregg Fink scored from second.

Only in one inning, the fifth, could Mount Prospect get more than a single hit off Hopkins. Monroe fanned on one duster and three strikes after Schoenbeck's homer. Craig Stiles then doubled.

Hopkins tossed a five-hitter, the others singles by Fink, Katzman and Randy Sherpin. Only Vukovich gave Monroe continual fits. He doubled to open the second and sandwiched a sixth inning pass around singles in the fourth and eighth.

The second timing nearly proved fatal to Arlington Heights. After Vukovich's double, Greg Hauptly was safe on a swinging bunt. Monroe and Haaning colliding on the play.

For brief moments, it seemed Monroe would contain no magic in his right arm. Indeed, Hopkins had faced only six men through two innings and struck out four.

But all luck was suddenly Mount Prospect's to cherish. Monroe fanned Rick Sidor and Cunningham bounced into a fielders choice. Hauptly eliminated at second for two outs.

With Hopkins batting, Monroe caught Cunningham very much off first base. Haaning relayed to shortstop Loren Crites who ignored Cunningham and gunned down Vukovich at home, Schoenbeck making a nice plate block.

Area prep teams exit Summer League tourney

Area summer league teams will have nothing to say about who wins the High School Tournament. The final two local spokesmen — Rolling Meadows and Hersey — were ousted from the single-elimination tournament over the weekend.

Rolling Meadows fell to defending champion Niles West, 6-0, in the fourth round of play while Hersey failed to survive a rematch of a suspended 6-6 tie with Dundee. The Huskies bowed in the third round, 3-1.

WEST TRIPS MEADOWS

Rolling Meadows head coach Al Otto would have a legitimate complaint if he petitioned to have Niles West seeded in another bracket of the summer league tournament.

In the two promising years of its existence, Meadows has done exceptionally well in the post-season tourney, only to run across defending champion Niles West before the championship game.

The Mustangs were ousted by the Indians last year as Niles West went on to claim state honors. Unfortunately for Meadows, the replay came last week.

Niles West stole six unearned runs to back the five-hit pitching of Carl Krueger and eliminated Rolling Meadows, 6-0. The winners tallied one in the first on two walks, a doublesteal and an error.

The Indians put the game away in the fourth when five runs tallied on just one hit and four Rolling Meadows errors. "We knew they never beat themselves," Otto said after the giveaway. "You take away our (five) errors and we may still be playing them."

Although blanked, the Mustangs hit some shots including doubles by Scott Green and Joe Riplinger and singles by Green, Glen Zawacki and Dave Thorstensen. But the pitching combo of Carl Pedersen and Keith Goeke fell victim to a lack of defensive support that brought Meadows' season record to 11-10-1.

Bob Huber of Hersey had a no-hitter going into the sixth inning of Friday's third-round game but wound up losing a 3-1 decision to Dundee. Hersey was thus eliminated from the tournament.

Dundee had tallied in the second without the benefit of a hit to tie the game at 1-1. Then in the sixth, Huber allowed a base hit, and two men later Dundee pitcher Jeff Flease powered a home run to bring the margin to the final 3-1.

Hersey's run was unearned. Art Hoesterey walked and was sacrificed to second before Mark Krause also walked. Then Kevin Madden struck out, but the ball got away from the catcher. When the catcher threw wildly off first trying to get Madden, Hoesterey scotched in with Hersey's only run. Krause was thrown out when he too tried to score.

Both teams registered only two hits. Flease, who did the damage with his bat, also menaced Hersey on the mound as he recorded 11 strikeouts in picking up the victory that knocked the Huskies out of tournament competition.

Prospect passes Logan Square, 2-1

It went down to the last possible moment before a decision was reached in the Logan Square-Mount Prospect game in the winner's bracket of the Ninth District tournament Friday night at Recreation Park.

But with the pressure on, Mount Prospect prevailed, and the 2-1 victory put the Prospectors into the semifinals against Arlington. Logan Square drops into the loser's bracket.

With the bases loaded, two out, and the score tied at 1-1 in the bottom of the ninth, Loren Crites drew four straight balls from relief pitcher Jim Dumke, forcing in the winning run.

Jim Miller, Logan Square's starter, had given up just four hits and had struck out 10 heading into the tense ninth. Dale Schoenbeck, whom Miller had fanned three times previously, led off the frame by slapping Miller's first pitch to left for a single. Randy Sherrin sacrificed Schoenbeck to second and Jim Laing and Ed Katzman both walked to fill the bases.

After throwing ball one to Craig Stiles, Miller was yanked and Dumke entered. He threw three straight strikes past Stiles for the second out, but then walked Crites on four pitches and Logan Square was in the loser's bracket.

The Lions tallied their first time up. After two out, Steve Bobowski rapped a base hit up the middle and Jim Bucaro belted a double to the fence in left field, scoring Bobowski.

Mount Prospect evened the count in the third when Stiles walked and Ed Collins threw away Crites' attempted sacrifice, putting men at second and third. Then Gregg Fink bounced one to Stan Bobowski at first base, who stepped on first for the out, then rifled it home trying to get Stiles. But Stiles slid in safely to tie the ballgame.

The Prospectors almost went ahead in the seventh when Sherrin singled, Jim Laing walked and Stiles beat out an infield hit with two out. But Stan Bobowski made a great leaping catch of Crites' liner over first to kill the threat.

Winning pitcher Jim Emslie was touched for the run in the first inning but gave up only two hits the rest of the way. His five walks helped give the Lions a base-runner in every inning but the sixth and ninth. Emslie matched Miller's 10 strikeouts.

Loss bumps Post 1968 from tourney

Wheeling frustrated (again) by Jones

As far as Wheeling players and fans are concerned, the sooner Jerry Jones finishes playing amateur sports in this area the better.

Last spring he gave the Wheeling basketball team fits with a near perfect shooting performance in the first round of the Elk Grove Sectional. It was the difference as Maine South just barely won.

Jones had a big hand in ousting Wheeling's Legion team from the Ninth District Tournament Friday, pitching for Park Ridge, he shut out Post 1968 over nine innings for a 3-0 win.

Wheeling, which had started off the season in overpowering style, dropped its first two games of the double elimination tourney and must now wait until next year.

As was the case in the basketball game last spring, Wheeling could have won. The best chance for turning things around came in the fifth as the locals trailed 2-0.

Coach Bob Grybash — who said Friday's game would be his last as a Legion coach — watched in frustration as three straight hits netted nothing. And what an opportunity for it was the bottom of the batting order that was producing — Ron Henriks, John Slack and Ken Roggenbuck.

Then leadoff man Jeff Blisson smashed a line drive. The crack of the bat sounded for an instant like two runs would surely score. It would be a tie game . . . but it turned into a double play!

Jones — using those quick basketball reflexes — somehow snagged the ball on the fly and easily doubled up Henriks at third. A routine popup followed and the inning turned out big for only Park Ridge.

Jones was pretty much in control the rest of the way, striking out seven of the remaining 12 batters he faced and giving up just two hits the rest of the way. Those came in the eighth as Brisson and Bob Burke singled with one out.

Roggenbuck, who went the distance in defeat, saw Ridge get two lightning runs in the opening inning. Following a walk, Bob Lloyd tripled to right-center and scored on an error. Not another Post 247 runner crossed the plate during the next seven innings, but Roggenbuck's teammates couldn't give him any offensive support. The final run came in nearly the same way — an opening error was followed by a triple by Russ Anderson.

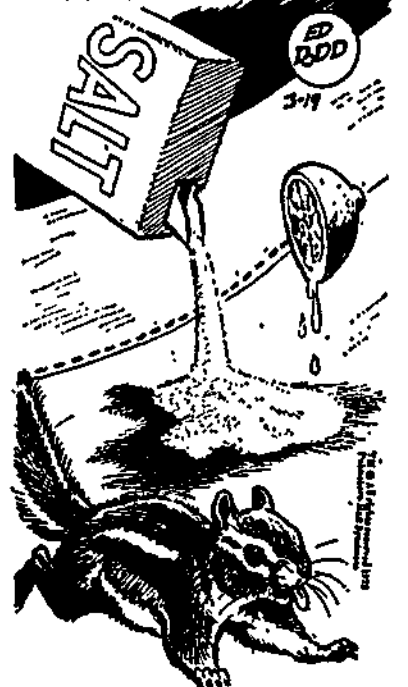

Roggenbuck and Henriks — batting seventh and ninth in the order — led the team with two hits each.

Exciting playoffs at Buffalo Grove

The Buffalo Grove Jaycees held their annual Junior Golf Tournament recently at the Buffalo Grove Golf Club. There were 42 participants in this year's local play to represent Buffalo Grove in the State Jaycee Junior Golf Tournament at Kankakee Aug. 20-22. There were some pretty impressive scores turned in by some of the 13 to 17 year olds.

Top scores in the senior division were a pair of 84's by Ray Hafner of Mount Prospect and Andy Netz of Prospect Heights. This resulted in a sudden death playoff for the 1st and 2nd place trophies. Hafner beat Netz by one stroke on the 1st hole.

The most exciting sudden death came between Ed Stubbs and David De Carlo both of Arlington Heights. They had tied for second place in the Junior Division with a pair of 87's. Both boys pared the first hole and were on in regulation on the second hole. De Carlo's birdie try fell inches short and he tapped in for a par. Stubbs then stroked a 10 foot putt into the hole for a birdie, winning the trophy.

The best score of the day was turned in by Mike Marshall of Buffalo Grove, one of Cooper Junior High's most outstanding all-round athletes. For the first nine he played it in 39 and took the back in an impressive 37 for a 76, only four over par.

According to local chairman for the Jaycees, Sam Sharp, the top two scorers are to attend the state competition, but since there was a tie both Netz and Hafner will attend along with Marshall.

Impressive scoring wasn't just out on the course. After playing 18 holes there was a putting contest. Seven boys turned in 15's for the seven holes. A playoff resulted in an almost dead heat between Marshall and Stubbs. Marshall's last ball rolled over the cup on the last hole. Stubbs sank his putt with an outstanding score of 13 to win a dozen golf balls.

Tri-City golfers enjoy low scores

Nancy fired an 89 gross and a 68 net, Tommy a 95 gross and 72 net, Sylvia a 102 gross and 71 net and Norma a 118 gross and 80 net in their respective flight.

Suzanne Larson polled the low net score in Flight A competition with a 34 while Ona Nelson matched the feat in the Flight B pairings. Marge Johnson fired a 37 in Flight C play while Pat Annen paced the D Flyers with a round of 36.

When it's hot — think cool for bass

by VIC WATIA

United Press International

An old experienced bass fisherman once told me, "When the summer days are hottest, think cold and you'll catch fish."

The truth of his philosophy did not sink in at the time, but it has over the years.

I eventually began to get the old timer's point. He wasn't talking about staying cool by any means. He was talking about the movement of lures in hot weather.

Bass become sluggish in extremely hot weather, just as they do in cold, and often anglers must work their lures slow and easy to take fish.

When the sun starts driving the fish into deep holes, it's time to move to slow working lures, such as plastic worms and jigs. That doesn't rule out other baits by any means. But the technique of hot weather fishing can prove as important as the lure itself.

Besides plastic worms, deep diving plugs and spoons can be very productive hot weather bass-takers, usually when worked slow and easy.

Plastic worms rigged with sinkers are about the highest ranking bait among hot weather bass fishermen. But jigs, deep diving plugs and spoons also take a good share of the fish.

When rigging a plastic worm to work weedless, it is best to use as light a slip sinker as possible during hot weather. The lighter sinker offers many benefits.

First, the decline of the worm in the water is slower, giving sluggish bass more time to hit the worm on its way to the bottom. Also, the lighter the sinker, the more action of the worm when it is pulled along the bottom over brush, rocks, sticks or stumps. The light sinker also hangs up less than a heavier one.

The novice should allow time for the plastic worm to sink to the bottom, then retrieve it slowly by moving his rod from the 12 o'clock position to the 10 o'clock position, taking up the slack and repeating the process. When the bass strikes, he should lower the rod to the water's edge, take in the slack, and slam the hook home with all the effort he can muster, "crossing the eyes of the fish," as most experts would say.

When working spoons, the novice should remember to use light-weight spoons in shallower water and heavier ones in deeper water.

The free-falling spoon flutters like a crippled fish, and keeping that in mind, the novice can practice a slow, successful retrieve.

When the spoon has reached the bottom, the rod should be lowered to the water's edge. After the slack has been taken up, the rod tip should be jerked above the head, then lowered in such a manner that it doesn't hinder the action of the spoon as it is falling back to the bottom. While the rod is being lowered, the slack in the line should be taken in carefully.

Hot weather fishermen often will add noisemakers to their lures in an effort to attract fish. "Rattlers" can be inserted in plastic worms or attached to spoons, plugs or spinners to give more life to the lures. Silver spoons appear to produce best results for bass on bright days in clear water, whereas dark spoons should be used on overcast days or in murky water. Pork rind added to spoons also can improve fish catching.

Monroe baffles Park Ridge

If there's one fellow who has the ability to win the Ninth District tournament by himself, it's Mount Prospect's Larry Monroe.

Monroe proved it again Wednesday night at Forest View when he worked seven innings of no-hit baseball against Park Ridge in the opening round of the tournament. Rain forced the contest to be called in the top of the eighth, but his Mount Prospect ballclub made its 3-0 advantage stand up for a win when the game was resumed Thursday.

Naturally, Monroe couldn't come back the next day to finish the game, so his no-hit bid was washed away. Rick Haaning came on to replace Monroe, and surrendered two hits and a pair of walks, but Park Ridge came up empty-handed anyway.

Park Ridge's Jay Liggett gave up just three hits in the seven innings he pitched — two infield hits and a bloop single.

Mount Prospect got on the board right away as Craig Stiles led off the game with a walk, was balked to second, took third on a groundout and tallied on Loren Crites' sacrifice fly.

From there, Liggett gave up only a Texas Leaguer to Stiles in the third inning. He struck out the side in the fifth but ran into big trouble the next inning.

Ventresca has ace at Rolling Green

Bill Ventresca of 407 Burr Oak Dr., Arlington Heights, Ill., is eligible to win a free trip to Scotland and $1,000 in cash as a result of scoring a hole-in-one at the Rolling Green Golf Course. Ventresca's ace qualified him for the Rusty Nail Hole-in-One Sweepstakes, a national competition sponsored by the Drambule Company of Edinburgh, Scotland.

The winner will be announced early next year.

Lauraine Jensen fires hole-in-one

Lauraine Jensen of 1010 W. Lincoln, Mount Prospect, is eligible to win a free trip to Scotland and $1,000 in cash as a result of scoring a hole-in-one at the Rolling Green Golf Club. Miss Jensen's ace qualified her for the Rusty Nail Hole-in-One Sweepstakes, a national competition sponsored by the Drambule Company of Edinburgh, Scotland.

The winner will be announced early next year.

After one out, Gregg Fink hit a hard grounder into the hole at shortstop on which Russ Anderson made a fine stop, but then flung past first baseman Jerry Jones. Fink made it to second on the hit and error, then took third on a passed ball.

Crites walked and Haaning was hit by a pitch to load the bases. Then Liggett threw a wild pitch, scoring Fink, and Crites came home on Ken Butzen's infield hit to make it 3-0.

Park Ridge broke the no-hitter when Bill Almers led off the eighth with a soft liner that fell safely in right field. But Haaning set down the next three.

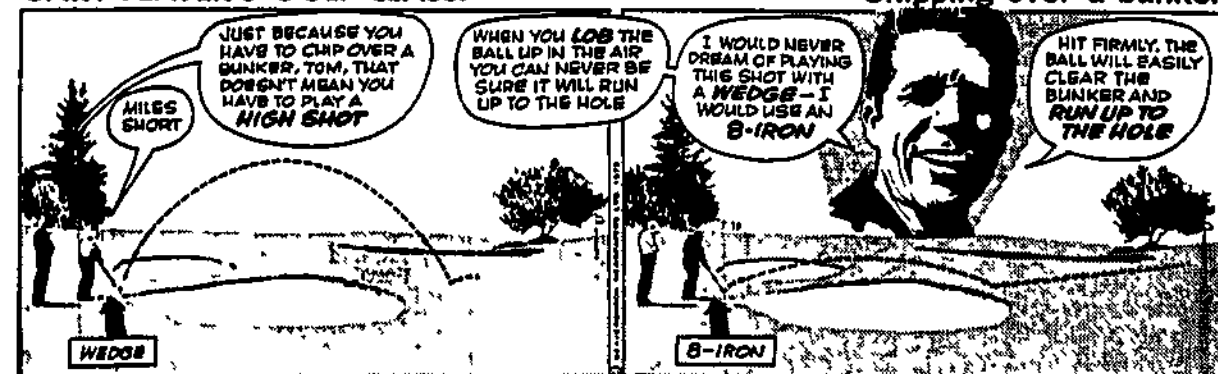

In the ninth, Haaning got Bob Lloyd and Dan Lowy on strikes before he walked Jones, gave up a line single to Anderson and walked Jim Lyons. But he got Almers on a fly ball to end the game.

'Bottom' Lions prove tough

Numbers 7, 8 and 9 are music to a pitcher's ears. There's nothing like the bottom of the order coming up when you're in a jam.

Wheeling's Gordie Nelson, pitching in relief of starter George Pattee, had runners on second and third and only one out with Logan Square's last three batters due up last Thursday in an opening round Ninth District Tournament game at St. Viator's diamond.

If Nelson could pitch his team out of this trouble, there was still the ninth inning to salvage a tie and, maybe, go on to win. (The score was 4-3 in favor of Logan Square.) But it didn't work out that way.

Ed Collins (No. 7) was hit by a pitch to load the bases for Tom Chapman (No. 8). He lashed a triple to right field. Jim Miller (No. 9) slammed a sacrifice fly and the Lions had the game locked up with a 6-3 lead.

Wheeling tallied a run in the ninth with the help of a triple by Casey Frankiewicz and George Kaage's single, but it came too late. Logan Square won 8-4.

Wheeling had taken the early lead with two in the second as the Lion defense committed three errors. Posting the big hits in that inning were Pat McGinn and Jeff Brisson.

The Lions tied it in the fourth thanks to the Bobowski brothers. Steve walked and Stan homered.

The fifth inning saw the Lions take the lead for good. Contributing to the two-run frame was Jim Bucaro with an RBI single, a pair of errors and a wild pitch. This helped Mike Cook to the victory.

Wheeling came back with one in the sixth on a walk and a triple by Ron Henricks. Both teams played one more inning before the game was called Wednesday night.

The Lions enjoyed the day's rest as their strong opening eighth inning on Thursday proved. Cook and Kaage were the hitting stars with three hits each.

Tour's top golfers coming to Midlane

Several top money winners from the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour have committed to play in the Child and Family Services Open at Midlane Country Club, Wadsworth, Aug. 10-12.

Golf fans can look forward to seeing Judy Rankin, winner of two tour events this year and leading money winner with over $47,000; Carol Mann, winner of the Sears $100,000 tournament; and Betty Burfelndt, whose consistent plan of four second place and three third place finishes has earned her over $38,000.

Other leading lady pros who will be at Midlane Country Club include Kathy Corneliuss, winner of the Sealy-Faberge Classic in Las Vegas; Marlene Hage, a perennial gallery favorite who is fifteenth on the money list; and Laura Baugh, an attractive 17 year old who shows promise of becoming one of the greats of ladies golf. Jane Blalock, Sandra Palmer and Jocelyn Bourassa, winner of the LaCanadienne Golf Championship, also plan to compete in the $30,000 Child and Family Services Open.

Commitments have been received from 53 top professionals and several more are expected to register before play begins on Friday, Aug. 10. Tournament officials anticipate a field of at least 60, with perhaps as many as 75 entries.

Tickets for the 54-hole event, as well as the Pro-Am on Thursday, Aug. 9, are available at pro shops, sporting goods stores, Marshall Field stores and tournament headquarters at 234 S. Wabash Avenue, Chicago. Season ticket prices are $10 — good for all four days of play. Daily tickets may be purchased at the course.

C. P. Floors captures berth in tournament

Several members of Old Orchard Scratch League were caught in the torrential rains last Friday night and got soaked, but by far the majority of matches were completed before the downpour.

Herb Karmer turned in his best score of the year, a 39, to lead his C. P. Floors team to five points over Baird and Warner Realty. Mike Spinello carded a two-under-par 32, including three birdies, to help solidify first place for the Floors boys. That team will represent the Scratch League in the Paddock tournament at Thunderbird on Aug. 19.

Four wins and a tie by Miles and Miles Insurance were good for 6½ points and a step up to fifth place in the standings. Scoring best games of the year for Miles were Alternate Mark Ganzer, a 36, and Shelby Stewart, 40.

L-Nor Cleaners took four and half points from Arlington Realty to remain in fourth place only two points out of third. Rich Sabat carded a fine game to help the Cleaners cause.

Bob Burrows Chevy vs. Peters & Co. Realty ended in a tie, three and half points apiece. Chris Lordots led the charge for Peters as he birdied number one and popped a 9-iron into the cup on number six for an eagle three.

Silo Restaurant and Robert Nelson Realty also ended in a tie for the evening, three points apiece. Bill Hugo, still undefeated after 12 matches, led the way for Silo. Augie Tamburrino scored the only ducce of the evening and a 35 to lead the way for Nelson.

Winners of golf balls for closest-to-the-pin shots on par three holes were Clarence Peterson on number three, Augie Tamburrino on number seven, Mike Spinello on number 11 and Ben Kronm on number 14.

When the server stands in the ready position, his weight is equally distributed on both feet. As his arms start the service motion, the weight moves to the right foot, the left shoulder moves up and the right shoulder moves down. The right knee is straight and the left knee is slightly bent. In other words, the body is tilted back, so that at the moment of the hit it can move forward into the ball. The body is a straight line as the ball is struck. The right shoulder moves forward into the court on the follow-through.

The slice is the basic delivery for all players. The racket face sweeps across the side of the ball farthest from the body instead of striking it directly from behind in a perfect flat serve (which cannot be hit by anyone less than six feet tall) moves in a straight line from the middle of the racket face down to the court. The American twist must be deep and have a high kick to the backhand side. Twist is put on the ball by twisting it slightly behind the head, then

Restaurant celebrates anniversary

It is "Happy Birthday" time for the Bonanza Sirloin Pit at 1249 Elmhurst in Des Plaines — which recently celebrated its fifth anniversary Tuesday, July 24.

"We'd like to say thank you to the families of Des Plaines who helped us realize our goal of becoming truly a community restaurant," said Al Faratchi, manager of the local Sirloin Pit.

Since the restaurant first opened, local families have consumed approximately 440,028 steaks and 153,377 portions of chopped sirloin and Bonanza burgers, Faratchi reported.

"That's enough beef to feed everyone in Ticonderoga, N.Y., for one year. The steaks alone equal one meal for everyone in the State of Vermont. And the portions of chopped sirloin and Bonanza burgers would be one plus an extra bite for everyone in Lubbock, Tex.," he pointed out.

The local Sirloin Pit is part of the nationwide Dallas-based chain, with more than 350 Bonanza Sirloin Pits operating in 36 states and the Bahamas.

Merchandising to working women: an intricate problem of the '70's

Merchandising to working women is much more complicated today, because they are so numerous, E. Lawrence Goodman, vice president of department store sales, Newspaper Advertising Bureau, said recently.

Speaking at a two-day meeting on fashion merchandising in a changing world, sponsored by the American Management Association, Goodman said that in 1972 there were more than 34 million women in the labor force, which was a 44 percent increase from 1960.

Today, more than half of all women 18-64 are in the labor force — full time or part time — and projections show that this will increase to about 65 percent before it levels off, he added. Recalling when retailers would set up a career girl shop to zero in on this market, he pointed out that this "is no longer possible in a society where working women are present in every age group of the active population, and are represented in practically every market segment."

Among the facts that Goodman said merchandisers of apparel to working women must take into consideration today are:

The majority of working women, three out of five, are married. Their roles today are multiple — wife, mother, homemaker and worker.

While the median family income is consistently higher for working women in all demographic classifications, the female labor force is drawn from a wide range of income groups.

More than half of all adult women with at least some college are employed, and 47 percent have high school diplomas.

Forty-nine percent of all working women have children under 18 at home.

In the pre-World War II period employed women were typically manual workers but in the 1970's they are more likely to be found in white collar occupations.

"Newspapers are admirably suited to communicate with working women whatever age groups or income levels or life styles they affect," Goodman said.

Used appliances become trade-ins

Independent appliance-TV stores around the country are finding that the old technique of trade-ins is providing new benefits in their competitive battle with mass merchants.

Although the resale of trade-ins is becoming more difficult because of high cost of repair, renovation and other factors, dealers claim that an aggressive program results in substantially increased gross margins.

There are also other advantages: free haul-away of old appliances for customers buying a new appliance is seen by customers as a real value; any cash allowance on old appliances gives dealers room to move on pricing of new appliances.

Summer theatre strives to please

If you'd like to spend an afternoon or evening of casual relaxed fun in a completely informal atmosphere, try the Vale Theatre on the Old Tralles Farm on Rt. 25, Barrington Hills.

The Vale Theatre is one of the few really authentic summer stock theatres in a barn in Illinois. Set amid a grove of trees on an old colonial country estate, like a picture post card, the theatre produces a bill of fare consisting of light Broadway comedies throughout the summer.

Audiences range from shirt sleeves to mink, from Milwaukee to Indiana and are usually delighted with the food and entertainment. The theatre is small (only 150 capacity) and the tab is reasonable but the effort to please is big.

Take the Northwest expressway to Rt. 25 and turn north for seven miles. For reservations, phone the box office at 312-428-8338 or write Vale Theatre, R.R. 2, Box 578, Dundee, Illinois 60118.

Jaycees' president thinks so

Park district booze law—does it need to be changed?

by JILL BETTNER

The summer season of community-wide beer and brat fests, carnivals and old-fashioned picnics brings with it a recurring problem for local park districts: unable to allow beer drinking on park property.

Park districts are not permitted by Illinois law to allow the sale of alcoholic beverages on park land. However, the state law leaves it up to the local park districts to determine if liquor can be consumed on park land.

Buffalo Grove and Wheeling, like most area park districts, adopted local ordinances to prohibit alcoholic beverages on park property.

Buffalo Grove park commissioners, however, recently agreed to consider revising the ordinance to allow them to make some exceptions to the rule.

the Buffalo Grove Jaycees.

Guttman asked the board for permission to serve beer at a Jaycee picnic and meeting Aug. 8 at Emmerich Park.

When Park Board Pres. Gene Muryn denied the request because of the ordinance, Guttman asked the commissioners to think about changing it.

"My thought was that perhaps times have changed a bit—we're a long ways from Prohibition and you might think about revising the ordinance," he said.

MURYN SAID park district attorney John Sullivan had earlier advised him that in order to change the measure, the current law would have to be repealed and another ordinance adopted.

"I'm just afraid we could be opening a Pandora's box," he said. "Any new ordinance would have to be very guardedly written."

Groups staging community activities on park land sometimes go to great lengths to get around the liquor ban, selling beer in the street in front of the park where the event is going on or on nearby public or private land.

Buffalo Grove residents who attended the recent Beer and Brat Fest at Emmerich Park had to go across the street to purchase and drink beer. The beer concession during Buffalo Grove Days Aug. 31 through Sept. 3 will be in the same area.

WHEELING PARK Supt. Dave Phillips said he gets requests from persons wanting to drink beer in parks all the time.

"We usually refer them to the Forest Preserve District or tell them they're welcome to use some other public land," he said.

Many Wheeling residents have commented that both Heritage Park and Chamber of Commerce Park would make ideal locations for community activities. They have said, however, that because beer is not allowed in the parks, community organizations have been forced to seek other sites.

The Wheeling Brat 'N Beer Fest will be Sunday on the grounds of the Wheeling Trust and Savings Bank. The picnic has been there for several years.

The annual Jaycees Carnival, where beer was sold for the first time this year, was conducted in the parking lot of Wickes Furniture Co.

No board meeting

The Buffalo Grove Village Board will not meet tonight due to it being the fifth Monday of the month. The next regular board meeting will be Aug. 6 at 8 p.m. in the village hall, 50 Raupp Blvd.

Custodians spiff up schools for fall

by JEANNETTE DE WYZE

When Dist. 21 school children pour out of the schools for their summer vacations, the buildings they leave behind bear the marks of a long year of hard use.

Scuffed floors show the signs of the thousands of feet which have passed over them in the months past; paper airplanes remain wedged in obscure places, and the collected graffiti from a year can be found on desks, lockers, everywhere that a literary child could place a pencil.

But when the children flock back in the fall, the buildings will gleam and sparkle, almost as clean as new.

THE MAGICIANS responsible for the yearly transformation are the district's custodial staff, who spend the last weeks of each summer going over the buildings from top to bottom.

Each summer the staff cleans every light, wall, piece of furniture, in fact, virtually every inch of the district school buildings. In addition, summer is the time for the maintenance department to do any necessary repairs, which can range from plumbing to electrical work to tearing down walls.

Summer is the only time the staffs have a chance to thoroughly clean the buildings. During the regular school year and when summer school classes are in session, the men are kept busy just cleaning up after the thousands of people who use the buildings day and night. Janitors dust and sweep every room each day, but there is no opportunity for major cleaning.

In mid-July, however, the custodial staff goes into heavy action. To do the job, there are 35 full-time men on the staff and extra summer workers are also hired. Given the job they have to do, they need every man on the staff.

ACCORDING TO Jess Mats, supervisor of the district custodial staff, there is an average of 30 rooms in each of the district's 15 schools. Each room contains 35 or more pieces of furniture and the rule of the staff is that everything must shine.

The custodians move through the buildings room by room, first tackling the lights, walls, blackboards, desks and tables. Then they thoroughly wash the inside windows and floors, finishing off the linoleum floors with three coats of wax.

All carpeting in the building also is scrubbed and washed. The finishing touches come a week or two before school reopens when all the outside windows are washed until they sparkle.

The men take an obvious pride in their work. Gus Klein, chief custodian at Cooper Junior High School in Buffalo Grove, compared the children's school desks before and after the men had worked on them. The tone of accomplishment in this voice was apparent.

"Just look at these desks," he said, pointing out the dirt, the penciled doodles, and the ever-present gum stuck into cracks underneath the desktops.

"IF THE KIDS would just stick their gum on the flat parts of the desks it'd be easy to get off. But no, they've got to stick it in the cracks," he said with a wistful chuckle.

"Still, we get it all off," he said proudly, waving his hand over a row of scrubbed desks. The men tackle the persistent grime with a special extra-powerful cleaner.

Although the men only can do a thorough cleaning job when the children have left for vacations and sun, there is one disadvantage to working in the empty schools—loneliness.

"To tell you the truth, I'd rather have the kids around. This place really is lonely without them, which is why I try to keep the radio going. But it's really like a morgue," Klein said.

MATA ALSO indicated that the children are an important part of the janitors' regular jobs.

"I think if you had men who didn't love kids, they wouldn't stick around for long," he said.

Vernon Twp. sewage plant begins service this week

by JOE FRANZ

The new sewage treatment plant in unincorporated Vernon Township will begin serving Lake County Buffalo Grove residents this week, according to Ray Vogel, construction engineer for the Lake County Public Works Department.

Vogel said Friday workmen were completing a sewer connection which will intercept sewage going to the village's plant on Farrington Drive. The sewage will then be diverted to the new plant on Pekara Drive near Milwaukee Avenue. After the new plant begins serving Buffalo Grove, the old plant will be phased out.

Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said Friday parkways, sidewalks and driveway aprons in front of eight to 10 homes on Farrington Drive have been torn up to make installation of the interceptor sewer possible. He said the area will be restored to its original condition within two weeks.

AFTER BUFFALO Grove switches to the new plant, the village will no longer be responsible for treating sewage in Lake County. This will create a situation similar to Cook County, where village sewage is handled by the Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD).

Village officials said the old treatment plant is operating near capacity and is not capable of handling new developments planned for Lake County. The new plant will be able to handle additional homes, particularly north of Ill. Rte. 83.

The new plant will initially handle two million gallons of raw sewage a day. This is equivalent to sewage from 20,000 persons. In addition to Buffalo Grove, it will serve Long Grove, Riverwoods and parts of Lincolnshire. Service to Long Grove began about two weeks ago.

The plant is the first of a multi-phase project planned in the next several years. At completion the facility will be capable of treating 48 million gallons of sewage a day.

AFTER THE plant treats the sewage it will be dumped into the Des Plaines River. Larson said the sewage will be 67 per cent free of impurities after it is treated. That is cleaner than the water in the river, he said.

The new $3 million facility is financed with revenue bonds and funds from the Environmental Protection Agency. Although the village will not pay for its construction, it will be assessed a monthly treatment fee by Lake County.

The new plant will cost about $4.25 a month for each home, 10 cents more than residents now pay. Larson said the additional expense will be absorbed by the village, not the individual homeowner.

As soon as the new plant begins serving the village, all new homes will be charged a $300 connection fee. Commercial customers will be charged according to single-family waste equivalents. Residents now connected to village mains will not be charged a connection fee, Larson said.

Correction

The playoff game for first and second place in the Buffalo Grove Little League Major League will be held next Tuesday night.

The Rangers and the Flyers will be vying for the top positions.

New coordinator will help kids adjust to first grade

by JEANNETTE DE WYZE
The Dist. 21 school board Thursday night approved the hiring of a primary coordinator to help kindergarten youngsters make a smooth transition to the first grade.

Frances Voris will fill the new coordinator's position. Miss Voris comes to Dist. 21 after working as an elementary reading teacher and reading consultant in Iowa schools.

Her function will be to coordinate kindergarten readiness material with first grade subject matter to allow children to progress at their own rate, particularly in reading and math.

Another major responsibility of the new coordinator will be to work with the district's motor facilitation program which is designed to help children develop coordination.

In the past, only kindergarten children have participated in the program, but school officials plan to expand the program to include first and second grade children who have coordination problems.

THE MOTOR program coordinator's position has been combined with the job of physical education coordinator in the past. Now Pat Rapp will fill the role of district physical education coordinator. According to Marjorie Beu, curriculum director, three parent and kindergarten teacher workshops will be conducted during the school year to discuss the motor facilitation program.

The board also authorized the hiring of Thomas F. O'Brien, as district media coordinator.

The board discussed a request from Commonwealth Edison for an easement for underground lines along the south border of Tarkington School, but decided to take no action.

Although the electric company has agreed to restore the swale in the area to its original condition and grade, the board decided to seek further assurance that the company would also assume the cost for excavating the lines if their removal is necessary in the future.

IN OTHER action, the board authorized the issuing of tax anticipation warrants on 75 per cent of the 1973 education and building fund tax levy. The warrants are essentially a bank loan to be repaid when the 1973 tax levy is collected in 1974. Similar warrants have been issued for several years.

John Barger, assistant superintendent are necessary in rapid growth areas, because of the constant expansion of the school populations.

"If you didn't issue the warrants then you'd essentially be using last year's money to pay for next year's expenditures," he said.

It also was announced at the meeting that the district has filed its claim for state aid for the upcoming year. The district will claim $3.09 million in state aid, based on a daily attendance figure which has increased by 150 students per day over last year.

The claim is more than the figure the district had originally budgeted for state aid, according to Jim Gochis, the district secretary.

OLD-WORLD STYLE bratwurst, soaked in beer and grilled over hickory logs, will be the feature attraction Sunday at the Wheeling Historical Society's annual Brat 'N Beer Fest. The brats will be served on fresh potato rolls smothered with sauerkraut. Beer, fresh corn and German potato salad will round out the menu while a German-style band provides atmosphere music. The fest will begin at 2 p.m. at the parking lot of the Wheeling Trust and Savings Bank.

Brat 'n' Beer Fest should be well stocked this year

by LYNN ASINOF

Wheeling-area residents are expected to consume a record amount of bratwurst at this year's annual Brat 'N Beer Fest Sunday sponsored by the Wheeling Historical Society.

Last year, fest-goers ate 3,600 bratwursts and drank 40 half-barrels of beer before the supply of bratwurst ran out at about 6 p.m. This year the supply of bratwurst has been increased to 5,000 with 55 half-barrels of beer to provide an ample supply.

The bratwurst is prepared German-style. It is first soaked in beer, then grilled over hickory logs, and served on potato rolls smothered with sauerkraut. Hot sweet corn with butter and German potato salad round out the menu planned by Shirley Mueller and Walter Dions.

Mrs. Mueller said all of the potato salad served during the fest is homemade by Wheeling residents. She said the potato rolls are also specially prepared for the fest by a local bakery.

THE BRAT 'N BEER Fest originated in 1969 with the celebration of Wheeling's Diamond Jubilee. The idea of the old-time community picnic was so popular that the Historical Society initiated it as an annual event which now attracts several thousand people from all over the Chicago area.

As part of the festival, the Community Arts League of Wheeling-Buffalo Grove will sponsor an art fair featuring over 65 area artists and craftsmen. Ribbons and cash prizes will be awarded in various categories by the art league.

Three purchase awards are being offered by the Village of Wheeling, the Bank of Buffalo Grove and the Wheeling Trust and Savings Bank. Other local businesses have also donated prizes for the art fair.

German music and entertainment will be provided by the five-piece Jim Campbell group. Music is scheduled to continue into the evening.

THE BRAT 'N BEER Fest will begin at 2 p.m. in the parking lot of the Wheeling Trust and Savings Bank at the corner of Milwaukee Avenue and Dundee Road.

Bob Berger, chairman of this year's fest, said the day's activities should be a family-type affair. "We want this to be a thing for the whole family to have a good time," he said.

The annual fest is the only fund-raising activity sponsored by the historical society. Proceeds will be used to finance the society's activities during the coming year.

Drug overdose in girl's death?

Although the exact cause of death has not been determined, Buffalo Grove police believe Dawn Saloga, 14, of 643 Hawthorne Rd., may have died from a drug overdose.

Miss Saloga was discovered Thursday morning on the bathroom floor by her sister, Jodi, 13. Buffalo Grove firemen responded but were unable to revive her. Police said the girl had been dead for several hours.

Police said several containers of pills was found in the girl's bedroom. Two tablets also were found in a kitchen cabinet. The tablets had been prescribed by a physician for the girl's father, Ernest, police said.

Although police said they did not know if Miss Saloga had taken any of the pills, they were told by the girl's parents that she had been depressed for several days prior to her death. The parents told police she had been upset over problems she was having with her boy friend.

Miss Saloga was pronounced dead on arrival at Northwest Community Hospital and taken to the Cook County Morgue. A spokesman for the coroner's office said tests were being run to determine what caused the girl's death.

Police said Miss Saloga was a recent graduate of Cooper Junior High School and was scheduled to start high school in the fall.

Omni-House is OKd as tax-exempt

by JEANNETTE DE WYZE

Omni House: Youth Services Bureau has received tax exempt status from the Internal Revenue Service, according to Richard Wynn, president of the Omni House board.

The status officially recognizes the bureau as a not-for-profit organization which operates in the public interest, thus qualifying it for the tax exemption.

Wynn said the bureau received state recognition of its not-for-profit status months ago, but said the IRS recognition had been delayed seven months.

HE SAID one immediate result of the long-awaited recognition will be to allow for the clearance of two contribution checks from the Wheeling/Buffalo Grove United Fund and the Wieboldt Foundation totaling more than $15,000.

Foundations and the United Fund can donate money only to tax exempt organizations.

In addition to allowing for the final clearance of money already pledged, Wynn said the status change will make two other dramatic differences to the bureau.

First, the bureau will be able to seek money from other foundations. Wynn said that campaigns to raise foundation money in the past have been frustrated by the lack of a tax-exempt status.

Secondly, the changed status now should allow for more individual contributions than ever, Wynn said.

"THERE ARE A number of people who are interested in supporting this kind of an organization, and understandably so, because the organization is working in a beneficial way with the youth of America. This change should now enable them to make donations," he said.

Omni House director Peter Digre said the tax-exempt status is retroactive to June 29, 1972, the date of the organization's incorporation. Thus, everyone who has already donated to Omni House may claim the contributions as deductions if the contributions meet with the IRS criteria.

He said even though he is "remarkably pleased with our financial development so far," he expects more financial support forthcoming as a result of the new status.

OMNI HOUSE already has collected around $140,000 for the upcoming year. Churches, PTA's, social services, local governments and businesses already have contributed. About 40 individuals also have made donations, he said.

Digre said the organization is hoping to raise around $7,000 to $8,000 more by the beginning of October.

"We should then have plenty of money for the year and we may even be able to increase our services consistent with the population growth," he said.

Knife-wielding robber of 5 stores still sought

Mount Prospect and Des Plaines police are coordinating efforts to catch a knife-wielding grocery store bandit they believe robbed five stores last week.

The bandit struck twice Friday, grabbing $140 from the Convenient Food Mart 1760 W. Algonquin Rd., Mount Prospect, and an undisclosed amount from the Open Pantry Store, Touhy Avenue and Cedar Street, Des Plaines. The three earlier robberies were in Des Plaines.

"There's no doubt about it," Mount

Prospect Police Sgt. Ralph Doney said Friday, when asked if the Mount Prospect store had been robbed by the same man who robbed the Des Plaines stores.

At 9:45 a.m. Friday, the bandit, armed with a four-inch knife, entered the Convenient Food Mart and ordered the clerk to empty the cash register and open the safe. He brandished the knife as he said, "Give me your money," according to police.

FRIDAY'S SECOND robbery was at

2:15 p.m. Des Plaines police would not release many details about the armed robbery, but did say the description was the same as in the past four robberies and the man spent only a short time in the store.

According to a police radio dispatch, the robber was seen leaving the Open Pantry store in a late model, metallic green Mustang.

Police described the robber as 18 to 20 years old, 5 feet, 10 inches, 150 to 160 pounds, with dark blond shoulder-length hair.

MOUNT PROSPECT police said the man wore sunglasses, a light blue faded sweatshirt and grey washpants. He ran out of the store and between some nearby buildings, where he was last seen by witnesses.

If, as police believe, the robber is the same in all five cases, Friday's Mount Prospect haul was his known largest. Last Wednesday he entered the Convenient Food Mart, 1703 Oakton St., Des Plaines, threatened the manager with a knife and left with more than $100 in cash. That was shortly before 9 p.m.

A 7-Eleven food store, 810 S. Elmhurst Rd., Des Plaines, was robbed of $50 Tuesday and another 7-Eleven, at 611 W. Golf Rd., Des Plaines, was robbed of $100 Monday.

Reportedly, Des Plaines police are following several leads, none of which have been disclosed.

Complaint in court today

New law to help city fight noise from railroad yard

by MIKE ZAREMBA

While the Chicago & North Western Ry. challenges the legality of the Des Plaines noise ordinance today, some new ammunition for the city's cause is brewing in Springfield.

The Illinois Pollution Control Board adopted a proposal that will become law in about three weeks — regulating noise decibels emitted beyond property boundary lines, according to an Illinois Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) official.

The city's complaint against the railroad violating the city noise ordinance of 55 decibels will be heard in the Des Plaines branch of Cook County Circuit Court today at 9:30 a.m.

When the new state noise regulation law goes into effect, the ceiling for train yard noise will be 51 decibels between 11 p.m. and 7 a.m.

Residents of the Cumberland Terrace area have been protesting for more than three years about the noise from train engines idling and starting between the early morning hours of 4:45 and 6 a.m., and awakening nearby homeowners.

PHILIP LINDAHL, city environmental officer, filed the noise complaint after tests revealed the noise level readings on the train yard noise consistently exceeded the 55 decibel limit set by the city.

The court case today is expected to be continued, according to City Attorney Robert DiLeonardi and Thomas E. Greenland, attorney for the railroad.

"The legal questions raised will have to be disposed of first, before we can get into the facts," DiLeonardi said. "But we will be ready with answers."

JAMES READ, manager of the surveillance division noise pollution controls with the EPA, said the problem of railroad yard noise is very common. Highland Park, LaGrange, Brookfield and other communities are having similar problems like Des Plaines, Read said.

He said there will be two ways to apply the new noise regulation law. A complaint must be filed with the EPA and then a time will be scheduled for an investigation. Read said it would probably take one year for action to follow after the complaint is filed. There is an immediate applied nuisance section that would work faster, he said, and the time to correct the noise problem would depend on the particular case.

"Several things can be done. The Illinois Pollution Control Board will decide the case and its severity, which could result in a fine, a warning or a series of actions," Read said.

Chicago group sues city to get solicit OK

A Chicago environmental group has sued the city of Des Plaines in a court test of the city's solicitation ordinance.

Citizens for Better Environment filed suit late last week in federal court charging Des Plaines violated their civil rights by refusing to allow them to solicit for funds door to door.

City Atty. Robert DiLeonardi said Friday he will appear in court today on behalf of Mayor Herbert Behrel and the city's 16 aldermen to answer the suit.

According to DiLeonardi, CBE specifically charged the city "impairing their rights of free speech and free press." CBE is asking the court for a temporary injunction that would allow them to solicit for funds.

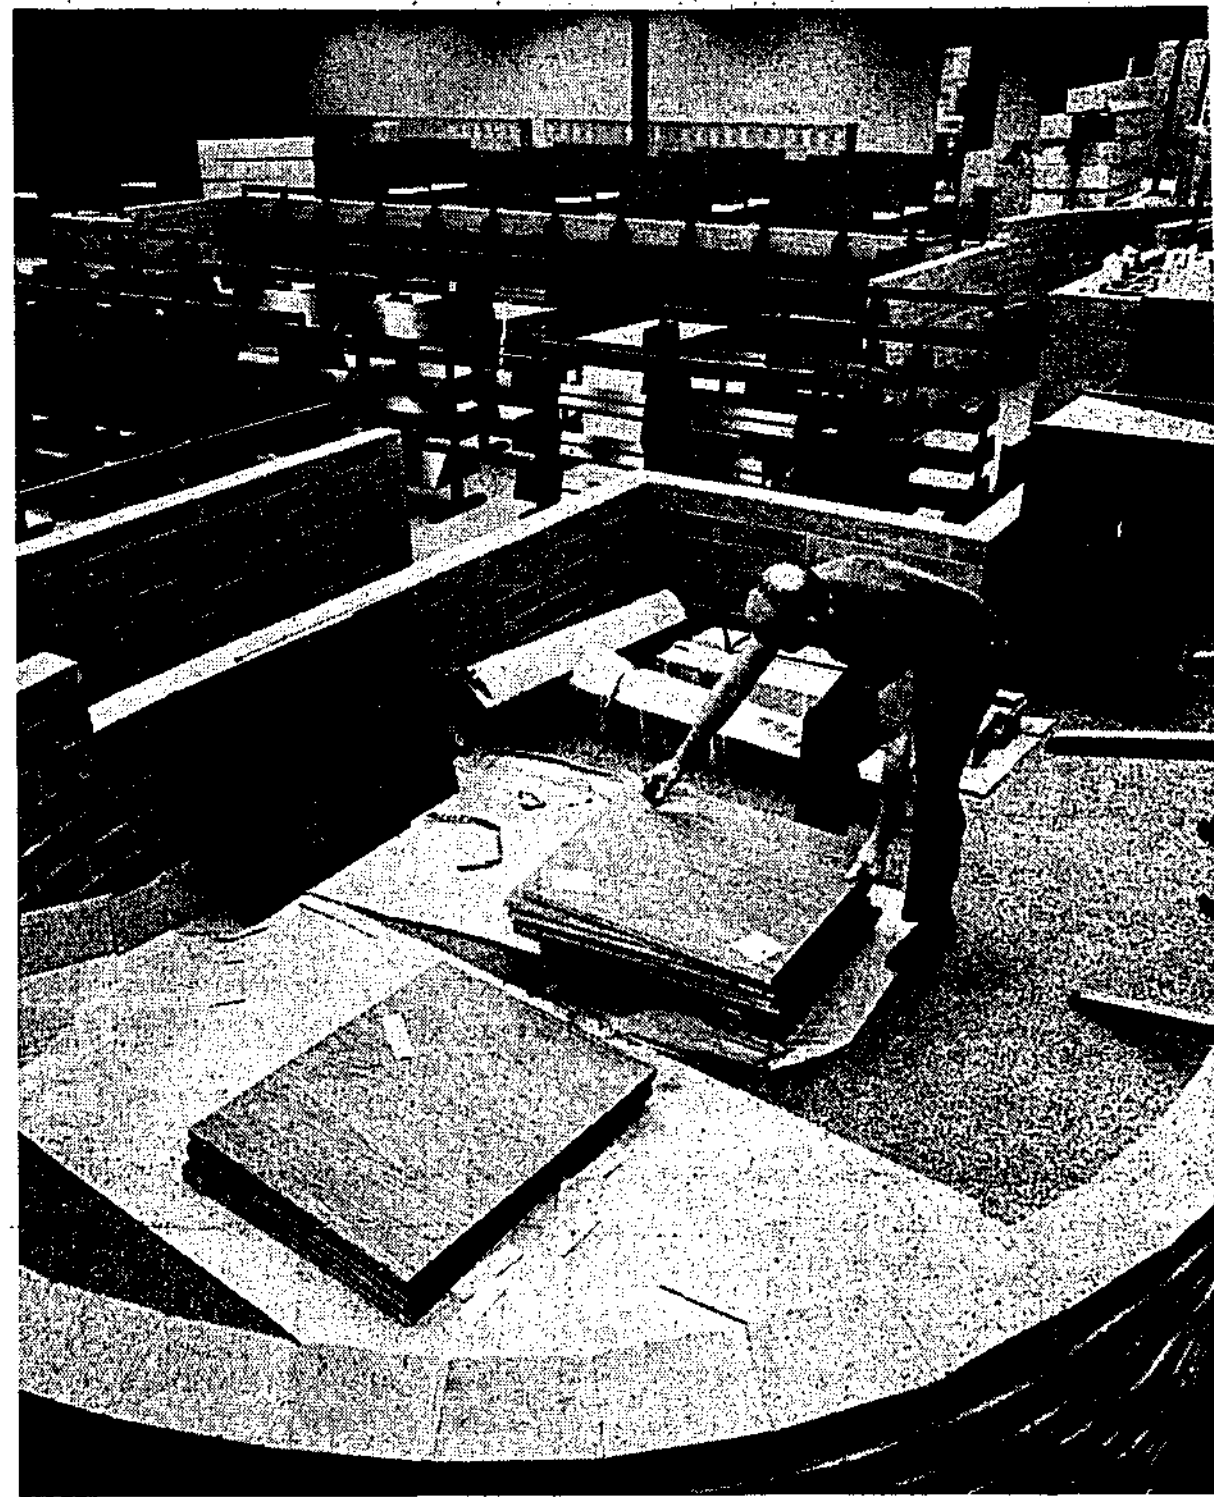

Also named in the suit are the municipalities of LaGrange, Cicero, Berwyn, Morton Grove and Oak Lawn which have forbidden CBE from soliciting.

CBE CANVASSED Des Plaines door to door in late June seeking $3 to $5 donations. The group did not have a city permit.

"We picked seven communities that we might go to court with. Des Plaines was one of them," Marc Anderson, CBE executive director told the Herald at that time. Anderson was not available for comment this weekend.

CBE contends municipalities do not have the right to prohibit solicitation. Park Ridge lost a 1971 U. S. Supreme Court decision to regulate solicitation, Anderson said.

He said CBE solicitors walked Des Plaines in June with "the intention of getting arrested so we could prosecute." No CBE solicitors were arrested and (Continued on page 5)

PLAGUED WITH construction delays, Friendship Junior High School in Des Plaines is finally taking on the appearance of a real school. ## Commission to urge permanent housing panel

by DOROTHY OLIVER

The Special Des Plaines Housing Commission will recommend unanimously that the city council set up a permanent local housing commission.

The special group will meet Thursday to approve its final report which will be presented at the Aug. 6 council meeting.

Chairman Ralph Martin spent the last month consolidating three preliminary reports which have received unanimous approval from the eight commission members.

THE FINAL REPORT will ask the council to establish the permanent commission to study substandard housing, and senior citizen housing.

They recommended the permanent commission study:

- Updating the present housing and building codes so they are formulated to permit officials to cope with the realities of 1973 and take advantage of technological advances in the construction industry;

- Updating the zoning ordinance to meet the needs of residents without changing the basic character of the community;

- The incidence of substandard housing and over-crowded housing conditions, including the problem of illegal conversions of older residences;

- The need for senior citizen housing including the manner in which such needs might best be satisfied;

- Formation of a Des Plaines Housing Authority as there may be some real advantages in forming a local authority which would be more aware of Des Plaines' problems and needs and could act more effectively;

- All federal government financial assistance programs which may relate to the general housing scene in Des Plaines and the individual needs of the residents of the city.

They suggested that the commission have no general or specific authority but only powers to recommend to the council while making itself available to groups who wish to state views on Des Plaines housing.

The special commission established that substandard housing does exist in the city, more frequently in older neighborhoods although some has been torn down in commercial and multiple-family areas.

"Apparently the basic cause of 'substandard' housing was simply greed," states the preliminary report by commission member John Brennan and Building Commissioner Alfred Prickett. "Ne-farious owners have made sneak conversions to accommodate roomers or to form a separate apartment in a single-family house. In some cases these conversions constitute adequate housing which has existed for several years with a turnover of ownership."

THEIR REPORT recommends the permanent commission maintain "a policy of preventing future 'sneak' conversions by instituting a file of neighborhood complaints and encouraging the public's co-operation."

They asked that an ordinance requiring maintenance of the exterior of building, including stairways, porches, garages, tool sheds, etc., be adopted.

The special commission will recommend the council take a "wait and see" attitude towards senior citizen housing while directing the permanent commission to study possible future sights.

"Senior citizens should be able to walk to stores, shops, transportation facilities and community facilities," the preliminary report states.

The special commission declined to recommend or comment on future sites but pointed out that suitable sites are scarce and "it would seem sensible to utilize existing public lands" for future sites.

The special commission will meet at 7:30 p.m. Thursday to approve the final report.

The local scene

DES PLAINES

New dentist in town

The Chicago Dental Society has announced that Dr. Terry A. Sellke is now in practice at 490 Lee St., Des Plaines.

Sellke is a graduate of the University of Illinois at Dentistry. He is married and resides at 103 Jeffrey Ln., Des Plaines.

It's 'Brookwood Month'

The City of Des Plaines has proclaimed August as "Brookwood Convalescent Center Month."

In a proclamation issued by Mayor Herbert H. Behrel, the Convalescent Center, now celebrating its 10th year of service, was singled out as "an outstanding facility with a highly professional staff and for its outstanding service to . . . and growth in behalf of our community."

Brookwood's five-story addition in 1968 makes it one of the largest private nursing homes in Illinois with 290 beds.

Brookwood is fully accredited by The Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals and is certified as a participating extended care facility for the Medicare Program and the Blue Cross-Plan for Hospital Care.

In conjunction with its 10th anniversary, Brookwood is offering tours of its facilities during August and will sponsor a complete activities program and open street dance with resident participation this Sunday.

Trace Olympics to begin

More than 1,000 residents of local Trace apartment-recreational communities are expected to compete next month in the third annual Trace Olympics.

Local residents in the preliminary competition, Aug. 18, at the complex swimming pools, will represent Fairway Trace, Greenway Trace, and North Shore Trace, all in Des Plaines.

Winners will advance to the finals, Aug. 25, at Rosewood Trace, Hinsdale.

Prizes will be awarded in six freestyle events for age groups 4 and up; a beauty queen competition for girls 2 to 6; couples balloon toss; penny find and medley free-style mixed relay events.

Students must register

Students who plan to attend one of the Maine Township High Schools this fall and who have not registered previously are urged to do so now. Registration is being conducted daily in the guidance offices at Maine East, North, South and West.

One or both parents must accompany the student who is registering for the first time. Parents desiring appointments or further information should call Maine East, 825-4184; Maine North, 298-5500; or Maine West, 827-0170.

All students entering ninth grade this fall are required to take a placement test before registration will be completed. Students who have not taken this test can do so at 7:45 a.m. on Wednesday, Aug. 15, at Maine West, 1733 S. Wolf Road, Des Plaines. This applies mainly to students who have moved into the district within the last few months.

James Birchfield an ensign

James W. Birchfield was sworn into the United States Navy as an ensign by his father, Lt. Comdr. Robert W. Birchfield, USNR (retired). Ensign Birchfield was awarded a complete medical school scholarship under the Armed Forces Health Professions Scholarship.

A graduate of the University of Notre Dame, South Bend, Ind., he will enter the University of Illinois School of Medicine in September.

His parents reside at 2045 Spruce St. Birchfield is married to the former Anita L. Birchfield of Des Plaines. They live at 229 Harrison, Oak Park.

'Creative Corners' program

The Des Plaines Park District is offering a program for preschool age children called "Creative Corners."

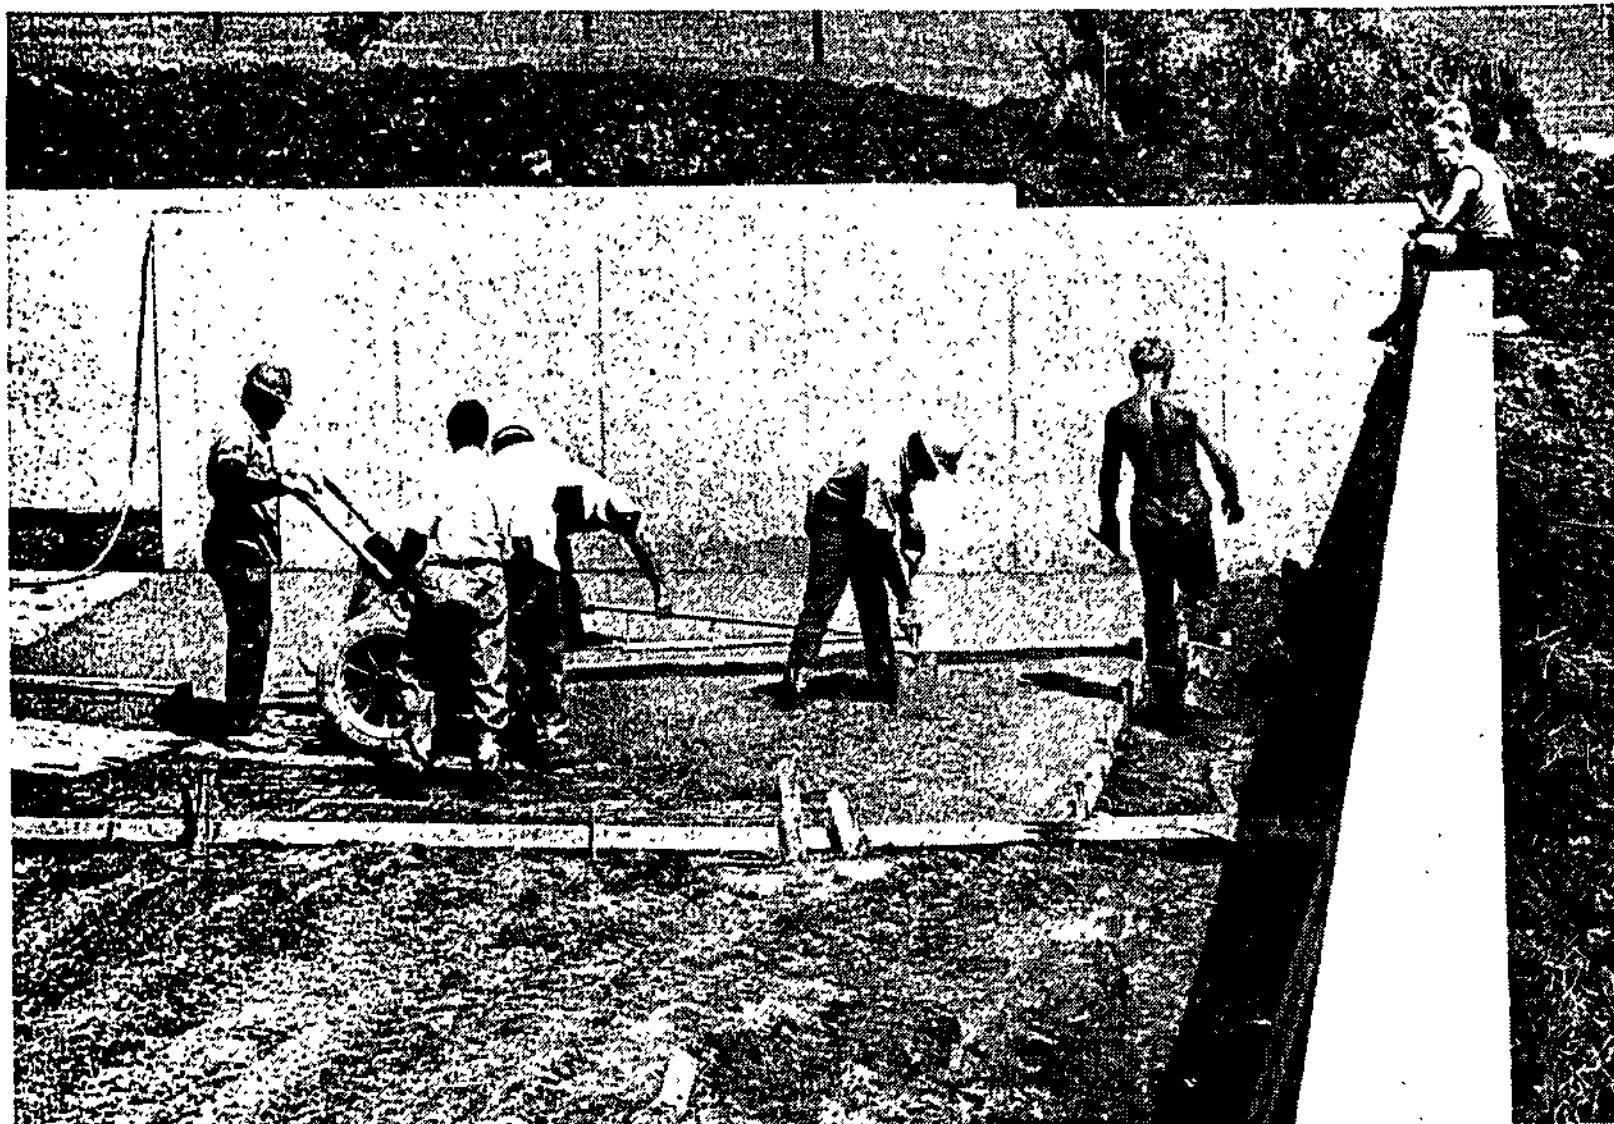

Registration will be held at West Park on Aug. 24, on a first-come first-served basis, from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m. The program is designed for 4-year-olds; children must be 4 years of age on or before December 1, 1973, to register. Proof of age is required.

The program is divided into three sessions: Session I—September 4 through November 21; Session II—November 28 through December 21; Christmas Break; Classes resume January 3 through February 22; Session III—February 25 through April 11; Spring Break; Classes resume April 22 through May 24.

The class schedule is: Monday, Wednesday, Friday mornings, 9 - 11:30 a.m.; Monday, Wednesday afternoons, 1 - 3:30 p.m.; Tuesday, Thursday mornings, 9 - 11:30 a.m.

Fees are $35 per 3 day - 12 week session; $35 per 2 day - 12 week session.

A deposit of $10 is required at registration and the balance is due at the Des Plaines Park District office, 748 Pearson before Sept. 3.

IT'S A WELCOME SIGHT to see construction workers finishing part of the new Friendship Junior High School, 550 Elizabeth Ln., Des Plaines. Classroom should be ready by September, but the gymnasium area will still need work before it can be used. The Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 school go to Springfield Wednesday to meet with John Moore, head of the ICDB, to discuss these questions.

Narrowing the gap with grade school

High hopes for Friendship Junior High

by LINDA PUNCH

Narrowing the gap between elementary school and junior high will be the major thrust of the soon-to-be-opened Friendship Junior High School in Des Plaines.

While curriculum in the school will be "quite traditional," attempts will be made to help youngsters adapt better to the junior high environment, Robert Brower, Friendship principal, said.

"I would like to develop a more favorable attitude in children towards their school work," he said. "The responsibility for the attitude change falls directly on the teachers and how they relate to students."

Brower hopes to combine the closeness of elementary school with the specialization of junior high.

"I think when young people are moved from class to class, there is a cost as far as mental health and feelings of stability," he said. "The attitude of junior high youngsters towards school is different than that of elementary school children."

"THERE ARE advantages in having specialization of teachers, but it shouldn't come at the cost of children's social behavior and attitudes towards school," he added.

Teachers at Friendship will "in a sense, assume the guidance function an elementary school teacher normally takes," according to Brower.

"In elementary school, the teacher usually takes time each day to talk to students about new toys, their dog — anything that is important to them," he said. "When they finish talking, the student is ready to settle down to work."

When children reach junior high school, teachers usually don't have time to talk to a child about his personal interests.

"I plan to allow at least 15 to 20 minutes during homeroom period for teachers to discuss subjects of personal interest to their students," he said. "My hope is that teachers will learn to understand their students more."

BROWER PLANS to ease the transition from elementary school and junior high by assigning all sixth-grade students to one specific location in the school. The students will stay together as a group throughout the day rather than splitting up to go to separate classes.

At the seventh-grade level, two teachers will teach a combination of studies rather than five different teachers teaching a single subject.

"This arrangement gives youngsters more stability while teachers get to know their students better. Instead of a teacher trying to get to know 180 different students, he can concentrate on 50 students," Brower said.

Friendship School, at 550 Elizabeth Ln., is scheduled to open Sept. 4. While work in the academic areas of the school will be completed, Brower said construction on other areas will still be in progress.

"One thing I want to assure parents — the program is not experimental," he said. "We just want children to have a more enthusiastic attitude towards school."

16-inch softball a hit with the ladies

by MARY HOULIHAN

It's Tuesday night under the lights at Kopp Park and the bases are loaded. Up to bat steps a tall, attractive redhead, dressed in the uniform of the Des Plaines Fire Belles.

Crouching down, she lifts the bat gingerly and gets ready for the pitch. There's a swing and a hit, and two of the Belles race around the bases toward home plate.

"Everybody run. Everybody run," screams the Fire Belles' manager.

"Duck down, baby! Duck down," yells one of the women to her teammate as she makes the turn into home plate.

AS THE TWO women career home to score the double, a cheer goes up behind the backstop and smiles fill the faces of proud husbands and children.

The Mount Prospect Women's 16-inch softball league is in full swing. This is the first year the park district has had a women's softball league.

"It started about two years ago," said Lois Lindberg, recreation supervisor for the park district.

"I enjoy playing and so I went out to Friendship Park to play with some other people," said Miss Lindberg. "It was just a come-as-you-are type of thing. Then, last year, it got to be so big, with 70 or 80 women, it got tough to handle and we had to ask the husbands to umpire. To get more organized I decided to start a league. It was just an idea and I decided to try it. From the last couple of years, there were women who had really been going on about this," she said.

ALTHOUGH Miss Lindberg said some of the women were a little afraid of the competition in a league, there were many others who were excited.

"We drafted managers and they got their teams together. They each got their own sponsor."

The league now includes four teams: the Ms. Fits, who sponsor themselves; the Women of Waycinden (WOW) sponsored by the Waycinden Boys' Little League; the Workshop, sponsored by the Workshop Employment Agency, and the Des Plaines Fire Belles, who are sponsored by the men of the Des Plaines Fire Department.

Although a women's softball league may sound a little like the women are just trying to imitate the men, it's not true.

The women on the league look very much like women, all with their hair and makeup fixed perfectly for the big game ahead. It would be hard not to recognize the Women of Waycinden as women. Wearing red shirts with the white letters WOW emblazoned across the front, they come across as very feminine.

THEIR PLAYING ability is not bad either.

Most of the women, who heard about the league either through friends or from the park district flyer, are out there playing strictly for recreation, but they also love the sense of competition.

"We all have that competitive spirit," explained Mrs. McDermott, a member of WOW team.

Asked whether they would like to play on a mixed men's and women's league, most of the women answered no, however.

"Oh, good heavens, no," Mrs. McDermott said.

"It's not fair to either the men or the women," said another. "I feel the men and the women are different in their abilities," she said.

There was one lady who said she thinks she might enjoy a mixed league, however. "I like sports and I like to win. It would probably be too much competition, but I would like it," she said.

THOUGH THE majority of the women have played softball before, some of them haven't. Many had to take a good look at the rules this year.

"This year, we got the rule book thrown at us," said Mrs. McDermott. "And now we've got to stop and say 'aha! there's a rule.' Now we object."

According to Miss Lindberg, the women are really picking things up. "They get better as they go on," she said.

So far, the Ms. Fits are in the lead with five wins. The Fire Belles haven't won any yet. But, with a red-headed slugger, who's to say what could happen next Tuesday night?

Maryville school at River Trails?

The proposed new school facility for students at Maryville Academy, Des Plaines, may be squeezed onto the same site as the River Trails Junior High School, 1900 E. Kensington Rd.

According to Ray Morris, project coordinator for the Illinois Capital Development Board (ICDB), which oversees the construction of all new school facilities in the state, the junior high has been proposed to the River Trails Dist. 26 Board as a recommended site.

"There's enough available land, it looks like, to put this school there," said Morris.

JEAN MEISTER, business manager for the district, says the junior high site contains about 12.5 acres. Of that, the junior high school building occupies about two acres.

"I would guess we can get by with about five acres and even less if necessary" for the Maryville facility, said Board Pres. Lloyd Demel.

The ICDB is now waiting for the school board's response to the site. However, according to Demel, "the majority of the board is not yet convinced by the information that one site is better than another."

Demel said the board still has several questions concerning sites that need to be answered. These questions fall into three categories: the educational, sociological and economic aspects of the site.

Several members of the board plan to go to Springfield Wednesday to meet with John Moore, head of the ICDB, to discuss these questions.

IF THE BOARD decides not to concur with the ICDB in their site proposal, the ICDB will not force the site decision on them, according to Morris. "If we can't concur on a site, we'll have to look at the other possibilities," he said.

The most likely alternate for a site seems to be a 10-acre parcel of land owned by the Archdiocese of Chicago. The land is directly north of Maryville. Though Demel said the board doesn't favor the Archdiocesan property, the majority of the board, reportedly, is leaning that way.

According to Demel, the board is pressing for a decision on the site soon after Wednesday's meeting. "I am expecting, pushing and hoping for a decision next week," he said.

Chicago group sues city to get solicitation OK

Behrel ordered police to use a "kid gloves" approach — "put them in their cars and tell them to leave town."

The group applied three or four times for a solicitation permit. Behrel originally denied a CBE request to solicit in November, 1971. Another request was denied in June, 1972, and the city council voted to deny a permit in October, 1972.

The city ordinance, drawn up after the council heard reports of fraudulent charity collections in the city, requires groups to register with the mayor and prove nonprofit status. The penalty for solicitation without registering with the city is a maximum fine of $500.

CBE IS A CHARITY listed with the Illinois Attorney General's Office which began operations just over two years ago. About five weeks after it began door to door collections the attorney general's Charitable Trusts Division won an injunction against CBE, ordering it to stop misrepresenting the use of donations.

"They were stating the money they collected would be used to increase the staff of the Environmental Control Division of the attorney general's office," said Barbara Howell, auditor of the Charitable Trust Division.

Since that time the attorney general has received other complaints about CBE, she said.

SCHAUMBURG ALSO has refused to let CBE solicit for funds although they are not named in the suit. Hoffman Estates allowed the organization to solicit after the village board decided they had no legal right to prohibit charitable organizations from soliciting.

Schaumburg Village Atty. Jack Siegel said the village based its authority to deny the CBE permit on home rule provisions granted in the new Illinois Constitution. Siegel said previous lawsuits were settled before home-rule powers went into effect.

DiLeonardi refused to comment on how Des Plaines would answer the suit.

Flood committee appointed; effective controls coming?

by DIANE STEFANOS

More effective flood control for Elk Grove Village residents may become a reality now that the Plan Commission has appointed members to a village flood committee.

After five months of waiting, a Thursday night meeting marked the beginning of the flood subcommittee. The 12 appointed members met each other and planned their future work on the village's flooding conditions.

The village had recommended to the Plan Commission in March that a flood committee be formed. William Shannon, chairman of the commission, recently selected interested members according to representation guidelines set up by the village.

THE VOLUNTEER committee members include Donna Farley, chairman of the Elk Grove Health Commission; Marty Durkin, a park district representative; Wilbur Mitchell, director of the Northwest Mosquito Abatement District; and Don Clagla, the village engineer.

Ike Speer, Centex representative; Allen Hamilton, representative of Tremmel-Crow developers; and Robert Calkins, representative of Kenroy, Inc., will also serve as committee representatives of village developers.

Interested citizens on the committee will be Dave Pallgloff, 789 Penrith Ave.; Joan Marsh, 36 Woodcrest Ln.; and Bernard Kan, 558 Grosvenor Ln.

Joseph Cimino and Marcus Grice are Plan Commission members who will serve as chairmen for the committee. The Flood Committee will conduct its first official meeting on Tuesday, Aug. 7, at 8 p.m. in the staff conference room of the village hall, 901 Wellington Ave.

"THURSDAY NIGHT was just an opportunity to have the new members meet each other, be acquainted with the sources of help that are available to them, and be informed of the problems they will deal with," said Shannon.

"In general, I would like the committee to work on an acceptable ordinance and flood plan for the village. They must find adequate solutions to building and flood plans and things like detention and retention of storm water in the village," he said.

With a variety of professional viewpoints being represented on the committee, members like Ike Speer, assistant secretary of Centex, feel that this is an asset to the committee.

"I think we will be able to accomplish quite a bit on flood control in the village with the four to five different viewpoints that will be offered on the committee. We have residents, engineers, developers and a wide variety of individuals working on a serious problem," Steer said.

"I'm sure we'll be able to offer the village a lot of help. We don't know exactly what we'll be working on until we can meet together and discuss the problems of flooding in the village," he said.

Centex developers hope to avoid more delays

Centex developers got an early start on Section 19 of their Winston Grove subdivision in Elk Grove Village to avoid problems that plagued building in Section 18.

Although the new section west of Ill. Rte. 53 and north of Nerge Road was only approved last week, developers have already done preliminary grading, and have sold several tentative sites.

Some of the homes in the new section are scheduled to be completed about the same time the last homes in Section 18, south of Nerge Road, are to be delivered.

Prospective owners in Section 18 waited about a year, in some cases, to get into homes that were inaccessible. The developers said bad weather prevented workmen from completing streets and some of the houses.

ALTHOUGH THE new section of more than 200 homes was recommended for approval by the plan commission, several village officials met in a private dinner meeting with Centex developers the night before the village board meeting. The section was approved Tuesday night. Centex officials said Friday that 180 homes have been delivered in section 18, leaving 109 to be completed. Work in the new section is scheduled to begin Wednesday, after building permits have been obtained from the village, according to Guy Rosebrook, assistant vice president of Centex Homes Corp.

"Even before we received approval from the village on the work in the section (18), mass grading was being done on the land. Now, almost all the bad earth has been replaced and the ground has been leveled," Rosebrook said.

THIS SHOULD prevent delays, since that was not done for section 18, he said. "Bad weather can slow building down in any case, but at least if it comes, we won't have the same problem and delay that we did last time," Rosebrook said.

Centex will have to comply with some new building requirements in the village for the first time in the new section. The new requirements are in the village's new building ordinance, passed last November. The builder must provide a schedule and order of construction, a plan for parking workers' cars, and a location for a material storage yard during construction.

James Blaeser, regional vice president of Centex, expects that 95-per cent of homes in Section 18 will be delivered by September. Problems there had caused people to appear at the village board meeting in the past, and the developer paid for a dinner this spring to explain to the owners why their homes weren't ready.

Schaumburg Twp. teachers OK 3-yr. pact

Teachers in Schaumburg School Dist. 54 voted overwhelmingly Thursday to accept a new three-year contract.

More than 200 teachers who attended a special ratification meeting at Jane Adams Junior High School voted 6-to-1 to accept that pact.

The vote came after more than an hour of discussion during which teachers questioned Jay Hanson, president of the Schaumburg Education Association (SEA), on the details of the contract. More than 600 of the district's nearly 700 teachers belong to the SEA.

Some concern was expressed over the inability of the SEA to renegotiate salaries during the first two years of the contract. The agreement calls for renewed salary talks after the second years of the contract if the cost of living rises more than 4 1/2 per cent during that time.

Hanson said he had received private assurances from school board members that salaries could be renegotiated after the first year of the contract if the cost of living skyrocketed.

WHEN THE contract agreement was announced last Monday both Hanson and School Board Pres. Donnie Rudd expressed confidence the contract would be accepted by both sides. The school board will vote Aug. 2.

The contract, with an $8,500 base pay, calls for a pay raise of 8.21, 7.46 and 7.31 per cent over the next three years. The percentage increase includes a standard (Continued on page 5)

PLAGUED WITH construction delays, Friendship Junior High School in Des Plaines is finally taking on the appearance of a real school. Here a construction worker puts some of the final touches on the learning resource center. Most of the building should be completed in time for school in September, according to recent construction progress reports. Story, another photo on Page 5.

High hopes for Friendship Junior High

by LINDA PUNCH

Narrowing the gap between elementary school and junior high will be the major thrust of the soon-to-be-opened Friendship Junior High School in Des Plaines.

While curriculum in the school will be "quite traditional," attempts will be made to help youngsters adapt better to the junior high environment, Robert Brower, Friendship principal, said.

"I would like to develop a more favorable attitude in children towards their school work," he said. "The responsibility for the attitude change falls directly on the teachers and how they relate to students."

Brower hopes to combine the closeness of elementary school with the specialization of junior high.

"I think when young people are moved from class to class, there is a cost as far as mental health and feelings of stability," he said. "The attitude of junior high youngsters towards school is different than that of elementary school children."

"THERE ARE advantages in having specialization of teachers, but it shouldn't come at the cost of children's social behavior and attitudes towards school," he added.

Teachers at Friendship will "in a sense, assume the guidance function an elementary school teacher normally takes," according to Brower.

"In elementary school, the teacher usually takes time each day to talk to students about new toys, their dog — anything that is important to them," he said. "When they finish talking, the student is ready to settle down to work."

When children reach junior high school, teachers usually don't have time to talk to a child about his personal interests.

"I plan to allow at least 15 to 20 minutes during homeroom period for teachers to discuss subjects of personal interest to their students," he said. "My hope is that teachers will learn to understand their students more."

BROWER PLANS to ease the transition from elementary school and junior high by assigning all sixth-grade students to one specific location in the school. The students will stay together as a group throughout the day rather than splitting up to go to separate classes.

At the seventh-grade level, two teachers will teach a combination of studies rather than five different teachers teaching a single subject.

"This arrangement gives youngsters more stability while teachers get to know their students better. Instead of a teacher trying to get to know 180 different students, he can concentrate on 50 students," Brower said.

Friendship School, at 550 Elizabeth Ln., is scheduled to open Sept. 4. While work in the academic areas of the school will be completed, Brower said construction on other areas will still be in progress.

"One thing I want to assure parents — the program is not experimental," he said. "We just want children to have a more enthusiastic attitude towards school."

Remember Lincoln County?

Should 6 area townships secede from Cook County? Idea's founders haven't given up yet

by MARCIA KRAMER

Remember Lincoln County?

There may still come the day when residents of the Northwest suburbs live in Lincoln, rather than Cook County.

Republican diehards who hatched the idea two years ago of the six Northwest suburban townships seceding from Cook County and forming a new county haven't given up yet.

They still maintain that the new county would provide local control over local matters, especially the zoning of unincorporated property, and better tax benefits — suburban residents now pay taxes but receive few services from Cook County, they say. Not incidentally, Lincoln County would be controlled by Republicans, rather than the Cook County Democratic machine.

THE GOPS MASTERMINDING the new county proposal have come up with a new tactic that they hope will allow Barrington, Elk Grove, Hanover, Palatine, Schaumburg and Wheeling townships to be known as Lincoln County.

The strategy is this: Present state law stipulates that a change in county boundaries must be approved in referendum by a majority of persons living in that county who vote in the general election. The feeling among Lincoln County advocates is that most Chicago voters wouldn't bother casting ballots on the Lincoln County issue, and thus would be recorded as "no" votes. Therefore, they hope to change the law so only a majority of those persons who vote on the specific issue would be needed.

Sounds simple? Not really. The chances of getting amendatory bills through the General Assembly are mixed, according to State Sen. David J. Regner, R-Mount Prospect, who says he will sponsor the legislation in the next session.

Even if the bills get through the legislature in one piece, Regner says, there's no telling what "maverick" Gov. Daniel Walker is liable to do.

"HE'S TOTALLY UNPREDICTABLE," Regner said. "If he's mad enough at Mayor Daley at the time the bill is on his desk, there's a good chance he'll sign it."

And if the governor happens to be on good terms with the mayor at the time and doesn't want to jeopardize their tenuous relationship: "He'll kill it."

The Lincoln County question is clearly a politically partisan issue, backed by Republicans who are anxious to remove the heavily GOP suburbs from the Democratic control of Cook County. The Democrats don't especially want to give up the six revenue-producing townships.

So far, Lincoln County has been merely in the talking stage, and the concept, in fact, has been dormant for more than a year.

One of the biggest obstacles facing the new county advocates has been how to get the plan accepted in referendum by a majority of Cook County residents, both those in the six townships and the remainder of the county as well.

With the new strategy, they hope to bypass that hurdle.

"WE'RE GOING TO TRY to sneak it past the Chicago Democrats," said Wendell E. Jones, the key organizer of the campaign and Palatine village president. "If they know it as the 'Lincoln County bill,' they'll kill it."

Regner, however, a veteran of seven years in the legislature, doesn't hold out much hope for sneaking a bill of this magnitude past the eagle-eyed Democrats.

"A thing like this that would have a very direct effect on the political future of their party they would watch like a hawk," Regner observed. "There's no possibility of sneaking it by."

Regner said a Lincoln County bill could not pass in the House at this time, where, with the death of a Republican legislator, each party has 88 members.

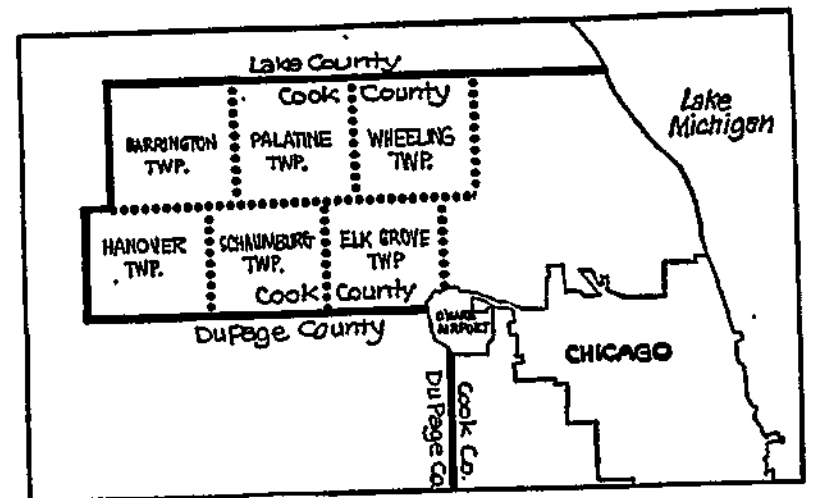

The bill would, however, have a chance in the Senate, he said, where the GOP holds a slim 30-29 majority.

VOTING IN BOTH HOUSES will be along party lines, Regner predicted, as "the mayor would instruct his men to be against it, lock, stock and barrel." Downstate Republicans probably would go along with their suburban counterparts in supporting the legislation, he said.

Not all area legislators look favorably upon Lincoln County. Democratic State Rep. Eugenia S. Chapman of Arlington Heights considers the Lincoln County plan simply a way to create Republican patronage jobs.

"They evidently feel the township jobs aren't enough," she said. "I see no other reason for the existence of Lincoln County than providing jobs for Republican loyalists."

She added cynically: "In these days of Watergate, I don't blame the Republicans for wanting to do something to bolster their power."

Medical center has history of dedicated care, service

by DIANE STEFANOS

What's in a name?

In the case of the Alexian Brothers Medical Center, there is an extended history of dedicated medical care.

Elk Grove Village's Alexian Brothers center is the second in Illinois. The first was opened in Chicago in 1886. Foundations were later opened in other cities like St. Louis Mo.; Oshkosh, Wis. and San Jose, Calif.

The original order of Alexian Brothers originated in Constantinople in 1347, during the Black Plague.

As a group of laymen faced with the task of caring for the sick and burying the dead at that time, they later chose to remain together to carry out the same services even after the plague was over.

Choosing Saint Alexius as their patron, these men became known in Germany as the Congregation of Alexian Brothers.

ASIDE FROM A document dated 1334, which designated the early operations of the group, only in 1447, remains as evidence of the group and its work.

Teachers approve 3-year contract

pay raise increment normally given to the teachers.

The agreement also calls for the phasing out of emergency days from the school calendar over the three-year period. Emergency days are usually scheduled to replace days when school is canceled for snow or other reasons. The district will also pay all health insurance premiums for teachers. The teachers currently pay a portion of the health insurance costs.

While this year's contract came after four months of negotiations, the mood of the teachers and the board varied greatly from last year's negotiation sessions when teachers threatened to strike over contract demands.

HANSON CREDITED the difference in this year's bargaining sessions to the fact that both the board and the teachers hired professional negotiators.

"This tends to remove some of the emotionality from the talks," Hanson said.

He added that several private sessions held between SEA officers and school board leaders help to iron out differences.

Hanson and former SEA President Dave Wilson both said the new contract would allow teachers, especially those who were involved in the negotiations, to devote more time to improving the quality of education in the district.

Hanson said that while he expects the school board to approve the contract, he expects the board vote to be close.

IT'S A WELCOME SIGHT to see construction workers finishing part of the new Friendship Junior High School, 550 Elizabeth Ln., Des Plaines. Classrooms should be ready by September, but the gymnasium area will still need work before it can be used. The Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 school will be similar to other junior highs in the district.

Knife-wielding robber of 5 stores still sought

Mount Prospect and Des Plaines police are coordinating efforts to catch a knife-wielding grocery store bandit they believe robbed five stores last week.

The bandit struck twice Friday, grabbing $140 from the Convenient Food Mart 1760 W. Algonquin Rd., Mount Prospect, and an undisclosed amount from the Open Pantry Store, Touhy Avenue and Cedar Street, Des Plaines. The three earlier robberies were in Des Plaines.

"There's no doubt about it," Mount

Prospect Police Sgt. Ralph Doney said Friday, when asked if the Mount Prospect store had been robbed by the same man who robbed the Des Plaines stores.

At 9:45 a.m. Friday, the bandit, armed with a four-inch knife, entered the Convenient Food Mart and ordered the clerk to empty the cash register and open the safe. He brandished the knife as he said, "Give me your money," according to police.

FRIDAY'S SECOND robbery was at

2:15 p.m. Des Plaines police would not release many details about the armed robbery, but did say the description was the same as in the past four robberies and the man spent only a short time in the store.

According to a police radio dispatch, the robber was seen leaving the Open Pantry store in a late model, metallic green Mustang.

Police described the robber as 18 to 20 years old, 5 feet, 10 inches, 150 to 160 pounds, with dark blond shoulder-length hair.

MOUNT PROSPECT police said the man wore sunglasses, a light blue faded sweatshirt and grey washpants. He ran out of the store and between some nearby buildings, where he was last seen by witnesses.

If, as police believe, the robber is the same in all five cases, Friday's Mount Prospect haul was his known largest. Last Wednesday he entered the Convenient Food Mart, 1703 Oakton St., Des Plaines, threatened the manager with a knife and left with more than $100 in cash. That was shortly before 9 p.m.

A 7-Eleven food store, 810 S. Elmhurst Rd., Des Plaines, was robbed of $50 Tuesday and another 7-Eleven, at 611 W. Golf Rd., Des Plaines, was robbed of $100 Monday.

Reportedly, Des Plaines police are following several leads, none of which have been disclosed.

Park district bond sale to mean saving in taxes

The Elk Grove Village park district board has agreed to accept a bid for park and improvement bonds with a 5.131 per cent interest rating, which will ultimately mean a savings for taxpayers.

At a Thursday night meeting, the board decided to award the bid for the $560,000 in bonds in Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust Company of Chicago and to the Bank of Elk Grove.

The two banks bid jointly, offering a single bid to the park district. Continental is the Chicago correspondent bank for the Bank of Elk Grove.

INTEREST RATINGS on bids accepted in a Thursday sale for the $250,000 park bonds and the $350,000 park improvement bonds, ranged from 5.417 to 5.172 per cent as bid by large Chicago banks. Continental's 5.131 per cent was the lowest interest rate presented.

"We received an offer for this low of an interest rating because the park district and the village have recently received an excellent financial rating. The 5.131 per cent is a good interest rating for the present market, and it reflects an eventual savings for the taxpayers in the village," said Jack Claes, director of parks and recreation in Elk Grove Village.

The savings from the lower interest rate won't be felt by taxpayers until the 1974 taxes.

Under village ordinance, the park district must spend 85 per cent of the money by Aug. 1, 1974. The money will help pay for new projects and repairs that were presented to residents in the March park district referendum.

Dave VonSchaumburg, former treasurer and now financial adviser to the park district, explains, "This way the money is not idle and is not costing the taxpayers more money. It's being put to use."

Office machines, radio stolen from Kenny Co.

Two electric typewriters, an electric adding machine, a copy machine and a radio were stolen from Kenny Manufacturing sometime Thursday night.

Elk Grove Village police said entry to the plant at 940 Greenleaf Ave. was gained when the burglars broke a lunch room window. Value of the stolen items was placed in excess of $500.

Grease fire causes $2,000 damage to home

A grease fire caused an estimated $2,000 damage Thursday afternoon in the home of Joseph Woelfel, 1036 Chellenham, Elk Grove Village.

The fire began when grease in a pan overheated on the stove. When Mrs. Woelfel carried the pan across the room to the sink, the drapes and cabinets also caught fire. She extinguished the fire with baking soda, firemen reported.

Sable coat stolen

A full-length Russian Sable fur coat with insured value of $7,500 was stolen from the Village Retail Store, 1400 Busse Rd. in Elk Grove Village last week.

The coat, which was kept on a circular rack near the front door of the store, was reported stolen Thursday morning. Employees of the Underwriters Salvage Company of Chicago, who supply the retail store, estimate that the crime probably occurred Sunday or Monday.

The coat had been in the store with a retail price of $1,800 since September.

Man injured by truck

A 22-year-old man had multiple scrapes and a sprained right ankle when a truck he was fixing rolled over his legs Thursday.

Jerry Smith, of Chicago was lying under the van in the parking lot of Zipp Dee, Inc., 26 Crossen, Elk Grove Village. The accident occurred at 12:10 p.m. when Smith was jump-starting the motor. The engine started, the van began moving and rolled over his legs. Smith was taken to Alexian Brothers Medical Center for treatment.

The van is owned by the Handy Andy Labor Co., 4412 N. Broadway, Chicago, where Smith is employed.

Village manager resigns in board dispute

Palatine Village Mgr. Berton G. Braun resigned Friday, after three months of tumult and strained relations with the newly elected Republican village board majority.

Braun, 40, gave no reason for his resignation. His last day as Palatine manager will be Aug. 17, after which he will vacation for seven weeks before taking a new position in a DuPage County community. Braun said he will reveal his new position tomorrow. He has been the Palatine manager for more than 8½ years.

New village trustees and Braun have openly and frequently criticized each other since the April election. The most recent controversy, the board's forcing the resignation of former Police Chief Robert Centner, brought strong comments from Braun that the trustees' actions were unjustified.

Berton G. Braun

FOLLOWING THAT MEETING, Village Pres. Wendell Jones wrote that Braun was "defensive and arrogant." As village manager, Braun is the supervisor of five department heads, and has vigorously supported those men before the village board.

Republicans had indirectly criticized Braun even before the GOP sweep in April, for being unresponsive to citizens' complaints. But in the first meeting after their election, the new board gave Braun a vote of confidence and asked him to continue as manager.

Saturday, Jones said that he was "surprised by the announcement, because we were just beginning to get the new administration settled." An interim village manager may be appointed sometime soon, but Jones said he has not decided on the procedures for finding a replacement for Braun.

BRAUN PERSONALLY delivered his resignation to each trustee Friday.

Clayton Brown, a minority trustee and defeated candidate for the mayor's post, blasted the new board after learning of Braun's resignation.

He said he was not surprised at Braun's decision, and that the manager's professionalism and integrity "could not allow him to remain under the conditions that currently exist in our village government since the Republican administration has taken over."

In addition, Brown predicted that other department heads soon will either resign or be removed from their positions.

ASKED ABOUT THE apparent loyalty of the five department heads to Braun, the village manager said it may be true that they are very loyal to him, "and it's gratifying, if it is." But he would not speculate on the possibility of the other men quitting because he had.

Braun came to Palatine in 1966 after serving as a consultant to local governments at Southern Illinois University in Carbondale.

He received his bachelor's and master's degrees in public administration at the University of Michigan and is a native of Milwaukee, Wis. Braun and his family live at 304 N. Schiller St.

McGuire 'safe bet' to be new chief

James T. McGuire, former superintendent of the Illinois State Police, has been prominently mentioned as a candidate for Palatine police chief.

The name of McGuire, 46, who is currently director of the Chicago Police Academy, has been raised by several sources as a likely successor to ousted Police Chief Robert R. Centner.

One source told the Herald: "The safe money is betting on McGuire and I'll buy that."

McGuire was unavailable for comment.

James McGuire

HE IS WIDELY expected to apply for the top police job in Palatine when applications become available this week, and his credentials are considered sound.

So far, two informal applications and one recommendation for the police chief's position have been submitted to the search committee appointed by Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones to help select a new chief.

When asked by the Herald Friday whether he had any knowledge of McGuire, Jones replied: "I've never heard of him."

McGuire is a graduate of St. Phillip High School in Chicago and attended Wright Junior College in Chicago and St. Joseph's College in East Chicago, Ind., where he studied criminology.

MUCH OF HIS career has followed the political ups and downs of former Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie, a Republican.

McGuire, at the time a Chicago police sergeant, was brought into the Cook County Sheriff's office as a captain, when Ogilvie became sheriff in 1962, and developed a reputation as a reformer.

McGuire advanced to a major in the sheriff's department, where he was in charge of the operational bureau, responsible for coordinating all law enforcement activities at the divisional level within the department.

He was cited for instituting a seven-man tactical unit and heading an experimental helicopter patrol program. In addition, McGuire became the first officer in the Cook County sheriff's department to receive a scholarship to attend a traffic training program at Northwestern University.

McGUIRE FOLLOWED Ogilvie to Springfield in 1968, heading the Illinois State Police while Ogilvie occupied the governor's mansion.

As superintendent of the state police at $30,000 a year, McGuire was responsible for a force of 1,700 officers in 15 statewide districts.

When Ogilvie was defeated last year in his bid for a second term, replaced by Democrat Daniel Walker, McGuire also was out of a job.

He took a position as director of the Chicago Police Academy six months ago, at a salary of up to $23,300.

McGUIRE WOULD receive a pay hike if he were appointed to the Palatine post. The local police chief currently earns just over $20,000 a year, but village officials have expressed willingness to boost the salary to $25,000 to attract a qualified applicant.

Some sources told the Herald that McGuire's Republican background is a factor in his being mentioned for the Palatine post, suggesting that Palatine Township Republican officials favor him as a way of strengthening the party's power base in the village.

ONE OF THE FIRST moves taken by the new Republican majority of the Palatine Village Board earlier this summer was to force the resignation of the police chief. The Republicans have denied charges of political motivation in ousting Centner.

Jones, the village president, appointed a three-member search committee to

Why was he ousted?

Public sentiment and recurring controversy force trustees to give former police chief Centner a public hearing Former Palatine Police Chief Robert R. Centner will get a public hearing to uncover the reasons that village trustees wanted him ousted.

Village Pres. Wendell Jones, in a reversal of his earlier stand, said Saturday that he would give the public whatever kind of hearing it wanted to clear up the controversy.

Centner resigned under pressure June 23, after two weeks of turmoil between the police chief, village manager and new village board.

At a mid-June meeting, a departmental review turned into a drilling session for Centner by the board majority questioning police department policies. Later that week, trustees Robert Guss and James Shaw called for Centner's removal and charged that he had ineffective programs to handle the local drug problem and internal police department problems.

THE VILLAGE BOARD technically does not have to "show cause" when it moves to fire the police chief, but strong public sentiment, and 2,350 signatures calling for a public hearing, apparently created enough pressure to convince Jones to agree to such a hearing.

The hearing is unlikely to affect the board's decision to remove Centner as chief. Petition leader Olaf Schneider said he basically dislikes the way the board handled the ouster of Centner.

"To make the man look rotten and not give him a chance to defend himself is wrong," Schneider said Saturday, explaining why he started the petition drive. Schneider has never met Centner.

Centner resigned to avoid being fired by the village board under the board's home rule authority. Home rule gives the village trustees the power to fire and hire the police and fire chiefs, and trustees were ready to use that power at the late June meeting.

The massive petition drive has been going on since that meeting.

EXACTLY who will conduct the hearing still is unclear. Trustee Richard Fonte offered to hold the hearing with his village board committee for administration, finance and legislation. But minority trustee Clayton Brown protested the committee running the hearing, "since it would still be political. This is just a sham."

Instead, Brown thinks the Police and Fire Commission should conduct the hearing, although Brown is uncertain if the commission has the legal power to hold it. Basically, Brown and other supporters of the hearing want to include the power to call witnesses and get testimony under oath.

Jones and other majority trustees have defended their refusal to give details about why they wanted Centner removed as chief, saying they had information that would "do Centner more harm than good" if known publicly.

"I think it's time, if the public really wants to know that much, that we have a public hearing," Jones said, adding that he "will testify to that committee, under oath if necessary."

THE CENTNER controversy is only one issue potentially linking the new administration to politics in the police department. On Saturday, State Rep. Richard Mugallan, D-Palatine, called for a broader public hearing, to investigate political influences in the Palatine Police Department.

Political motivation has been charged in the department, including the complete changeover of the Police and Fire Commission, when three new men were appointed by Jones recently. And shortly after Centner's resignation, interim chief Frank Ortiz removed two men from the detective bureau and assigned three patrolmen and one sergeant to the bureau, another target for charges of politics in (Continued on page 5)

Hunting Ridge residents to plan lakeside park

Residents of Hunting Ridge subdivision in Palatine will be meeting with park district director Fred P. Hall next month to try to iron out plans for a lakeside park along Peregrine Drive.

Two petitions in as many months were submitted to the park board members. The first, in June, was signed by 139 residents asking that playground equipment be excluded from the park, to discourage young children from playing near the water.

The June meeting resulted in park commissioners agreeing to change their plans for Peregrine Park by replacing the proposed playground equipment with benches and picnic tables.

SINCE THEN, some of those petitioners have either changed their minds or misunderstood the first petition. At a recent meeting, another petition was submitted bearing the signatures of some of the same people that joined in the first.

But this time, the petitioners asked that playground equipment be included in the lakeside Peregrine Park.

Hall said he will meet with Hunting Ridge homeowners on Aug. 21 to "work up a survey of feasible and practical alternatives" for the park. Meanwhile, the landscaping and plantings are proceeding on schedule.

The park board has a $3,000 budget for improving Peregrine Park, and has designated it a "high-use" park.

the department. At least some of those men promoted had supported the Republicans in the election. Both Jones and Ortiz have denied any political influence in their actions.

IN HIS statement Saturday, Mugallan said he was taking a non-partisan stand, but wanted a public hearing to air the facts on the actions affecting the police department.

If the new administration is politicizing the police department, Mugallan said, "We've got to stop it here," he compared the local situation to the Watergate scandal, which demonstrates "what can happen to a political party and a country when law enforcement and politics become intertwined."

The Saturday press conference called by Mugallan included invitations to all village trustees and Schneider.

In addition to the press, only Brown, Schneider and another petition worker, Lynn Rowe, attended. Jones said he stayed away because he doesn't usually attend press conferences given by Mugallan, the Palatine Democratic committeeman. "I don't think it would have been productive," Jones said.

Schneider learned of the board's decision to allow a hearing less than an hour before the press conference, when Fonte stopped by Schneider's home to tell him the news.

Jones later added the village manager to the committee and gave the committee authority to narrow the choices to a single candidate who would then be accepted or rejected by the village board.

The search committee consists of Joseph M. Kiszka (chairman), deputy superintendent of Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15; Herman M. Hertog, executive director of the Buehler YMCA; L. W. Calderwood, police chief of Arlington Heights; and Berton G. Braun (secretary) the village manager.

Coaches sought for ice hockey

Coaches are being sought for the Palatine Park District's ice hockey program. The program is being co-ordinated this year with the Arlington Ice Spectrum, 1350 E. Northwest Hwy. Adults interested in coaching youngsters aged 6 to 16 years on hockey fundamentals are asked to attend a meeting at the Ice Spectrum at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow. The positions provide a salary.

Degrees in education and hockey experience are recommended.

Child-care center to get funds tonight

A full-time day care center and possibly other area social service agencies will get funding tonight from the $25,000 revenue sharing money in Palatine Township coffers.

Officially called the Community Child Care Center of Palatine Township, the day care facility will open in September for children from both poor and average income families.

The township is expected to promise up to $12,000 to finance lower-income children in the program. A loan, also up to $12,000 paid as the center needs it, has been approved by the First Bank and Trust in Palatine.

TONIGHT'S MEETING starts at 8 in the town hall, 37 N. Brockway St., and will deal solely with requests for revenue sharing.

Federal revenue sharing started in 1972 with the federal government dividing a portion of its income between local and state governments for funding their own programs within federal guidelines.

"We will get right down into revenue sharing, and we may allocate some at that time," Olsen said.

In addition to the day care center, at least nine other agencies have asked for a portion of the $25,000 received by the township through the new federal revenue sharing program. Other requests have come from:

PALATINE COUNCIL for the Aging, to organize senior citizen social activities $12,778; Northwest Mental Health Association, providing mental health counseling, $12,000; Northwest Opportunity Center, giving various services to low-income families in the area, $6,203; Clearbrook Center, programs for mentally retarded children and adults, $14,680; Shelter, Inc., a new agency to line up emergency foster homes, $9,780; Palatine Township Highway Department, to buy new power-rodding equipment, $6,000; Crossroads Clinic, providing venereal disease treatment, tests, and birth control information, $5,000; Palatine Village Band, $2,000; and the Salt Creek Rural Park District, for an unspecified amount.

Most of the above agencies which serve an area broader than Palatine Township have prorated their requests to reflect either the township's population or the number of people from this area served by the agency.

In a preliminary report to the federal government last month, township officials estimated they would spend $16,000

Motion denied in Pequeno hearing

A motion to suppress evidence in the murder trial of Israel Pequeno, who is charged with the shooting death of his girlfriend, Sharon Soyka, was denied Friday in a pretrial hearing.

The pretrial hearing was continued to Sept. 14 by Criminal Court Judge Benjamin Mackoff at the request of Pequeno's attorney.

Pequeno, 503 Wood, Palatine, is accused of shooting to death Miss Soyka, 17, in her home, 3717 Oriole Ln., Rolling Meadows, on March 26. The shooting took place after Miss Soyka told Pequeno she no longer wanted to date him, according to police.

Pequeno will continue to be held without bond in the Cook County Jail.

El Jarocho restaurant gets liquor license

Patrons of El Jarocho Mexican Cuisine restaurant will soon be able to wash down their tacos with beer or wine.

The Palatine Village Board last week created a liquor license classification allowing the restaurant to sell beer and wine with meals.

Only one "Class G" license was established and it was given to the Mexican restaurant at 61 N. Bothwell St. The cost is $700 a year. Other similar licenses could be awarded upon petition to the village board.

The trustees created the new license after the owner of El Jarocho, Nellie Sosa Tejeda, asked the board for a beer-and-wine only license. Other licenses are for serving all alcoholic beverages.

Knife-wielding robber of 5 stores still sought

Mount Prospect and Des Plaines police are coordinating efforts to catch a knife-wielding grocery store bandit they believe robbed five stores last week.

The bandit struck twice Friday, grabbing $140 from the Convenient Food Mart 1700 W. Algonquin Rd., Mount Prospect, and an undisclosed amount from the Open Pantry Store, Touhy Avenue and Cedar Street, Des Plaines. The three earlier robberies were in Des Plaines.

"There's no doubt about it," Mount Prospect Police Sgt. Ralph Doney said Friday, when asked if the Mount Prospect store had been robbed by the same man who robbed the Des Plaines stores.

At 9:45 a.m. Friday, the bandit, armed with a four-inch knife, entered the Convenient Food Mart and ordered the clerk to empty the cash register and open the safe. He brandished the knife as he said, "Give me your money," according to police.

FRIDAY'S SECOND robbery was at 2:15 p.m. Des Plaines police would not release many details about the armed robbery, but did say the description was the same as in the past four robberies and the man spent only a short time in the store.

According to a police radio dispatch, the robber was seen leaving the Open

Pantry store in a late model, metallic green Mustang.

Police described the robber as 18 to 20 years old, 5 feet, 10 inches, 150 to 160 pounds, with dark blond shoulder-length hair.

MOUNT PROSPECT police said the man wore sunglasses, a light blue faded sweatshirt and grey washpants. He ran out of the store and between some nearby buildings, where he was last seen by witnesses.

If, as police believe, the robber is the same in all five cases, Friday's Mount Prospect haul was his known largest. Last Wednesday he entered the Convenient Food Mart, 1703 Oakton St., Des Plaines, threatened the manager with a knife and left with more than $100 in cash. That was shortly before 9 p.m.

A 7-Eleven food store, 810 S. Elmhurst Rd., Des Plaines, was robbed of $50 Tuesday and another 7-Eleven, at 611 W.

Golf Rd., Des Plaines, was robbed of $100 Monday.

Reportedly, Des Plaines police are following several leads, none of which have been disclosed.

Party may be forming to unseat Meyer in '75

by TONI GINETTI

A political party may be forming in Rolling Meadows to oppose Mayor Roland Meyer for re-election in 1975.

Both 5th Ward aldermen, Kenneth Retzke and Frederick Jacobson, apparently are spearheading a move to organize an independent party in the city to back a candidate, possibly either Retzke or Jacobson, against Meyer when his mayoral term expires in two years.

Indications are that some city officials have been contacted to determine whether they would support a maverick party to oppose Meyer. One high city official told the Herald "I wouldn't deny that I have been approached," but he said he preferred not to comment on the matter.

Jacobson is out of town and could not be reached for comment.

Contacted Friday, Retzke did not deny that he has considered forming a new party, but he said it would be "premature" to be talking about what may be happening in 1975.

"I THINK IT WOULD be a little early at this stage but I would say that if I run in 1975 it would probably be independently or under another party," Retzke said. Retzke said if he chooses to run in 1975, he will "probably be running for alderman again."

"If they want to form a party against me, then I say bless them," Meyer said Friday in response to the reports. "I would say they deserve each other. I like them both, but for some reason or another they seem to be very negative on things lately."

Meyer said the two have been voting against a number of matters before the council in an effort to vote against Meyer.

"When nine aldermen vote for something and he (Retzke) votes against it only because it wasn't his way, I think he's only hurting himself," Meyer said.

"I'VE HEARD they've talked to several city officials

Roland Meyer

Kenneth Retzke

Frederick Jacobson

(about supporting a new party). My only comment is that it wouldn't be until November or December of 1974 or just before the filing deadline."

Meyer said he believes attempts to form another party may be getting support from the Palatine Township Republican organization, but Retzke denied the charge.

Meyer and the township GOP organization have been at odds for some time, particularly since the organization refused to support Meyer in his 1971 bid for a state representative's seat.

Meyer also endorsed Democrat Jack Scollay for township supervisor earlier this year.

"WE'VE ALWAYS TRIED to keep them (the township Republicans) out of the city government," Retzke said. "I've never seen anything that we've done that would need national party involvement."

He added, however, that he has told Meyer the city "can't shut ourselves off completely" from outside organizations like the Republicans because there may be times when areas of cooperation might be needed.

Retzke and Jacobson have recently become two of Meyer's most vocal opponents on the city council.

Jacobson was re-elected earlier this year to a second council term after Meyer refused to endorse him. Jacobson was the only one of five incumbents to be snubbed by Meyer.

Jacobson was first elected to the council in 1969 as an independent after defeating Meyer-backed incumbent Ald. Rudolf Bialek.

Retzke has run on Meyer's Citizens Action Party (CAP) since 1967 when Meyer, then an alderman, successfully organized his party to unseat Mayor William Mieska of the Party of Progress (POP).

Meyer and Retzke were re-elected without opposition in 1971 on the CAP ticket.

Local J. C. Penney store agrees to smaller sign

Homeowners in the Surrey Ridge West and Heritage Park subdivisions have won their battle for a smaller sign at the Algonquin Road entrance to J. C. Penney's "Treasury" store now under construction in Rolling Meadows.

Instead of the 35-foot sign that had been planned, Penney's now says it will put up a 12-foot-high marker at the Algonquin Road driveway, which is directly opposite Kennicott Drive, a main entrance to Surrey Ridge West.

Homeowner representatives had met with officials from Penney's and asked them to lower the sign height, even though the 35-foot signs already had been approved by the City of Rolling Meadows.

Last week, Martin Cawley, 1418 S. Princeton Ave., said Penney's willingness to put up a smaller sign was a tribute to what can be accomplished through reasonable discussion.

"It showed good relations and that people can sit down at a meeting and work things out," Cawley said.

The 12-foot sign, 4½ feet lower than ground signs permitted by Arlington Heights ordinance, will be 4 by 10 feet in area.

HOMEOWNERS in the southwest corner of Arlington Heights want all signs along Algonquin Road to be limited, both in size and number, to prevent the highway from developing into another commercial strip.

A spokesman for Penney's said a full-size, 35-foot sign will be erected at the Golf Road entrance to the Treasury store, expected to open sometime next winter.

The homeowners had dubbed the 35-foot marker "Super Sign" and, in a petition to the Rolling Meadows City Council, expressed their fear that Treasury could touch off a sign war in which new and existing business on Algonquin Road would start requesting bigger and bigger signs.

THE ROLLING Meadows aldermen told the homeowners there was nothing they could do to prevent the sign construction, since the 35-foot height, five feet above the city's normal maximum, had been approved in the Treasury development plan.

Nevertheless, Cawley said he was grateful for the help of Ald. Tom Waldron and Rolling Meadows City Mgr. Jim Watson for their assistance in arranging the meeting with Penney's officials.

Fred Iwen, 1702 S. Fernandez Ave., president of the Heritage Park Homeowners Association, said he was "very pleased that Penney's had the foresight to be neighborly about the situation."

Dispute with board

Palatine village manager resigns

Palatine Village Mgr. Berton G. Braun resigned Friday, after three months of tumult and strained relations with the newly elected Republican village board majority.

Braun, 40, gave no reason for his resignation. His last day as Palatine manager will be Aug. 17, after which he will vacation for seven weeks before taking a new position in a DuPage County community. Braun said he will reveal his new position tomorrow. He has been the Palatine manager for more than 6½ years.

New village trustees and Braun have openly and frequently criticized each other since the April election. The most recent controversy, the board's forcing the resignation of former Police Chief Robert Centner, brought strong comments from Braun that the trustees' actions were unjustified.

FOLLOWING THAT MEETING, Village Pres. Wendell Jones wrote that Braun was "defensive and arrogant." As village manager, Braun is the supervisor of five department heads, and has vigorously supported those men before the village board.

Republicans had indirectly criticized Braun even before the GOP sweep in April, for being unresponsive to citizens' complaints. But in the first meeting after their election, the new board gave Braun a vote of confidence and asked him to continue as manager.

Saturday, Jones said that he was "surprised by the announcement, because we were just beginning to get the new administration settled." An interim village manager may be appointed sometime soon, but Jones said he has not decided on the procedures for finding a replacement for Braun.

BRAUN PERSONALLY delivered his resignation to each trustee Friday.

Clayton Brown, a minority trustee and defeated candidate for the mayor's post, blasted the new board after learning of Braun's resignation.

He said he was not surprised at Braun's decision, and that the manager's professionalism and integrity "could not allow him to remain under the conditions that currently exist in our village government since the Republican administration has taken over."

In addition, Brown predicted that other department heads soon will either resign or be removed from their positions.

ASKED ABOUT THE apparent loyalty of the five department heads to Braun, the village manager said it may be true that they are very loyal to him, "and it's gratifying, if it is." But he would not speculate on the possibility of the other men quitting because he had.

Braun came to Palatine in 1966 after serving as a consultant to local governments at Southern Illinois University in Carbondale.

He received his bachelor's and master's degrees in public administration at the University of Michigan and is a native of Milwaukee, Wis. Braun and his family live at 304 N. Schiller St.

JANET TRAPANI'S EYES communicate care and friendliness as she helps John Bychowski, 303 N. Dale St., Mount Prospect, to get back on his feet after a recent illness. Janet, the 1973 Cheeri-Aid of the Year at Holy Family Hospital, has been working in the physical therapy department for about a year.

Hospital aides, managers vote Janet tops

From shy girl to number one Cheeri-Aid

by MARY HOULIHAN

Janet Trapani, the 1973 Cheeri-Aid of the Year at Holy Family Hospital, got into volunteer work mainly because of her twin sister.

"She's really outgoing, but I could never talk to people," said Janet, of 222 S. Pine St., Mount Prospect. "So I decided to try things here at the hospital where nobody knew me."

It's hard to imagine Janet, every having trouble with shyness, but she did. "I was very afraid. It's hard when you don't know anyone," she said. "I still don't know very many people. It's the patients. They've helped me a lot."

HOW COULD sick people help someone who is shy?

"It's hard to explain," Janet said. "But because they had a handicap (being ill) and I had one because I was afraid, we were kind of on the same level."

Janet, a junior at Sacred Heart High School in Rolling Meadows, credits her greatest help to the people she met while working in the physical therapy department at Holy Family in Des Plaines.

She had worked on a nursing unit and in the pediatrics department but "I wasn't really working with the patients there," she said. "Physical therapy has helped me the most."

Janet expressed an interest in working in physical therapy about a year ago. Since then she has been working under the supervision of Rosemarie Gloeckner, physical therapy director at the hospital.

"SHE'S VERY GOOD, very reliable, fast and conscientious," Miss Gloeckner said of Janet. "She really works beyond her capacity down here."

Janet says when she finishes high school, she would like to study to be a physical therapist.

She said she was surprised when she was voted Cheeri-Aide of the year.

"Shocked was the word," she laughed.

Janet was selected by a vote of the managers of the different departments in the hospital, as well as by her fellow Cheeri-Aids. Twenty-two of the 34 Cheeri-Aids are from Mount Prospect.

One of the "rewards" of her selection will come this December when she is presented to society at Holy Family Hospital's December Collation.

"I can't wait," Janet said.

McGuire 'safe bet' to be new chief

James T. McGuire, former superintendent of the Illinois State Police, has been prominently mentioned as a candidate for Palatine police chief.

The name of McGuire, 46, who is currently director of the Chicago Police Academy, has been raised by several sources as a likely successor to ousted Police Chief Robert R. Centner.

One source told the Herald: "The safe money is betting on McGuire and I'll buy that."

McGuire was unavailable for comment.

HE IS WIDELY expected to apply for the top police job in Palatine when applications become available this week, and his credentials are considered sound.

So far, two informal applications and one recommendation for the police chief's position have been submitted to the search committee appointed by Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones to help select a new chief.

When asked by the Herald Friday whether he had any knowledge of McGuire, Jones replied: "I've never heard of him."

McGuire is a graduate of St. Phillip High School in Chicago and attended Wright Junior College in Chicago and St. Joseph's College in East Chicago, Ind., where he studied criminology.

MUCH OF HIS career has followed the political ups and downs of former Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie, a Republican.

McGuire, at the time a Chicago police sergeant, was brought into the Cook County Sheriff's office as a captain, when Ogilvie became sheriff in 1962, and developed a reputation as a reformer.

McGuire advanced to a major in the sheriff's department, where he was in charge of the operational bureau, responsible for coordinating all law enforcement activities at the divisional level within the department.

He was cited for instituting a seven-man tactical unit and heading an experimental helicopter patrol program. In addition, McGuire became the first officer in the Cook County sheriff's department to receive a scholarship to attend a traffic training program at Northwestern University.

McGUIRE FOLLOWED Ogilvie to Springfield in 1968, heading the Illinois State Police while Ogilvie occupied the governor's mansion.

As superintendent of the state police at $30,000 a year, McGuire was responsible for a force of 1,700 officers in 15 statewide districts.

When Ogilvie was defeated last year in his bid for a second term, replaced by Democrat Daniel Walker, McGuire also was out of a job.

He took a position as director of the Chicago Police Academy six months ago, at a salary of up to $23,300.

McGUIRE WOULD receive a pay hike if he were appointed to the Palatine post. The local police chief currently earns just over $20,000 a year, but village officials have expressed willingness to boost the salary to $25,000 to attract a qualified applicant.

Some sources told the Herald that McGuire's Republican background is a factor in his being mentioned for the Palatine post, suggesting that Palatine Township Republican officials favor him as a way of strengthening the party's power base in the village.

ONE OF THE FIRST moves taken by the new Republican majority of the Palatine Village Board earlier this summer was to force the resignation of the police chief. The Republicans have denied charges of political motivation in ousting Centner.

Adults have roped-off area at park pool

"Adult only" swim is being eliminated and in its place there will now be an "adult only" area of the Rolling Meadows Park District pool every night.

Starting this weekend the Rolling Meadows Park District will be roping off a section of the pool for "adults only" every night between 6:30 and 9 p.m. In the past the only time adults had the pool to themselves was between 8 and 9 p.m. on Thursday.

Pantry store in a late model, metallic green Mustang.

Police described the robber as 18 to 20 years old, 5 feet, 10 inches, 150 to 160 pounds, with dark blond shoulder-length hair.

MOUNT PROSPECT police said the man wore sunglasses, a light blue faded sweatshirt and grey washpants. He ran out of the store and between some nearby buildings, where he was last seen by witnesses.

If, as police believe, the robber is the same in all five cases, Friday's Mount Prospect haul was his known largest. Last Wednesday he entered the Convenient Food Mart, 1703 Oakton St., Des Plaines, threatened the manager with a knife and left with more than $100 in cash. That was shortly before 9 p.m.

A 7-Eleven food store, 810 S. Elmhurst Rd., Des Plaines, was robbed of $50 Tuesday and another 7-Eleven, at 611 W.

Golf Rd., Des Plaines, was robbed of $100 Monday.

Reportedly, Des Plaines police are following several leads, none of which have been disclosed.

Knife-wielding robber of 5 stores still sought

Mount Prospect and Des Plaines police are coordinating efforts to catch a knife-wielding grocery store bandit they believe robbed five stores last week.

The bandit struck twice Friday, grabbing $140 from the Convenient Food Mart 1760 W. Algonquin Rd., Mount Prospect, and an undisclosed amount from the Open Pantry Store, Touhy Avenue and Cedar Street, Des Plaines. The three earlier robberies were in Des Plaines.

"There's no doubt about it," Mount Prospect Police Sgt. Ralph Doney said Friday, when asked if the Mount Prospect store had been robbed by the same man who robbed the Des Plaines stores.

At 9:45 a.m. Friday, the bandit, armed with a four-inch knife, entered the Convenient Food Mart and ordered the clerk to empty the cash register and open the safe. He brandished the knife as he said, "Give me your money," according to police.

FRIDAY'S SECOND robbery was at 2:15 p.m. Des Plaines police would not release many details about the armed robbery, but did say the description was the same as in the past four robberies and the man spent only a short time in the store.

According to a police radio dispatch, the robber was seen leaving the Open

Being held in Indiana burglary attempt

New clues to link area man with Hillside cop abduction?

by STEVE BROWN

Police investigators were sent to east central Indiana over the weekend to question the accomplice of a Hoffman Estates man believed to be involved in the abduction of Hillside policeman Anthony Raymond.

The Herald has learned that Cook County Sheriff's police believe two men involved in an attempted burglary last Wednesday in Winchester, Ind., are the same two who kidnapped Raymond last October.

One of the men, Jesse C. Millard, 28, of 344 Washington St., Hoffman Estates, was killed in the attempt but a second suspect, Silas C. Fletcher, 38, of 6899 Orchard Ln., Hanover Park, is being held by Indiana authorities.

RANDOLPH COUNTY (Ind.) Sheriff Dan Reed said Millard, Fletcher and a third man tried to rob a coin dealer late Wednesday.

Millard was shot and killed by the coin dealer's wife. Police throughout the Midwest have been alerted to watch for the third subject who is believed to be driving a 1971 Cadillac with Illinois license plates. It is believed that the third man is from this area also.

Investigators for the Cook County Sheriff's Police refused to comment on the case. The Herald learned that informants have linked the three men to the kidnapping of Raymond. The informants reportedly told investigators that Raymond was killed and buried in Wisconsin.

THE SEARCH for Raymond lost momentum last winter after dozens of leads and a massive search around Coal City, Ill., failed. Witnesses told police that they had seen a man wandering in that area, but few clues were found.

Raymond was abducted while he was making a traffic investigation on an entrance ramp to the Eisenhower Expressway. Police have theorized that Raymond may have stopped two men who had just robbed a Hillside restaurant.

Raymond had called in the license number of the car he stopped, but radio interference obscured the last few digits of the number.

The car was believed to be a 1970 wine colored Cadillac Coupe de Ville.

Police in the area conducted a massive search of barns after a mystic reported seeing Raymond and a late model car. No new leads resulted from that search.

WITH DEVICES LIKE this booster box, professional shoplifters can steal a large amount of merchandise in a short time. Here, Schaumburg Police Chief Martin Conroy, left, demonstrates what appears to be a tightly wrapped package can actually be a hiding place. Sgt. Dick Williams of the Chicago Police Department shows how the trap door works.

IT'S NOT BATMAN, but Det. Gerald Tavolecci of the Chicago Police Department, demonstrating how a coat with hooks and secret pockets can be a great aid to shoplifters. The demonstration was part of a seminar on shoplifting presented by the Schaumburg Police Department at Woodfield Mall last week.

New anti-shoplifting program started

by STEVE BROWN

A new program, aimed at reducing losses from shoplifting, has been started in the area by the Schaumburg Police Department.

With the help of the Chicago Police Department, Schaumburg authorities offered a recent seminar for local store managers and security agents.

It sought to teach the agents how to identify potential shoplifters and some of the devices they use to steal merchandise.

"Shoplifters stole more than $450 million from Chicago-area stores last year and these people not only pick the pocket of the store, but they pick the pocket of the customer also," said Sgt. Richard Williams of the Chicago Police Department.

A LARGE shopping area like Woodfield Mall might fall prey to one narcotic addict who needs more than $80,000 each year just to feed a habit, Williams said. "But shoplifters run the scale from the amateur to the professional 'booster' to the juvenile thief," he added.

He said youngsters who steal compose about 50 per cent of all shoplifters in the area.

"The list also includes the grandmother who steals a blanket for her grandchild to a mother-daughter team that stole more than $86,000 in merchandise in Chicago in less than six months."

WILLIAMS SHOWED the more than 60 persons at the seminar a number of "booster boxes" which shoplifters used to steal merchandise.

The boxes, which may look like an ordinary parcel, but usually has a trap door.

"By using a box, the booster can get a dozen sweaters, or large amount of jewelry out of sight in seconds," he said. Umbrellas, large baggy coats or dresses, and other items are tools of the trade for a shoplifter.

Besides the tools, some shoplifters work as "clouters or crotch workers," he said.

The clouters will usually look for a valuable rack of merchandise near a store exit. They will simply grab the goods and flee the store.

Although a number of former public works employees attended the carnival, their attitude was "friendly and unprovocative," a Jaycees spokesman said Sunday.

According to Hoffman Estates police records, as of Sunday morning there had been only one case of disorderly conduct reported at the Golf Rose Shopping center carnival site. The case did not involve a public works department person, a police spokesman confirmed.

MEMBERS OF LOCAL 2041, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, AFL-CIO, were terminated last week because of what she termed a July 19 "illegal strike action."

At that time union recognition was also pay more attention to all customers.

"Shoplifters do not like a lot of attention. If they can find an isolated area, they will clean it out. If employees watch all areas of the store closely, they will help control losses."

WILLIAMS also said electronic alarms, mirrors and cameras also will help control losses.

Sgt. John Barabas of the Schaumburg Police also told the group about the law concerning shoplifting and suggested several procedures that may be followed by security agents after an arrest is made.

No public works incidents at carnival

Hoffman Estates Jaycees Carnival, termed the biggest and most successful ever held by the group, proceeded without incident both Friday and Saturday nights.

Contrary to earlier rumors, former public works employees ousted from their jobs last week by Mayor Virginia Hayter failed to provoke an incident at the carnival.

In an apparent reversal of plans, only Trustee Dyrle Rathman appeared for service at the dunk tank Saturday night. Originally, it had been planned that Mayor Hayter and several other trustees would participate in the traditional dunk tank operation.

Reportedly, both the mayor and trustees had been advised to stay away from the dunk tank by local police.

Although a number of former public works employees attended the carnival, their attitude was "friendly and unprovocative," a Jaycees spokesman said Sunday.

At that time union recognition was also withdrawn during an emergency executive session of the village board.

The mass firing was unexpected and drew sharp responses from the employees involved, as well as their families.

However, picketing of village hall and the Illinois Boulevard public works garage building appeared to cease over the weekend.

While Village Mgr. George Longmeyer is presently in the process of hiring replacements for the terminated employees, it is still expected that the union members are considering legal action against the village board.

Reportedly members of the local are planning, for a second week, to attend the village board meeting tonight to publicly protest the village board action.

We've had too much adrenaline

by NANCY COWGER

High adrenaline can be very good for the human body in some circumstances.

A rise in adrenaline can give a man that extra power to jump out of the path of an oncoming car, the extra strength to carry someone many pounds over his normal capacity to safety, the extra stamina to carry on past all known reserves.

But getting the old adrenaline up isn't always the most beneficial way to handle a problem.

IN HOFFMAN ESTATES, adrenaline and wild emotion seem to have beat down the senses and taken control over the public works issue in the village.

And this welling of emotion is by design, not chance. It would appear. This is not to say the situation is wrong in the eyes of the designer, but in some cases it may have misled the rest of the public.

The issue between the village board and former employees in the public works department has erupted in cries of "Hell Hyster" and others for the mayor's recall.

AND THE PERSONS responsible are David Finch and James Chialukas, union organizers who have wavered from string-pulling positions to one where they're being knocked off their own feet. For the time being, it appears they are once again leading the action, but with the direction events are taking, they could be hard put to keep their control.

Finch and Chialukas have relied on emotionalism since the night of July 18, when the village board made what may or may not have been significant changes in the now-abandoned employee contract, depending on your point of view.

An example of the union reps' appeal to emotions is really the crux of the issue. Finch last week berated the village board for bad-faith bargaining, noting the board's negotiating team did not have adequate power to give final contract decisions.

FINCH KNOWS, and admits in private conversation, the board procedure is a standard one. No experienced bargainer takes a majority vote into the negotiating room, because it can result in giving away the moon under pressure. You keep the majority vote on the outside for the very purpose of vetoing items that may be unfavorable, but have not caught the eye of the negotiating team.

Yet in public Finch has protested that point in tones so aggrieved men have been ready to fight. He fails to note that he and his fellow bargaining team members did not have any more final authority than the board when they sat at the table. Any contract they developed had to be approved by a vote of union men.

Emotionalism can be held responsible for the July 19 strike.

The men voted to strike without consulting Finch or Chialukas. With the union district making Hoffman Estates its spearhead for the Northwest suburbs, Finch had to let the tail wag the dog, and could do nothing except sanction the strike if he wanted to keep the Hoffman Estates local.

BY GIVING the strike his blessings, Finch kept his leadership position. But instead of using his influence to keep his men calm, reasonable and in their most favorable light, allowed them to reach a frenzy last Monday night. The men lost the potential public appeal of firm but calm forcefulness to the threatening verbal brawl that the meeting became.

And, there really is room for sympathy on the side of the now-unemployed workers. Most of us in the working force would probably agree with Chialukas that the mass firing was "cruel and unreasonable" punishment, more in tune with the days of George Pullman than 1973. There are many measures the village could have taken that would have been less severe, and still delivered the message that strike will not be tolerated.

But this too is emotionalism, hard to put away but out of place on the tough table of negotiation.

The former employees did in fact tell the board and the people of Hoffman Estates what they thought of their employers, when they walked off the jobs. And as was recently quoted from an example of office wall graffiti:

"Tell the boss what you really think of him, and the truth shall set you free."

Whistling Willows II

Inside-out day turns out right for Girl Scouts

by MARILYN HEISER

It was Inside-out day at the Whistling Willows II Girl Scout Day Camp and the ragged seams of everyone's clothes showed.

Pizza, Irish stew and hot dogs sizzled good smells, and there was peanut butter and jelly too. The girls do their own cooking, except if it's peanut butter day, using reflector ovens, open grills, large kettles and even cardboard boxes lined with aluminum foil.

The day before was Backwards Day, which reportedly drew more stares at the girl scout leaders rushed into the supermarket at 4 p.m. for last-minute shopping.

It's the Girl Scout life at Whistling Willows, complete with pocket knives, a tent or two, outhouses, mess kits hanging in dunk bags on the line, dirty knees, giggles, and this year, fortunately, very few mosquitoes.

ACCORDING TO camp director Gerry Millard of Schaumburg, the girls pick their own lunch menus, using a girl scout cookbook for suggestions. Stipulations include the meal must consist of a main dish as well as a dessert.

As in all groups, there are those who are not wild about the ground rules, and in this case, the cookbook choices. One nine-year-old said she couldn't see eating the Irish stew simmering on the grill. A chorus of "yeechs" and "bleechs" joined in agreement. So who picked the stew?

"The teacher," they yelled.

A leader advised the rules say one meal must be cooked in a large pot. Irish stew satisfies that requirement and supposedly teaches the girls something more about cooking than opening a can.

At this year's eight-day camp session held in Busse Woods on Rte. 72, each of the four units represents a different country. Ireland, America, Germany and Italy are the countries the girls chose.

A DISSENTER in the Irish camp said, "I wanted to be Mars. Then we could be Martians."

Mrs. Millard said two meals must consist of dishes typical of the country. Note the Irish stew. In fact, asked why Italy was chosen, a leader of the Italian crew pointed to the ease and acceptability of pizza and spaghetti.

Visitors to the camp get an orange passport. As we trooped around to the various units, the girls were to stamp the passport with their official insignia — Ireland with a large green shamrock and America with an Indian Thunderbird. Apparently the customs officials in Germany and Italy were on strike, as no one mentioned stamping anything.

A nurse sat on a picnic table, teaching a group of girls first aid. "Okay, pretend she's got a broken arm." The girls practiced making proper slings for the arm.

The juniors, fourth-through sixth-graders, work on merit badges at camp: first aid, fire building, Indian lore. The Brownies, second-and third-graders, have fun while learning the rudiments of scouting.

A ROW OF WOOD chips neatly rings a Brownie camp fire. Why wood? "We don't have any rocks. You're supposed to make the fire. Yesterday we got the dirty sock because we didn't have the ring," was the response.

The dirty sock is a momento the girls give to the unit which is the most dirty and slovenly. Cleaning up poorly, neglecting to watch the fire, or forgetting to have a water bucket handy can earn an unlucky group the sock.

The cleanest unit gets a feather. An each day, the girls themselves choose the winners of the feather and the sock.

The idea, Mrs. Millard said, is for the leaders to sit with their hands in their pockets so the girls learn how to do for themselves. We watched a tiny eight-year-old tend the fire, throw wood onto the pile, and watch the flames carefully.

"IT'S AMAZING what they can do for themselves. Of course it sometimes takes them three hours to make lunch."

Girl Scout camp each summer runs Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, two weeks in a row. Cost this year was $7 for each girl. The fee includes the price of six lunches and other camping supplies.

Mothers who volunteer their time will be refunded the $7 fee. The volunteer leaders also can bring their younger children, and the cost is $4 for the boys and $2 for the girls. Older girls are also welcome, although this year only a few junior and senior high school students turned up. They volunteered as camp aides, and paid only $1.50 for the eight days.

At girl scout camp, they still open and close each day with the flag ceremony. The girls still take hikes and play games and make sit-upons out of oilcloth and newspaper.

And they still learn how to start fires in the rain.

Has hit 5 stores

Knife-wielding grocery bandit still being sought

Mount Prospect and Des Plaines police are coordinating efforts to catch a knife-wielding grocery store bandit they believe robbed five stores last week.

The bandit struck twice Friday, grabbing $140 from the Convenient Food Mart 1760 W. Algonquin Rd., Mount Prospect, and an undisclosed amount from the Open Pantry Store, Touhy Avenue and Cedar Street, Des Plaines. The three earlier robberies were in Des Plaines.

"There's no doubt about it," Mount Prospect Police Sgt. Ralph Doney said Friday, when asked if the Mount Prospect store had been robbed by the same man who robbed the Des Plaines stores.

At 9:45 a.m. Friday, the bandit, armed with a four-inch knife, entered the Convenient Food Mart and ordered the clerk to empty the cash register and open the safe. He brandished the knife as he said, "Give me your money," according to police.

FRIDAY'S SECOND robbery was at 2:15 p.m. Des Plaines police would not release many details about the armed robbery, but did say the description was the same as in the past four robberies and the man spent only a short time in the store.

According to a police radio dispatch, the robber was seen leaving the Open Pantry store in a late model, metallic green Mustang.

Police described the robber as 18 to 20 years old, 5 feet, 10 inches, 150 to 160 pounds, with dark blond shoulder-length hair.

MOUNT PROSPECT police said the man wore sunglasses, a light blue faded sweatshirt and grey washpants. He ran out of the store and between some nearby buildings, where he was last seen by witnesses.

If, as police believe, the robber is the same in all five cases, Friday's Mount Prospect haul was his known largest. Last Wednesday he entered the Convenient Food Mart, 1703 Oakton St., Des Plaines, threatened the manager with a knife and left with more than $100 in cash. That was shortly before 9 p.m.

A 7-Eleven food store, 810 S. Elmhurst Rd., Des Plaines, was robbed of $50 Tuesday and another 7-Eleven, at 611 W. Golf Rd., Des Plaines, was robbed of $100 Monday.

Reportedly, Des Plaines police are following several leads, none of which have been disclosed.

Dispute with board

Palatine village manager Braun resigns

Palatine Village Mgr. Berton G. Braun resigned Friday, after three months of tumult and strained relations with the newly elected Republican village board majority.

Braun, 40, gave no reason for his resignation. His last day as Palatine manager will be Aug. 17, after which he will vacation for seven weeks before taking a new position in a DuPage County community. Braun said he will reveal his new position tomorrow. He has been the Palatine manager for more than 6½ years.

New village trustees and Braun have openly and frequently criticized each other since the April election. The most recent controversy, the board's forcing the resignation of former Police Chief Robert Centner, brought strong comments from Braun that the trustees' actions were unjustified.

FOLLOWING THAT MEETING, village Pres. Wendell Jones wrote that Braun was "defensive and arrogant." As village manager, Braun is the supervisor of five department heads, and has vigorously supported those men before the village board.

Republicans had indirectly criticized Braun even before the GOP sweep in April, for being unresponsive to citizens' complaints. But in the first meeting after their election, the new board gave Braun a vote of confidence and asked him to continue as manager.

Saturday, Jones said that he was "surprised by the announcement, because we were just beginning to get the new administration settled." An interim village manager may be appointed sometime soon, but Jones said he has not decided on the procedures for finding a replacement for Braun.

BRAUN PERSONALLY delivered his resignation to each trustee Friday.

Clayton Brown, a minority trustee and defeated candidate for the mayor's post, blasted the new board after learning of Braun's resignation.

He said he was not surprised at Braun's decision, and that the manager's professionalism and integrity "could not allow him to remain under the conditions that currently exist in our village government since the Republican administration has taken over."

In addition, Braun predicted that other department heads soon will either resign or be removed from their positions.

ASKED ABOUT THE apparent loyalty of the five department heads to Braun, the village manager said it may be true that they are very loyal to him, "and it's gratifying, if it is." But he would not speculate on the possibility of the other men quitting because he had.

Braun came to Palatine in 1968 after serving as a consultant to local governments at Southern Illinois University in Carbondale.

He received his bachelor's and master's degrees in public administration at the University of Michigan and is a native of Milwaukee, Wis. Braun and his family live at 304 N. Schiller St.

State's attorney objects to Ruthe Carbona release

The State Attorney's Office filed objections Friday in the First District Illinois Appellate Court to the release on bail of convicted murderess Ruth Carbona.

Mrs. Carbona's attorney, Julius Lucius Echeles, last week appealed her conviction on charges of murdering her husband in December, 1971. He also asked the court to order her release on bail pending the outcome of the appeal.

The woman has been held in Cook County Jail since May 9. Cook County Criminal Court Judge Arthur L. Dunne sentenced her to 20 to 60 years in an Illinois State penitentiary on June 6. Echeles said Mrs. Carbona was still at Cook County Jail because of a requested stay of sentence execution.

Echeles said he hopes to get a ruling on Mrs. Carbona's release on bail late this week or next week. It will be several months before a hearing on the appeal to reverse the conviction will be conducted.

Mrs. Carbona, 30, of 1762 E. Euclid Ave., Mount Prospect, was found guilty May 9 by a jury of five men and seven women of shooting her husband in the back.

Carbona, a Cook County Sheriff's police lieutenant, died Dec. 22, 1971, from a bullet fired from his police service revolver.

Has hit 5 stores

Knife-wielding grocery bandit still being sought

Mount Prospect and Des Plaines police are coordinating efforts to catch a knife-wielding grocery store bandit they believe robbed five stores last week.

The bandit struck twice Friday, grabbing $140 from the Convenient Food Mart 1790 W. Algonquin Rd., Mount Prospect, and an undisclosed amount from the Open Pantry Store, Touhy Avenue and Cedar Street, Des Plaines. The three earlier robberies were in Des Plaines.

"There's no doubt about it," Mount Prospect Police Sgt. Ralph Doney said Friday, when asked if the Mount Prospect store had been robbed by the same man who robbed the Des Plaines stores.

At 9:45 a.m. Friday, the bandit, armed with a four-inch knife, entered the Convenient Food Mart and ordered the clerk to empty the cash register and open the safe. He brandished the knife as he said, "Give me your money," according to police.

FRIDAY'S SECOND robbery was at 2:15 p.m. Des Plaines police would not release many details about the armed robbery, but did say the description was the same as in the past four robberies and the man spent only a short time in the store.

According to a police radio dispatch, the robber was seen leaving the Open Pantry store in a late model, metallic green Mustang.

Police described the robber as 18 to 20 years old, 5 feet, 10 inches, 150 to 160 pounds, with dark blond shoulder-length hair.

MOUNT PROSPECT police said the man wore sunglasses, a light blue faded sweatshirt and grey washpants. He ran out of the store and between some nearby buildings, where he was last seen by witnesses.

If, as police believe, the robber is the same in all five cases, Friday's Mount Prospect haul was his known largest. Last Wednesday he entered the Convenient Food Mart, 1703 Oakton St., Des Plaines, threatened the manager with a knife and left with more than $100 in cash. That was shortly before 9 p.m.

A 7-Eleven food store, 810 S. Elmhurst Rd., Des Plaines, was robbed of $50 Tuesday and another 7-Eleven, at 611 W. Golf Rd., Des Plaines, was robbed of $100 Monday.

Reportedly, Des Plaines police are following several leads, none of which have been disclosed.

'Needy' thieves take 22 Goodwill bags

Thieves tried to take 22 bags of clothing from the Goodwill Industries drop-off box at the Mount Prospect Plaza Saturday night.

Mount Prospect Police, who caught four adults with a red pickup truck, allegedly taking the clothing said the group's leader told them he needed the clothes for his children. Four of the children were present.

Names of the four, all Chicago residents, are being withheld until complaints are signed by Goodwill Industries.

New Maryville school at River Trails site?

The proposed new school facility for students at Maryville Academy, Des Plaines, may be squeezed onto the same site as the River Trails Junior High School, 1900 E. Kensington Rd.

According to Ray Morris, project coordinator for the Illinois Capital Development Board (ICDB), which oversees the construction of all new school facilities in the state, the junior high has been proposed to the River Trails Dist. 26 Board as a recommended site.

"There's enough available land, it looks like, to put this school there," said Morris.

JEAN MEISTER, business manager for the district, says the junior high site contains about 12.5 acres. Of that, the junior high school building occupies about two acres.

"I would guess we can get by with about five acres and even less if necessary" for the Maryville facility, said Board Pres. Lloyd Demel.

The ICDB is now waiting for the school board's response to the site. However, according to Demel, "the majority of the board is not yet convinced by the information that one site is better than another."

Demel said the board still has several questions concerning sites that need to be answered. These questions fall into three categories: the educational, sociological and economic aspects of the site.

Several members of the board plan to go to Springfield Wednesday to meet with John Moore, head of the ICDB, to discuss these questions.

IF THE BOARD decides not to concur with the ICDB in their site proposal, the ICDB will not force the site decision on them, according to Morris. "If we can't concur on a site, we'll have to look at the other possibilities," he said.

The most likely alternate for a site seems to be a 10-acre parcel of land owned by the Archdiocese of Chicago. The land is directly north of Maryville. Though Demel said the board doesn't favor the Archdiocesan property, the majority of the board, reportedly, is leaning that way.

According to Demel, the board is pressing for a decision on the site soon after Wednesday's meeting. "I am expecting, pushing and hoping for a decision next week," he said.

Objection filed to Carbona release

The State Attorney's Office filed objections Friday in the First District Illinois Appellate Court to the release on bail of convicted murderer Ruth Carbona.

Mrs. Carbona's attorney, Julius Lucius Echeles, last week appealed her conviction on charges of murdering her husband in December, 1971. He also asked the court to order her release on bail pending the outcome of the appeal.

The woman has been held in Cook County Jail since May 9. Cook County Criminal Court Judge Arthur L. Dunne sentenced her to 20 to 60 years in an Illinois State penitentiary on June 6. Echeles said Mrs. Carbona was still at Cook County Jail because of a requested stay of sentence execution.

Echeles said he hopes to get a ruling on Mrs. Carbona's release on bail late this week or next week. It will be several months before a hearing on the appeal to reverse the conviction will be conducted.

Mrs. Carbona, 30, of 1762 E. Euclid Ave., Mount Prospect, was found guilty May 9 by a jury of five men and seven women of shooting her husband in the back.

Carbona, a Cook County Sheriff's police lieutenant, died Dec. 22, 1971, from a bullet fired from his police service revolver.

Hospital aides, managers vote Janet tops

From shy girl to No. 1 Cheeri-Aid

by MARY HOULIHAN

Janet Trapani, the 1973 Cheeri-Aid of the Year at Holy Family Hospital, got into volunteer work mainly because of her twin sister.

"She's really outgoing, but I could never talk to people," said Janet, of 222 S. Pine St., Mount Prospect. "So I decided to try things here at the hospital where nobody knew me."

It's hard to imagine Janet, every having trouble with shyness, but she did.

"I was very afraid. It's hard when you don't know anyone," she said. "I still don't know very many people. It's the patients. They've helped me a lot."

HOW COULD sick people help someone who is shy?

"It's hard to explain," Janet said. "But because they had a handicap (being ill) and I had one because I was afraid, we were kind of on the same level."

Janet, a junior at Sacred Heart High School in Rolling Meadows, credits her greatest help to the people she met while working in the physical therapy department at Holy Family in Des Plaines.

She had worked on a nursing unit and in the pediatrics department but "I wasn't really working with the patients there," she said. "Physical therapy has helped me the most."

Janet expressed an interest in working in physical therapy about a year ago. Since then she has been working under the supervision of Rosemarie Gloeckner, physical therapy director at the hospital.

"SHE'S VERY GOOD, very reliable, fast and conscientious," Miss Gloeckner said of Janet. "She really works beyond her capacity down here."

Janet says when she finishes high school, she would like to study to be a physical therapist.

She said she was surprised when she was voted Cheeri-Aide of the year. "Shocked was the word," she laughed.

Janet was selected by a vote of the managers of the different departments in the hospital, as well as by her fellow Cheeri-Aids. Twenty-two of the 34 Cheeri-Aides are from Mount Prospect.

One of the "rewards" of her selection will come this December when she is presented to society at Holy Family Hospital's December Cotillion.

"I can't wait," Janet said.

Remember Lincoln County?

Should 6 area townships secede from Cook County? Idea's founders haven't given up yet

by MARCIA KRAMER

Remember Lincoln County? There may still come the day when residents of the Northwest suburbs live in Lincoln, rather than Cook County. Republican diehards who hatched the idea two years ago of the six Northwest suburban townships seceding from Cook County and forming a new county haven't given up yet.

They still maintain that the new county would provide local control over local matters, especially the zoning of unincorporated property, and better tax benefits — suburban residents now pay taxes but receive few services from Cook County, they say. Not incidentally, Lincoln County would be controlled by Republicans, rather than the Cook County Democratic machine.

THE GOPS MASTERMINDING the new county proposal have come up with a new tactic that they hope will allow Barrington, Elk Grove, Hanover, Palatine, Schaumburg and Wheeling townships to be known as Lincoln County.

The strategy is this: Present state law stipulates that a change in county boundaries must be approved in referendum by a majority of persons living in that county who vote in the general election. The feeling among Lincoln County advocates is that most Chicago voters wouldn't bother casting ballots on the Lincoln County issue, and thus would be recorded as "no" votes. Therefore, they hope to change the law so only a majority of those persons who vote on the specific issue would be needed.

Sounds simple? Not really. The chances of getting amendatory bills through the General Assembly are mixed, according to State Sen. David J. Regner, R-Mount Prospect, who says he will sponsor the legislation in the next session.

Even if the bills get through the legislature in one piece, Regner says, there's no telling what "maverick" Gov. Daniel Walker is liable to do.

"HE'S TOTALLY UNPREDICTABLE," Regner said. "If he's mad enough at Mayor Daley at the time the bill is on his desk, there's a good chance he'll sign it."

And if the governor happens to be on good terms with the mayor at the time and doesn't want to jeopardize their tenuous relationship: "He'll kill it."

The Lincoln County question is clearly a politically partisan issue, backed by Republicans who are anxious to remove the heavily GOP suburbs from the Democratic control of Cook County. The Democrats don't especially want to give up the six revenue-producing townships.

So far, Lincoln County has been merely in the talking stage, and the concept, in fact, has been dormant for more than a year.

One of the biggest obstacles facing the new county advocates has been how to get the plan accepted in referendum by a majority of Cook County residents, both those in the six townships and the remainder of the county as well.

With the new strategy, they hope to bypass that hurdle.

"WE'RE GOING TO TRY to sneak it past the Chicago Democrats," said Wendell E. Jones, the key organizer of the campaign and Palatine village president. "If they know it as the 'Lincoln County bill,' they'll kill it."

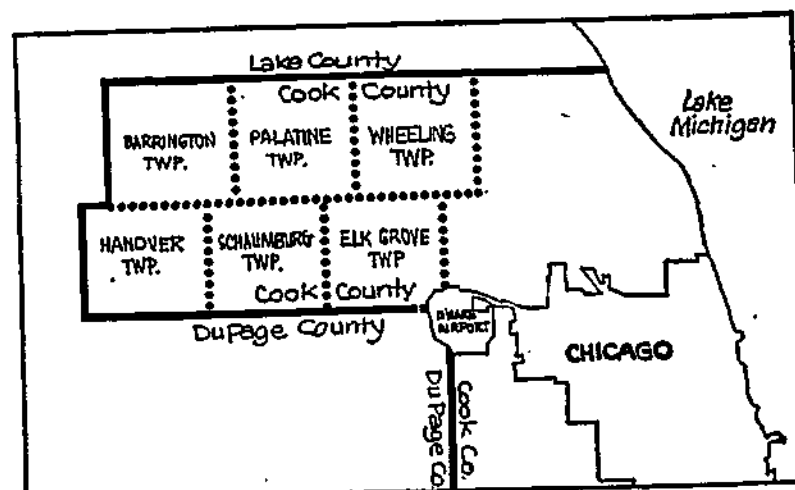

Regner, however, a veteran of seven years in the legislature, doesn't hold out much hope for sneaking a bill of this magnitude past the eagle-eyed Democrats.

"A thing like this that would have a very direct effect on the political future of their party they would watch like a hawk," Regner observed. "There's no possibility of sneaking it by."

Regner said a Lincoln County bill could not pass in the House at this time, where, with the death of a Republican legislator, each party has 88 members.

The bill would, however, have a chance in the Senate, he said, where the GOP holds a slim 30-29 majority.

VOTING IN BOTH HOUSES will be along party lines, Regner predicted, as "the mayor would instruct his men to be against it, lock, stock and barrel." Downstate Republicans probably would go along with their suburban counterparts in supporting the legislation, he said.

Not all area legislators look favorably upon Lincoln County. Democratic State Rep. Eugenia S. Chapman of Arlington Heights considers the Lincoln County plan simply a way to create Republican patronage jobs.

"They evidently feel the township jobs aren't enough," she said. "I see no other reason for the existence of Lincoln County than providing jobs for Republican loyalists."

She added cynically: "In these days of Watergate, I don't blame the Republicans for wanting to do something to bolster their power."

FIRE BROKE OUT Friday afternoon in an abandoned house at Arlington Heights Road and Council Trail, south of Golf Road. Firemen from Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect fought the blaze, which was the third fire to hit an abandoned building in unincorporated territory last week. Mount Prospect Fire Chief Larry Pairitz said the official cause of the fire was unknown, but he speculated it was probably started by vandals.

Movie screen stolen

Someone must have a "hot" movie to show.

Thieves stole a $30 movie screen from Barry A. Sholin's car while it was parked Wednesday night at 1041 Golf Rd., Mount Prospect. The screen was taken between 8 p.m. and 5 a.m.

Credit card suspect turns up in Evanston

A suspected credit card thief who had failed to show up in court was found living in Evanston last week.

Nancy Jensen, 34, formerly of Hutchinson, Minn., was arrested by Evanston police Thursday at 1568 Oak St., where she had been staying. Mount Prospect police had a warrant out for her arrest as she had failed to appear in court here July 13.

The woman has been charged with the July, 1972, theft of a Mount Prospect Holiday Inn maid's purse. Mrs. Jensen allegedly used credit cards taken from the purse at numerous hotels in a three-state region and at numerous stores.

She was charged by Rolling Meadows police with using one of the cards during a stay at the Rolling Meadows Holiday Inn. She has an Aug. 7 court date for Rolling Meadows. Her new Mount Prospect court date is Aug. 22.

Rifle shots cause $600 damage to car

Rifle shots caused at least $600 damage to a car owned by Manuel Nerdegger in Mount Prospect early Saturday.

Police said the shots entered the back of the car from a downward angle and apparently came from a .22-caliber rifle. The incident took place after 1 a.m. in a parking lot off Ill. Rte. 83, near Nerdegger's apartment, 1300 S. Elmhurst Rd.

Arson haven

Abandoned houses more than just eyesores—they're garbage dumps and a nuisance for firemen

by JOE SWICKARD

Abandoned houses are more than eyesores. They are potential breeding grounds for pests, garbage dumps and often targets of arsonists.

Within the past week three such forsaken structures burned in unincorporated areas around Arlington Heights, and the general feeling among officials is the fires were set. From fire department captains to Cook County commissioners, that impression is a common voice. Yet, nothing is being done about the buildings.

"It is a problem. But, there's very little that can be done about them," according to Comm. Floyd Fuller.

FULLER SAID THE county, which has the responsibility for unincorporated areas, has to wait until it receives complaints before taking action against the building owners. He said two years must pass before the structure becomes legally abandoned. Even then the county has limited authority to act.

"As you know, the county is forbidden by law to be in the fire protection business. That falls to the various fire districts," he said.

County Comm. Charles Chaplin said under present County law the buildings can stand until they fall or are fired.

"This is a real problem. We find almost always the fires were set. They blame kids or vagrants or it could be the developer who finds it cheaper to burn instead of bulldoze the thing," he said.

There is a need for a nuisance ordinance, he said, that would allow the county to remove the buildings.

"I THINK THEY should be pulled down. Either fix them up or pull them down. We need something that would put a time limit on the owners, say a year, to get things in order. If they don't, the county should go in and take care of it. We could put a lien on the property to get our money back," he said.

The lien, he said, has already been a tool to get diseased trees removed from private property when the owners refuse to act.

Comm. William Harris agreed with Chaplin, saying, "We are reviewing the whole situation about these buildings. We hope to draft an ordinance that would allocate funds to act."

Harris said the county can act against the old buildings under existing nuisance ordinances, but other problems remain.

"We're going to try to get the owner in court and we can't find him on the tax rolls. The owner may have died or the tax may not have been paid. We need to run a title search to find the owner and that can be hard."

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS Fire Capt. Jack Bensen supervised the fight against a fire Thursday in an old barn.

"Was it set? Absolutely. It's cheaper than tearing the thing down," he said.

Bensen termed the situation "a continuing problem." He cited one old house in north Arlington Heights that burned five or six times before it was finally razed.

He indicated his belief that some fires were set by developers to save demolition costs. The fire department could take an owner to court if it could be proved he set the blaze. However, the fire usually consumes the evidence of arson, if carefully set.

"We respond to them just like any other fire and try to strike them. We don't let them burn. There are two things that affect us here: the safety of firemen because you don't know what you're going to find and these fires tie us up. There could be an emergency and we're already committed to the one fire. We can handle two fires at once, it just is more difficult," he said.

WHILE THE COUNTY says it cannot act, the Village of Arlington Heights has found an effective weapon against the buildings, according to Village Manager L. A. Hanson.

"We have the village board declare them a nuisance by special ordinance," he said.

Once the buildings have been labeled, the village usually gives the owner a short time to begin either rehabilitation or razing. A cash bond must be posted by the owner, to be forfeited if no action is taken within the time limit. The village would then act and place a lien on the property, he said.

"This is a spasmodic condition. You have to keep your finger on the pulse. One house like that is too many and you let it go it will get out of hand," Hanson said.

FIRE BROKE OUT Friday afternoon in an abandoned house at Arlington Heights Road and Council Trail, south of Golf Road. Firemen from Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect fought the blaze, which was the third fire to hit an abandoned building in unincorporated territory last week. Mount Prospect Fire Chief Larry Pairitz said the official cause of the fire was unknown, but he speculated it was probably started by vandals.

Crossing project in 'deep freeze'

Work on the railroad crossing at McKinley Avenue in Arlington Heights has been delayed again.

Russell Colvin, president of the Arlington Heights Board of Local Improvements said he was dismayed when the latest status report on the Arthur-McKinley crossing indicated that project was in "deep freeze" at the village engineering department.

Village engineers were to prepare the plans and specifications, but other projects of "high priority" pushed the railroad crossing project behind schedule. "To make matters worse, the engineer who finally started on the plans left for a three-week vacation," said Colvin.

The board had expected plans to be completed and submitted to the Illinois Commerce Commission by the end of the summer.

Colvin indicated that unless the crossing project "gets a lot of priority," the plans won't be finished by the end of summer.

THE GRADE CROSSING is part of the board's plans for improving the traffic flow into the southeast section of the village. Other plans are the widening of Davis Street, which was recently completed, and connecting Davis Street with Sigwalt Street next summer.

When all the projects are completed, the crossing will enable residents traveling north on Davis Street and Northwest Highway access to the southeast section of the village.

"We're trying to relieve this traffic so we desperately need the grade crossing," said Colvin. "But we can't control it."

The Arthur-McKinley project has been in the works nearly seven years. The most recent delay in the project was in April when the proposed railroad site was moved from Arthur Avenue to McKinley Avenue because of engineering difficulties.

McGuire 'safe bet' for Palatine police chief job

James T. McGuire, former superintendent of the Illinois State Police, has been prominently mentioned as a candidate for Palatine police chief.

The name of McGuire, 46, who is currently director of the Chicago Police Academy, has been raised by several sources as a likely successor to ousted Police Chief Robert R. Contrer.

One source told the Herald: "The safe money is betting on McGuire and I'll buy that."

McGuire was unavailable for comment.

HE IS WIDELY expected to apply for the top police job in Palatine when applications become available this week, and his credentials are considered sound.

So far, two informal applications and one recommendation for the police chief's position have been submitted to the search committee appointed by Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones to help select a new chief.

When asked by the Herald Friday

James McGuire

whether he had any knowledge of McGuire, Jones replied: "I've never heard of him."

McGuire is a graduate of St. Phillip High School in Chicago and attended Wright Junior College in Chicago and St. Joseph's College in East Chicago, Ind., where he studied criminology.

MUCH OF HIS career has followed the political ups and downs of former Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie, a Republican.

McGuire, at the time a Chicago police sergeant, was brought into the Cook County Sheriff's office as a captain, when Ogilvie became sheriff in 1962, and developed a reputation as a reformer.

McGuire advanced to a major in the sheriff's department, where he was in charge of the operational bureau, responsible for coordinating all law enforcement activities at the divisional level within the department.

He was cited for instituting a seven-man tactical unit and heading an experimental helicopter patrol program. In addition, McGuire became the first officer in the Cook County sheriff's department to receive a scholarship to attend a traffic training program at Northwestern University.

McGUIRE FOLLOWED Ogilvie to Springfield in 1968, heading the Illinois State Police while Ogilvie occupied the governor's mansion.

As superintendent of the state police at $30,000 a year, McGuire was responsible for a force of 1,700 officers in 15 statewide districts.

When Ogilvie was defeated last year in his bid for a second term, replaced by Democrat Daniel Walker, McGuire also was out of a job.

He took a position as director of the Chicago Police Academy six months ago, at a salary of up to $23,300.

McGUIRE WOULD receive a pay hike if he were appointed to the Palatine post. The local police chief currently earns just over $20,000 a year, but village officials have expressed willingness to boost the salary to $25,000 to attract a qualified applicant.

Some sources told the Herald that McGuire's Republican background is a factor in his being mentioned for the Palatine post, suggesting that Palatine Township Republican officials favor him as a way of strengthening the party's power base in the village.

ONE OF THE FIRST moves taken by the new Republican majority of the Palatine Village Board earlier this summer was to force the resignation of the police chief. The Republicans have denied charges of political motivation in ousting Contrer.

Jones, the village president, appointed a three-member search committee to recommend candidates for the police chief post to the village board.

Jones later added the village manager to the committee and gave the committee authority to narrow the choices to a single candidate who would then be accepted or rejected by the village board.

The search committee consists of Joseph M. Kiszka (chairman), deputy superintendent of Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15; Herman M. Hertog, executive director of the Buehler YMCA; L. W. Calderwood, police chief of Arlington Heights; and Berton G. Braun (secretary) the village manager.

Dispute with board

Palatine village manager resigns

Palatine Village Mgr. Berton G. Braun resigned Friday, after three months of tumult and strained relations with the newly elected Republican village board majority.

Braun, 40, gave no reason for his resignation. His last day as Palatine manager will be Aug. 17, after which he will vacation for seven weeks before taking a new position in a DuPage County community. Braun said he will reveal his new position tomorrow. He has been the Palatine manager for more than 6½ years.

New village trustees and Braun have openly and frequently criticized each other since the April election. The most recent controversy, the board's forcing the resignation of former Police Chief Robert Centner, brought strong comments from Braun that the trustees' actions were unjustified.

FOLLOWING THAT MEETING, Village Pres. Wendell Jones wrote that Braun was "defensive and arrogant." As village manager, Braun is the supervisor of five department heads, and has vigorously supported those men before the village board.

Republicans had indirectly criticized Braun even before the GOP sweep in April, for being unresponsive to citizens' complaints. But in the first meeting after their election, the new board gave Braun a vote of confidence and asked him to continue as manager.

Saturday, Jones said that he was "surprised by the announcement, because we were just beginning to get the new administration settled." An interim village manager may be appointed sometime soon, but Jones said he has not decided on the procedures for finding a replacement for Braun.

BRAUN PERSONALLY delivered his resignation to each trustee Friday.

Clayton Brown, a minority trustee and defeated candidate for the mayor's post, blasted the new board after learning of Braun's resignation.

He said he was not surprised at Braun's decision, and that the manager's professionalism and integrity "could not allow him to remain under the conditions that currently exist in our village government since the Republican administration has taken over."

In addition, Brown predicted that other department heads soon will either resign or be removed from their positions.

ASKED ABOUT THE apparent loyalty of the five department heads to Braun, the village manager said it may be true that they are very loyal to him, "and it's gratifying, if it is." But he would not speculate on the possibility of the other men quitting because he had.

Braun came to Palatine in 1968 after serving as a consultant to local governments at Southern Illinois University in Carbondale.

He received his bachelor's and master's degrees in public administration at the University of Michigan and is a native of Milwaukee, Wis. Braun and his family live at 304 N. Schiller St.

"MY FAIR LADY" will be presented this week by students in the summer musical program at Prospect High School. Here Ray Hollenbach, Lynn

Egan, Chip Howes and Tom Allen rehearse a scene from the play, which will run Wednesday through Saturday in the Prospect auditorium. Curtain time is 7:30 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday and 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday. Tickets are $2.

Liquor stores fined for under-age sales

Two Arlington Heights package liquor stores have been fined by the Village Pres. Jack Walsh for allegedly selling alcoholic beverages to under-age persons.

Westgate Walgreen Agency Drugs, 1705 W. Campbell St., was fined $250 or one day's closing and Jewel-Osco, 50 W. Golf Rd., was fined $500 or three days' closing.

The fines were ordered after a hearing by Walsh, who also serves as Arlington Heights liquor commissioner.

In both instances, the under-age persons have been found guilty in court, however, cases against both stores still are pending.

Village-imposed fines in cases of apparent liquor law violations are independent of any court-ordered judgment.

Coordinator hired to aid kids in first-grade move

by JEANNETTE DE WYZE

The Dist. 21 school board Thursday night approved the hiring of a primary coordinator to help kindergarten youngsters make a smooth transition to the first grade.

Frances Voris will fill the new coordinator's position. Miss Voris comes to Dist. 21 after working as an elementary reading teacher and reading consultant in Iowa schools.

Her function will be to coordinate kindergarten readiness material with first grade subject matter to allow children to progress at their own rate, particularly in reading and math.

Another major responsibility of the new coordinator will be to work with the district's motor facilitation program which is designed to help children develop coordination.

In the past, only kindergarten children have participated in the program, but school officials plan to expand the program to include first and second grade children who have coordination problems.

THE MOTOR program coordinator's position has been combined with the job of physical education coordinator in the past. Now Pat Ropp will fill the role of district physical education coordinator.

According to Marjorie Beu, curriculum director, three parent and kindergarten teacher workshops will be conducted during the school year to discuss the motor facilitation program.

The board also authorized the hiring of Thomas F. O'Brien, as district media coordinator.

The board discussed a request from Commonwealth Edison for an easement for underground lines along the south border of Tarkington School, but decided to take no action.

Although the electric company has agreed to restore the swale in the area to its original condition and grade, the board decided to seek further assurance that the company would also assume the cost for excavating the lines if their removal is necessary in the future.

IN OTHER action, the board authorized the issuing of tax anticipation warrants on 75 per cent of the 1973 education and building fund tax levy. The warrants are essentially a bank loan to be repaid when the 1973 tax levy is collected in 1974. Similar warrants have been issued for several years.

John Barger, assistant superintendent for the district, said the warrants usually are necessary in rapid growth areas, because of the constant expansion of the school populations.

"If you didn't issue the warrants then you'd essentially be using last year's money to pay for next year's expenditures," he said.

It also was announced at the meeting that the district has filed its claim for state aid for the upcoming year. The district will claim $3.09 million in state aid, based on a daily attendance figure which has increased by 150 students per day over last year.

The claim is more than the figure the district had originally budgeted for state aid, according to Jim Gochis, the district secretary.

Has hit 5 stores

Knife-wielding grocery bandit still being sought

Mount Prospect and Des Plaines police are coordinating efforts to catch a knife-wielding grocery store bandit they believe robbed five stores last week.

The bandit struck twice Friday, grabbing $140 from the Convenient Food Mart 1750 W. Algonquin Rd., Mount Prospect, and an undisclosed amount from the Open Pantry Store, Touhy Avenue and Cedar Street, Des Plaines. The three earlier robberies were in Des Plaines.

"There's no doubt about it," Mount Prospect Police Sgt. Ralph Doney said Friday, when asked if the Mount Prospect store had been robbed by the same man who robbed the Des Plaines stores.

At 9:45 a.m. Friday, the bandit, armed with a four-inch knife, entered the Convenient Food Mart and ordered the clerk to empty the cash register and open the safe. He brandished the knife as he said, "Give me your money," according to police.

FRIDAY'S SECOND robbery was at 2:15 p.m. Des Plaines police would not release many details about the armed robbery, but did say the description was the same as in the past four robberies and the man spent only a short time in the store.

According to a police radio dispatch, the robber was seen leaving the Open Pantry store in a late model, metallic green Mustang.

Police described the robber as 18 to 20 years old, 5 feet, 10 inches, 150 to 160 pounds, with dark blond shoulder-length hair.

MOUNT PROSPECT police said the man wore sunglasses, a light blue faded sweatshirt and grey washpants. He ran out of the store and between some nearby buildings, where he was last seen by witnesses.

Citizens' group wants to check flood plans

The Citizens Action Committee Against Flooding has contacted 11 different engineering firms about the feasibility of reviewing the flood control program prepared by R. J. Peterson & Associates.

Committee chairman Frank Palmatter said firms that express an interest in doing the work will be scheduled for an interview with the committee on Aug. 14, 15, 16 or 21.

He said the committee has not yet received any estimates of the cost of the second study.

The village board voted 6 to 3 on July 16 to hire a second engineering firm to review the Peterson proposals before going ahead with a $14.5 million bond referendum to pay for the flood control measures.
